HOTELS TIED UP AS N. Y. BUILDING STRIKE SPREADS

Lifts Halted in Some 32 Stories High.

New York, March 7.—[Special]—The building service strike spread to the teeming grand central area tonight.

Timing their drive to hit the week-end transient business, strikers strove to disrupt Gotham's hotel and theatrical centers.

By ordering walkouts at half a hundred hotels they created a situation that was called serious, as it affected week-end receipts.

At the same time the striking workers tightened their picket lines at hold-out apartment houses. A definite falling off of week-end reservations was reported by theaters and night clubs.

200 Apartments Are Hit.

Elevator operators, maids, bellboys, porters, doormen and furnace tenders walked out and paralyzed Tudor City, one of the largest residential developments in the city.

Hotels listed as paralyzed by today's strike included:

St. Moritz	Madison
Pierre	Seville
Taft	New Weston
Lexington	Spencer Arms
Alexandria	Imperial
Barbizon Club for Women

The new strike orders went out as James J. Bambrick, president of the local union, announced that agreements covering a total of 1,814 buildings had been signed.

Mayor La Guardia made another effort tonight to bring the strike to a conclusion when he issued an appeal to both sides to get together.

Mayor La Guardia said that Ben Golden, member of the national labor relations board, would be at city hall all day tomorrow to confer with building owners who desired to settle.

Unions Insist Victory in Sight.

Bambrick insisted the union had "broken the back" of the realty advisory board, which opposes any agreement. He said he had word of many building owners that they desired agreements similar to that reached with the Prudence company.

Today's new strike orders covered 200 apartments employing 5,300 men, as well as hotels which are under the jurisdiction of Local 32-C. Some of the best apartment districts in the city are in the area.

Employés in twelve buildings between 41st and 43d streets and 2d avenue and Prospect place started walking out at 10:45 a. m., and by noon the tie-up was virtually complete. No elevators were running in the buildings, which range from ten to thirty-two stories in height.

Horan Stays in Background.

The elusiveness of Jerry Horan, president of the International Building Service Employés' union, with headquarters in Chicago, added an element of mystery to the situation today.

For days strike leaders have been saying that Horan was on his way from Chicago, coming to New York with "unlimited funds" for use in the strike.

Horan finally reached New York, but only for a brief stay—so brief that scarcely any one saw him.

It is understood that union leaders were advised that the presence of Horan and other Chicago officials of the union wouldn't help their cause any—that it wouldn't do any good to let the public believe the New York strike was being directed from Chicago.

Woman Battles Striker for Right to Use Elevator

New York, March 7.—(AP)—Arming herself with a milk bottle, Mrs. Mildred Hines, 27 years old, battled vainly tonight to take an elevator out of the hands of strikers to ride to her parents' apartment. Andro Krion, a striker who intercepted her, was taken to a hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises. Mrs. Hines was arrested.

Pety, Lincoln Park Zoo's Emu, Dies of Age at 44

Cross word puzzle fans learned with regret yesterday of the death on Friday of Pety, an Australian emu, one of the oldest inmates of the Lincoln Park zoo. Director Floyd S. Young said Petty died of old age. The bird was 44 years old, and was brought to the zoo 34 years ago.

FALSE LIBERALS RULING NATION, HOOVER WARNS

Economic Freedom Is His Plea.

Colorado Springs, Colo., March 7.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover told a cheering audience of Colorado Young Republicans here tonight that the New Deal had failed in its biggest job—"reëmploying the jobless."

Speaking on "The Choice for Youth" he declared his belief that the only system that will preserve liberty and keep open the doors of opportunity is government regulated business. "And this," he said, "is as far from government dictated business as the two poles."

Strikes at Dictatorships.

The Colorado Springs auditorium, seating 3,100, was filled to capacity. As Mr. Hoover delivered his sallies against the New Deal applause was frequent, especially when he referred to the nation's tax burden of which "the new taxes of today are only a part."

Gordon Allott of Lamar, Colo., permanent state chairman for the Young Republicans, introduced Mr. Hoover as "a real liberalist, not the anarchistic, communistic, socialistic type that we have now."

"Democracy can regulate its citizens through law and judicial bodies," Mr. Hoover said. "No democracy can dictate and survive as a democracy. The only way to preserve individual initiative and enterprise is for the government to make the same rules for everybody and act as umpire."

Assails Planned Economy.

"If any one does not believe there is a bite in that innocent term 'Planned Economy,' he might re-read this paragraph from one of the leading New Deal spokesmen:

"'It is . . . a logical impossibility to have a planned economy and to have business operating its industries, just as it is also impossible to have one within our present constitutional and statutory structure. Modifications in both, so serious as to mean destruction and re-beginning, are required.'

"That is involved language but if it means anything it means that both private business and the constitution must be modified so seriously as to mean destruction and re-beginning. . . .

Cites Stand of Roosevelt.

"The President, far from repudiating these ideas, has continuously supported 'Planned Economy.' On one occasion he said, '. . . All of the proposals and all of the legislation since the fourth of March have not been just a collection of haphazard schemes but rather the orderly component parts of a connected and logical whole.'

"The natural choice of youth is toward true liberalism," Mr. Hoover declared. "True liberalism seeks all legitimate freedom first, in the confident belief that without such freedom the pursuit of other blessings is in vain. Liberalism is a force true of the spirit, proceeding from the deep realization that economic freedom cannot be sacrificed if political freedom is to be preserved."

TEXT OF SPEECH

The text of Mr. Hoover's address follows:

"This assembly marks the anxiety which stirs the nation. Never before have our young men and women so

THE MOST IMPORTANT YEAR IN THE HISTORY OF NATIONS

LEO IS NOT QUICK ON SIGNALS; THAT'S WHY HE'S $25 LIGHTER NOW

Leo Dresner of 4715 North Central Park avenue was somewhat astonished yesterday afternoon by the elaborate pantomime presented by Joseph Schwartz when he went into the latter's men's store at 3221 Lawrence avenue.

"Wouldn't you like a necktie?" said Schwartz, motioning violently toward the front door with a thumb.

"Don't kid me," retorted Dresner. "You know me, Schwartz; I just came in to see if I could get a contract to wash your windows."

"Maybe you'd like a shirt," insisted the storekeeper, again thumbing toward the door.

Just then two robbers, who had hidden in the rear when they saw the supposed customer enter, came out and ended the misunderstanding. They took $25 from Dresner and $35 from Schwartz. When they had gone Dresner said he was sorry he didn't understand Schwartz's signal to get out of the store.

The same robbers are believed to have held up Benjamin Oguss in the Colonial Metal works at 4550 Lexington street, obtaining $512. They were also reported to have taken $235 in a robbery of the Orr Real Estate company, 1606 Montrose avenue, and $285 from Sam Cecala in his bakery at 1124 West Grand avenue.

Coast Guardsmen Rescue Exhausted Gull in Lake

A large gull apparently exhausted and unable to fly, was rescued last night by Boatswain Ludwig Wedemeyer and Surfmen James Lockhart and Sigmund Drzewiecke of the Central coast guard, after it struggled helplessly for several hours on the ice in the lake off Division street. The coastguardsmen rowed out in a dingy to save the bird which evaded them for a time by leaving its ice perch and swimming out into the lake. The bird was taken to the coast guard station, fed and released.

Wife of Gifford Pinchot Plans Race for Congress

Philadelphia, Pa., March 7.—(AP)—Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, announced conditionally today she will run for the Republican nomination for U. S. representative in the Great Kensington Mill district in northeast Philadelphia. Mrs. Pinchot's home is in Milford, a hundred miles from Philadelphia. She said she would file nominating petitions on Monday.

Court Shatters Final Hope for City of Dreams

The last hope that Edithton [dream city of millionaires which Edith Rockefeller McCormick started to build on the shores of Lake Michigan when she was one of the richest women in the world] would ever become a reality was shattered yesterday.

A decree for the foreclosure of the 1,500 acres that were to be included in this model city was entered in the Circuit court at Kenosha to satisfy a claim of $360,696 by the American National Bank and Trust company. It has been estimated that Mrs. McCormick sank $4,000,000 in the venture.

Estate Is Main Defendant.

The bank was mortgage trustee for a bond issue on the property, of which $287,500 is in default. Included in the judgment are interest arrears of nearly $80,000 more. The principal defendant in the foreclosure action was the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust, which had control of most of Mrs. McCormick's property when she died in 1932.

Under the order issued yesterday by Judge E. R. Belden the land is to be sold in twenty-four tracts for the benefit of the bondholders.

Edithton was regarded as probably the most ambitious of all the projects undertaken by the daughter of John D. Rockefeller and her associates, Edward Dato and Edwin Krenn. To start they purchased more than 1,500 acres of land on the lake shore south of Kenosha for $1,000 an acre.

Pour Thousands Into Project.

Then money was poured, by the hundreds of thousands, into elaborate landscaping, with Mrs. McCormick personally supervising the planning.

It was announced there was to be a yacht harbor. Krenn was proclaimed as the architect who was to design a whole town. Sites for hotels of the Atlantic City type, great castles in Spain, were selected. An airport was laid out. There was to be a municipal golf course and a schoolhouse with twenty-five acres of ground all to itself.

No building, it was announced, could be built without the supervision of Krenn, that there might be no lack of harmony anywhere with the general Spanish type of building.

Lone Building Erected.

Even in those days—1924 and 1925—some people wondered where she would find enough millionaires to fill up such a colony. Only one building was ever erected.

The crash of 1929 came and it was impossible to sell any of the acreage. Until her death Mrs. McCormick, under a technical lease, paid the amounts due on the bonds and retired a large proportion of the original $1,137,500 issue.

Edithton, like all the other properties that made up Mrs. McCormick's estate, has been in litigation for the last three years, and the land, burdened by high taxes, has been idle.

TEXAS FAIR REFUSES AIMEE M'PHERSON HER SPECIAL DAY

Dallas, Tex., March 7.—[U. P.]—Setting aside a special day for Aimee Semple McPherson's appearance at the Texas Centennial exposition would be "commercializing religion," A. E. Vollman, exhibits director, said tonight.

"She has asked through her representative for a special Aimee Semple McPherson day at the exposition for her preaching," Vollman said. "It is her custom to take up a collection on such occasions. The hall of religion is non-commercial. We do not wish to see religion commercialized and we have declined to set aside such a day."

POLES WELCOME NAZI WAIVING OF CORRIDOR CLAIM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, March 7.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's decision to scrap the Locarno treaty is a logical result of the soviet-Czech and soviet-French treaties, according to Polish officials, who declared their government's mingled pleasure and displeasure at Germany's moves.

One point in Hitler's speech emphasized here in his declaration that Germany does not claim any Polish territory, thus publicly waiving claims to the Danzig corridor and upper Silesia.

The present friendly relations between Poland and Germany are not affected by the destruction of the Locarno pact, it was stated. Poland also warmly endorses Hitler's statement on the equality of all nations belonging to the league of nations since this country also has colonial ambitions.

Boy, 13, Saves His Mother, Three Sisters from Death

Toledo, O., March 7.—(AP)—Jimmie McDermott, 13 years old, tonight saved the lives of his mother and three sisters, overcome by gas fumes in their home. Jimmy opened windows and called the fire department rescue squad and a physician, who revived the victims.

PARIS, March 7.—Faithful to the memory of the late Raymond Poincare, France's wartime president, this nation tonight turned its back on Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's offer of a new Locarno pact and invoked the rigors of the covenant of the league of nations.

Although Germany's "symbolic occupation" of the demilitarized zone of the Rhineland now amounts to thirteen infantry battalions and nineteen field batteries, according to the latest reports received here, no military reprisals are contemplated for the time being.

Sunday leaves for army men were canceled in the border districts and 200,000 troops are standing by their guns in France's underground fortifications along the German border.

May Mobilize Two Classes.

French military officials insist there is no question of even a partial mobilization of the army as yet. However, it was reported that the cabinet, which meets tomorrow in special session, may decide to mobilize two classes of reservists.

It also was reported that the cabinet might postpone indefinitely the elections scheduled for April, as during the world war. Some sources also hinted there is possibility President Albert Lebrun may persuade Premier Albert Sarraut to resign and appoint some nonpartisan notability to form a national union government for the duration of the crisis.

France's reply to Hitler's bombshell consists of an appeal to the league council, which tentatively was convoked for Tuesday. Before the council meets there will be a conference of the four remaining Locarno powers—Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium—to try to concert common resistance to the German dictator's unilateral repudiation of the treaty. This conference is scheduled for Monday.

Paris Demands Sanctions.

The action, which the French hope to persuade the other three to adopt, is to accuse Germany before the council of unilateral treaty violation and to invoke against her economic and financial sanctions.

This innocuous climax to the day's almost hysterical diplomatic activity, which, at the moment, looked as if it might lead straight to war, was an-

Situation at Glance

Reichsfuehrer Hitler's Nazi legions marched into the demilitarized Rhineland yesterday.

In a two-hour speech in the reichstag Hitler denounced the Locarno pact, which he said had already been wrecked by the Franco-Russian mutual assistance treaty.

Hitler called a plebiscite for March 29 to endorse his policies.

Germany, he said, was ready to rejoin the league, but only as an equal.

France invoked the covenant of league of nations against Germany and demanded the adoption of sanctions against the reich for repudiating the Locarno treaty.

French troops fill fortifications on German frontier. Leaves of soldiers canceled in France and Belgium.

Little entente nations warned France to fight back at Hitler or lose their support.

The British government announced a cabinet meeting Monday would discuss the situation; sees no reason for becoming panicky.

Italian officials agreed that no action was the best action on Hitler's move.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 7.—With a wild celebration reminiscent of the armistice which ended the world war, Germany tonight cheered Reichsfuehrer Hitler's defiant action in scrapping the Locarno treaty and the last important clauses of the Versailles treaty and reoccupying the demilitarized Rhineland with armed forces.

While the rest of Europe talked of the possibility of war, thousands of Germans marched through the streets of cities and towns in torchlight parades, jubilantly singing "Deutschland Uber Alles," "The Watch on the Rhine," and the Horstwessel song [Nazi anthem].

30,000 Troops on March.

In Berlin a torchlight procession of black uniformed, steel helmeted, rifle bearing Hitler bodyguards goose-stepped through the Brandenburg gate to the fuehrer's palace, where their "liberator" and his lieutenants saluted. With Hitler on the balcony of the palace were Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of air, and Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda. All three wore plain Storm Troopers' uniforms.

While the nation celebrated this great milestone in history, the military reoccupation of the 30 mile wide strip on the banks of the Rhine—demilitarized at Versailles after the war—went on with true German efficiency. The troop movement, it was announced, will be completed by tomorrow night, when 30,000 soldiers of the regular German army will be installed in all the old garrisons of the area.

For the last year, it was learned tonight, Gen. Kurt Gallenkamp and a staf of 25 officers and 80 noncommissioned officers have been quartered at Giessen, east of Coblenz, working out the plans for this day.

Notice to the Ambassadors.

Hitler began his world shaking action at 11 o'clock this morning, when the ambassadors of France, Great Britain, and Italy and the chargé d'affaires of Belgium called at the foreign office and received from Konstantin von Neurath, the fuehrer's foreign minister, a nine page memorandum denouncing the Locarno treaty and announcing his intention to rearm the Rhineland. The memorandum also offered France and Belgium a 25 year peace formula.

Hitler then went to the reichstag, which he had summoned suddenly last night, and in a dramatic hour and a half speech announced to the nation and the world the action he had taken and his reasons for taking it.

He then dissolved the reichstag and ordered a plebiscite in which the people of Germany will vote their endorsement of his policy. The plebiscite will be held on March 29.

In his speech the German leader roundly denounced the Franco-Russian mutual assistance treaty, which already has been ratified by the French chamber of deputies and now awaits senate ratification. He warned that this pact might lead to "unpredictable consequences" for Europe, with the danger of spreading throughout the continent the "chaos of bolshevism."

The fuehrer charged that by concluding this agreement with Russia France had violated the Locarno treaty and thus released Germany from its provisions. He pointed out that he had again and again in the past made efforts for a rapprochement with France, but without success.

With tears in his eyes and a quaver in his voice, Hitler dramatically announced that he still wanted peace above all else, and as evidence of his sincerity offered a seven point program to the European powers.

Outline of Plan.

His plan follows:

FIRST—Hitler offered to demilitarize the zone along the western German border, provided France and Belgium demilitarize a strip of land of exactly the same width as the German demilitarized zone on an "absolutely equal basis."

SECOND—He proposed a twenty-five year nonaggression treaty among Germany, France, and Belgium.

THIRD—He invited Great Britain and Italy to act as guarantors of this pact.

FOURTH—He suggested that the Netherlands be included in the system of pacts.

FIFTH—He proposed an air pact with the western powers, designed to protect them from aerial attacks.

Ready to Reënter League.

SIXTH—He offered to sign a nonaggression pact with all his eastern neighbors similar to the pact binding him with Poland. This offer also was addressed to Lithuania, which he has deliberately excluded in earlier offers of nonaggression pacts.

SEVENTH—He announced his willingness to return to the league of nations after the "final equality of Germany has been established and full sovereignty restored." Germany, the fuehrer said, hopes that in due time the question of colonial equality for Germany will be settled through friendly negotiations, as well as the question of freeing the covenant of the league of nations from its Versailles treaty foundations.

Even while Hitler was making this announcement in Berlin his army was entering the Rhineland. For the first time since the tragic days of 1918, when the late Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg led his stunned and exhausted troops from the battlefield through the Rhineland to their homeland just a few miles ahead of their victorious enemies, the German soldiers marched triumphantly into the area at noon.

Area Gets an Air Force.

The new forces to be garrisoned along the Rhine include nineteen battalions of infantry, seven regiments of artillery, two full sized groups of pursuit planes of six German squadrons each, and two anti-aircraft detachments of six batteries. Most of them will be stationed along the river and in the plain between it and the Black Forest. The former big garrisons of Aix-la-Chapelle, Trier and Saarbruecken will be weaker than in pre-war days.

Cologne, Frankfurt, Dusseldorf, and Mannheim will become military flying centers. Cologne and Mannheim will also harbor anti-aircraft detachments.

One of the first towns to be occupied was Coblenz, former headquarters of the American army of occupation. The troops marched in over the Rhine bridge, which was decorated with evergreens by the enthusiastic populace. A torchlight procession was held tonight in honor of the troops.

Flyers Circle Over Cologne.

Flyers circled over Cologne, their future headquarters. The commander of the 7th army corps, Gen. von Kluge, took up his post in Cologne. The troops goosestepped past him in front of Cologne's beautiful Gothic cathedral. His headquarters is the Hotel Excelsior, which was last occupied by British troops before they left Germany in 1926.

In Frankfurt a divisional commander, Lieut. Gen. Luedke, and his staf, arrived even before Hitler made his announcement. Motorized units of the air force and an anti-aircraft battery which followed were welcomed with the same fervid enthusiasm that marked all the receptions.

In Saarbruecken the troops arrived in trains with bugle corps announcing the occupation of the city.

Medieval Mayence [Mainz] resounded to the marching infantry, brass bands, lumbering artillery, tanks and field kitchens. Detachments of proud Alsatian dispatch dogs, fully aware of their importance, nearly stole the show from their stalwart masters.

Troops Move To Palatinate.

In Heidelberg citizens marched out to the new motor highway along the Neckar river to watch the motorized units clatter past on the way to the Palatinate.

The government, which previously had ordered the population to display flags at half staf tomorrow in honor of the memory of the war dead, today instructed the people to hoist the flags to full staf to "show their loyalty to the war dead whose sacrifice no longer has been made in vain."

Tonight, in an address broadcast to the Rhineland, Propaganda Minister Goebbels expressed Hitler's thanks to the inhabitants for the reception they accorded the troops. He said the occupation presaged a "better future for Europe."

THE FUEHRER'S SPEECH

BERLIN, March 7.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler in his speech to the reichstag today vigorously denied that the so-called "German question" consisted of an "alleged love of war by the German people, a dormant intention to attack or a devilish cleverness in outwitting her opponents."

"The German question consists in something quite different," he declared.

"On very limited, not everywhere fertile soil, some 67,000,000 people are living. That is about 136 per square kilometer.

"These people are no less industrious than other European peoples, but they are also no less desirous of the good things of life.

Proclaims German Honor.

"They are no less intelligent but they are also no more cowardly and under no circumstances are they less honorable than members of other European peoples."

Hitler contended that indecent elements no longer were within Germany, "but living mostly as emigrants with some international host."

"The German question consisted in fact that this people, even in 1935, was supposed to still stand for inferiority of rights because of a debt which it never incurred, which for the honor-loving people was unbearable, for the industrial people insufferable, for the intelligent people a cause for indignation," the fuehrer thundered.

"The German question further consists in an endeavor by a system of senseless action, measures, and hateful insinuation, to make more difficult a struggle for existence which was in itself already difficult."

Pleads for World Trade.

Pleading for Germany to have a share in the world's buying and selling, Hitler said emphatically:

"The German people need no special aid for maintaining their life. They merely wish to have no less favorable chances than those afforded other nations.

"Herein lies the one German question."

To master this question, he declared, Germany must possess a feeling of political equality, and with that one of political security.

"The man who desired to save Germany from bolshevism had necessarily also to bring about a decision for solution of the question of Germany's equality with other nations," he declared.

"This fight for German equality which I have conducted for three years is not a raising of a European question, but it is a solution."

Deplores French Attitude.

He said he regarded it as a tragic misfortune that the French people believed it to be to their interests to adhere firmly to the provisions of the Versailles treaty.

The restitution of Germany's equality, Hitler said, was especially difficult because Germany's neighbors had become so used to her inequality.

"That the entire world fell into this period of lasting tension and continued crisis must be ascribed to a lack of common sense with which the problems of the nations were treated both individually and among each other," he said.

He declared Versailles was a classical example of how a war should not be ended. The league of nations covenant, he contended, became worthless because it tied up with the Versailles treaty, which he said divided the world into victors and vanquished.

"Worst of all is the spirit of hatred inherent in this treaty which took possession of the general mentality of people," he said.

Cites Wilson's Vision.

Hitler drew a gloomy picture of world conditions today which he said were very opposite to the vision of former United States President Woodrow Wilson.

"There are politicians who seem to feel secure only when their neighbors are badly off; the worse off the better," he declared.

Giving pomorze [the Polish corridor] as an example, Hitler asserted:

"I wish the German people would understand that although it affects us painfully that an access to the sea for a nation of 35,000,000 [Poland] should cut through German territory, it is unreasonable to deny such a great nation that access.

"It is unsound statesmanship to attempt change by force, because such an attempt would inevitably create an atmosphere of pressure and counter pressure.

Europe "Family of Nations."

"Europe, after all, is a family of nations and it cannot be imagined as otherwise. Any attempt to solve European problems otherwise than with calm reason would lead to regrettable reactions.

"I shall be able to demand of history acknowledgment that at no hour of my activity on behalf of the German people did I forget the duties I and all of us have toward serving European culture and civilization.

"These varied cultures, however, are unthinkable without the existence of free independent national states.

"During these three years I have again and again tried—unfortunately but too often in vain—to build a bridge of understanding reaching over to the French people.

Defends Nazi Methods.

Concerning the method by which Germany set her own house in order, he said this question was no concern of other nations.

"I have tried to solve the question of the hateful class struggle theory within the interior of Germany along lines of higher common sense," Hitler declared.

"Herein I had to succeed. Why shouldn't it be possible to lift the problem of general European differences between nations and states out of the sphere of senselessness and passion and move them under the quieter light of higher reasonableness?"

Replying to international critics who found fault because he declined to coöperate with soviet Russia, Hitler continued:

"I do not decline coöperation with Russia, but with the bolshevism that lays claim to ruling the world.

"I do not want the horrors of communistic international dictatorship and hate to descend upon the German people.

Proud of War on Reds.

"The fact that in the eyes of the bolshevist international world suppressors I am regarded as one of its greatest enemies is merely a great honor for me and justification before posterity of my actions.

"I tremble for Europe at the thought of what shall become of our old overcrowded continent if, through the inroads of this destructive revolutionary Asiatic conception of life, the chaos of the bolshevik revolution were to prove successful."

He then entered into a longer juridical analysis of the effect of the Franco-Russian pact on the Locarno treaty.

Hitler observed that France had concluded pacts of mutual assistance with Czechoslovakia and Poland, even before the Locarno pact, but that Germany did not object to these because they were subordinated to the league of nations.

The soviet pact was different, he contended, because Russia was an organized exponent of revolutionary views.

He said that as a possibility existed that France might some day become bolshevist, Germany must envisage a possibility that such a state would then be directed no longer from Paris, but from Moscow.

"The Russian army has a peace strength of 1,350,000 men, it encompasses 17,500,000 in war strength in reserve, it is equipped with the greatest tank weapons in the world, and has the greatest air force," Hitler declared.

The fuehrer held that this gigantic army, if brought into Europe, would upset completely the European balance of power.

Hitler charged that his recent interview with Bertrand de Jouvenel, French journalist, in which he appealed for French friendship, was withheld until the day after the ratification of the soviet pact by the French chamber of deputies.

Regrets Necessity for Action.

"The consequences of this ratification compelled me to reëxamine the new situation that has obtained and to draw the necessary consequences from it," he said.

"These consequences are fateful and I am personally bitterly sorrowful about them.

"I am compelled, however, not only to bring sacrifices for the sake of European understanding, but also to obey the interests of my own people."

He continued dramatically:

"In this historic hour, when in western provinces our Reich German troops are at this moment moving into their future garrisons of peace, we all unite in two holy confessions:

"First, in a solemn oath to recede before no power and no force in reëstablishing the honor of our people, and rather to succumb honorably to the heaviest privation, than ever capitulate before it.

"Second, in a determination now more than ever to help bring about understanding among peoples of Europe, especially among our western peoples and neighbors.

"Thus, after three years, I believe I can consider with today the fight for German equality as concluded.

"We have no territorial claims in Europe. We Germans want cheerfully to do everything that will bring to realization the high ideals of peaceful coöperation.

"For three years I have been leading the government of the German Reich, and with it the German people.

"Great are the successes which providence has permitted me to achieve by the struggle of these three years for our fatherland.

"In all realms of our national, political and economic life, our position has improved.

"I could do all this only because I never felt myself as dictator of my people, but always only as its leader and thereby its deputy."

RUMANIA SUMMONS DEFENSE COUNCIL TO MEET NAZI THREAT

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 7.—(AP)—The Rumanian defense council tonight was called to a special session Monday to devise means for improving and rapidly increasing the nation's armaments. The council consists of King Carol, former premiers, and the general staf of the army.

The semi-official newspaper, Dimineata, which usually reflects the attitude of Premier Titulescu, predicted that the league of nations would apply economic sanctions against Germany as a result of its action in remilitarizing the Rhineland. Commenting on Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech before the reichstag, the newspaper said:

"Germany is laughing today, but France and England will be laughing tomorrow."

BRITAIN SEES NO CAUSE FOR PANIC IN HITLER MARCH

Nazi Move Is Regarded as Symbolic, Not Military.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

LONDON, March 7.—After a complete diplomatic canvass of continental capitals, especially Rome and Paris, British government authorities view the situation arising from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's military march into the Rhineland and denunciation of the Locarno treaty as serious, but as causing no need for panic.

The gravity of Hitler's move is mitigated somewhat, in the British view, by his promise to return to Geneva and his offer to negotiate a western air pact.

Discount Chance of Clash.

The British were not warned about the Rhineland move officially and have not replied to Pierre-Etienne Flandin, French foreign minister, about giving the French support in the event of a Locarno pact violation. They do not, however, think a violent clash is likely.

The situation, it is held, offers possibilities for thrashing out the Franco-German question and adjusting it on a new basis.

One indication that much ground has been explored in anticipation of Hitler's step is the revelation that Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, and Dr. Leopold von Hoesch, the German ambassador, yesterday talked over Britain's wish to enter discussion of a western air pact. Hitler's speech today, coincidentally, stressed the possibility that such an air pact and other conventions could replace the denounced treaty.

Italian Decision Pleases.

The situation was also held to be eased somewhat by Premier Mussolini's decision to accept the proposals of the league of nations' committee of 13 to begin peace negotiations with Ethiopia "in principle."

Nevertheless, it is believed there also is a graver side, the possibility of violent French action.

Eden this morning received Charles Corbin, French ambassador, Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador, and the Belgian charge d'affaires, exchanging views with them on the German moves.

This afternoon he rushed off to Chequers to see Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin. The two statesmen drew up instructions which later were dispatched to Sir George Clerk, British ambassador in Paris, instructing him on the meeting which Flandin, French foreign minister, is arranging of all signatories of the Locarno treaty except Germany. These include Britain, Italy, Belgium and France.

The British are expected to join France in denouncing Hitler's action on juridical grounds but are unlikely to join any coercive efforts.

Alarm Dissipated.

The fact that no emergency cabinet meeting was called today and that British policy on a French appeal against Germany to the league of nations will not be decided until the cabinet meeting Monday, further served to dissipate any alarm which might be felt in London.

A section of the British cabinet is sympathetic with the German case. It takes Hitler's declaration at its face value, that is, that the Rhineland march is merely symbolic, not a military step.

Some military observers here also believe militarization of the Rhineland is intrinsically unimportant, considering the present development of aviation. To these circles in the government—and Prime Minister Baldwin is said to be among them—the German act is essentially repudiation of a position of inferiority.

GERMAN CAVALRY AND ARTILLERY MARCH INTO RHINELAND

A unit of German artillery (left) and a detachment of cavalry (right) were among the military organizations moved into Cologne, chief city of the Rhineland, yesterday after Reichsfuehrer Hitler declared the Locarno pact dead. These pictures, made in Cologne yesterday, were rushed to Berlin by messenger, telephotoed to London, sent across the Atlantic by radio, and transmitted from New York to Chicago by wirephoto. The pictures have been retouched.

How Versailles Treaty Has Faded Out

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 7.—The last trumpet for the treaty of Versailles sounded throughout Europe today. With Hitler's announcement of Germany's reoccupation of the demilitarized zone in the Rhineland the last fragment of that treaty, with the exception of its territorial clauses, fell to the ground.

As a matter of fact the duration of the treaty for nearly seventeen years exceeded the wildest hopes of those who framed it. Considering Germany's great strength, even at the time the war ended, and the disunion that existed in the unavowed interests of her enemies it seems impossible that disruption of the treaty could have been put off so long.

The first crack in the treaty came when the United States failed to ratify it and withdrew her troops from occupation of the Rhineland zone. Then came the German refusal to meet reparations payments, devaluation of the mark, and the French army's occupation of the Ruhr. Great Britain's failure to cooperate with France at this time disclosed the fact that there was no longer any immovable agreement to maintain in its integrity the treaty as a whole.

Soon aferward, however, immense hopes were raised by signature of the treaty of Locarno binding the powers and Germany herself to maintain the status quo in the west at least. That treaty by today's events also has been broken.

Then came the Dawes and afterward the Young plan which promised a happy settlement of the question of reparations and debts. It was followed by advanced evacuation of the Rhineland by French troops. But these hopes were irrevocably blasted by the reparations breakdown at Lausanne, by the failure of the disarmament conference in 1932, Adolf Hitler's advent in Germany and her withdrawal from the league.

The Manchurian crisis proved the Briand-Kellogg pact to be far too idealistic and vague and the league of nations to be ineffectual.

Finally the Italo-Ethiopian crisis has shown that the league is not only incapable of maintaining peace but that no nation within it has the capacity to maintain a constant and invariable policy. The league's well-intentioned action thus only adds confusion and distrust.

NAZI TROOPS' MOVE INTO RHINELAND WINS SYMPATHY IN JAPAN

TOKIO, March 7. — (AP) — Japan paused tonight in the midst of a grave domestic political crisis to consider Germany's denunciation of the Locarno treaty and moving of troops into the demilitarized Rhineland.

Official spokesmen, excited by the Reichsfuehrer's declaration, declined to comment. Authoritative quarters, however, expressed the belief that Hitler's speech would find a sympathetic audience in Japan since Tokio shares Berlin's dislike for the Franco-soviet pact of mutual military assistance.

Dispatches from Berlin and Paris were given prominence in early editions of morning papers, with news of the struggle to form a new Japanese cabinet relegated to second place.

PREDICTS FRANCE WILL GO TO WAR ONLY IF INVADED

War between France and Germany is not imminent, even though Germany scrapped the Locarno treaty completely by military reoccupation of the Rhineland, according to Count Raoul de Roussy de Sales, American correspondent for two Paris newspapers. The count addressed 500 members of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations yesterday at a luncheon in the Palmer house.

Count de Sales predicted that France would regard Germany's action with as much calm as she had other acts of Germany since withdrawal from the league of nations. He declared that only invasion of France would lead to bloodshed.

LITTLE ENTENTE WARNS FRANCE TO FIGHT NAZIS

Alternative Is End of Alliance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, March 7.—The little entente — Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania — through its mouthpiece, Dr. Stefan, Osusky, Czech envoy in Paris, has delivered an ultimatum to France on the German situation, according to reports here tonight. It warned that if the French government does not stand up to Reichsfuehrer Hitler and make vigorous reprisals for the denunciation of the Locarno treaty, France's central European allies will transfer their allegiance to the Reich.

It was learned on good authority that the legal experts of the League of Nations, after examining the Locarno pact and the interpretations made by the German foreign office at the time, conclude that Germany's move is an act of war against the other signatories, and that the latter have full right to send armies into the Rhineland or move in any way they like without consulting the world court or the league of nations council.

See Russo-French Pact Aided.

MOSCOW, March 7.—(AP)—Russia looked toward France tonight for reaction from Reichsfuehrer Hitler's attack on the proposed Franco-Soviet treaty for mutual military assistance.

Among unofficial observers the feeling was expressed that the marching of German troops into the Rhineland might hasten France's ratification of the treaty.

No comment came from the foreign office, pending the receipt of the full text of Hitler's speech.

Plays Into Reds' Hands.

If Hitler's move leads the French to immediate ratification of the pact with Russia, it was suggested that Hitler will have played directly into Moscow's hands. Soviet spokesmen have been insisting that the danger of German aggression was as great for France as for the Soviet Union.

It was pointed out that Russia's position as a military power is not to be scorned, even though there is always the possibility that Russia will have to remove much of her strength for defense of her far eastern border.

The Red army was recently brought up to a strength of 1,300,000 men. Its air force is generally classed as one of the strongest in the world.

FRANCE WILL COUNT INHABITANTS TODAY IN NATIONAL CENSUS

PARIS, March 7.—(AP)—France will count its inhabitants tomorrow in a nation-wide census.

An army of census takers will pass from house to house collecting slips which were left earlier in the week. On these slips are supposed to be answers to numerous questions, intended to show not only the number of inhabitants but various statistics.

The census is taken every five years, the last one in 1931 showing 41,834,923 persons in France, not including 93,928 French soldiers and sailors in the colonies.

Little increase, if any, in the population is expected to be revealed when the total is known—probably near the end of April. The death and birth rates are both falling.

BELGIANS CANCEL ARMY LEAVES ON GERMAN BORDER

BRUSSELS, March 7.—(AP)—Leaves of absence of all Belgian troops stationed in eastern frontier garrisons were canceled tonight by the Belgian government.

The military order was announced in newspapers after Premier Paul Van Zeeland had conferred with King Leopold and participated in conferences with British, French, and Italian ambassadors to Brussels.

The government sought to keep the population of the capital calm after the reichstag speech of Adolf Hitler by broadcasting appeals urging the people not to accept alarming reports.

FRANCE PROBES ESPIONAGE CASE; SENTRY WOUNDED

NANCY, France, March 7.—(AP)—The French general staf investigated today a suspected spying case in which a sentry at one of France's frontier fortifications was wounded.

Officers questioned the sentry, who reported that persons prowling near the secret fortifications failed to halt at his command and that he fired several shots. He said he was struck from behind and lost consciousness.

HITLER CHARGES FRANCE BROKE TREATY FIRST

Text of Memorandum to Locarno Powers.

Immediately after it became known that on May 2, 1935, a pact had been signed between France and the U. S. S. R., the German government called the attention of other signatory powers to the Rhine pact of Locarno and to the fact that the obligations which France assumed in the new pact are not compatible with her obligations under the Rhine pact.

The German government at that time gave its reasons in detail, both from a legal and a political standpoint.

As regards the legal position, this was elaborated in the German memorandum of May 25, 1935; as regards the political, in the numerous diplomatic conversations which followed in the wake of this memorandum.

German Argument Advanced.

The governments involved also know that neither the original to the German memorandum nor the arguments advanced by them through diplomatic channels or in public declarations could shake the standpoint of the German government.

In fact, the entire discussions conducted since May, 1935, diplomatically and publicly, concerning these questions have in all points been able merely to confirm the interpretation of the German government, to which it gave expression from the very beginning.

1. It is not denied that the Franco-soviet pact is exclusively directed against Germany.

2. It is not denied that in that pact France assumed obligations in the event of a conflict between Germany and the soviet union which far exceed its mandate arising from the covenant of the league and which compel it to advance against Germany militarily, even when it cannot in so doing fall back upon the recommendation or, in fact, upon any known decision of the league council.

Says France Arrogates Right.

3. It is not denied, therefore, that in such an event France arrogates to itself the right to decide, upon its own authority, as to who is the aggressor.

4. It is, therefore, established that France has assumed obligations toward the soviet union which practically mean that France must, under certain circumstances, act as though neither the league covenant nor the Rhine pact, which makes reference to this covenant, were operative.

This result of the Franco-soviet treaty is not nullified by the fact that France has therein made a reservation of being not obligated to military procedure against Germany in the event of thereby laying itself open to sanction by the guarantor powers, Italy and Britain.

As regards this reservation, the fact is decided that the Rhine pact does not rest alone upon guarantee obligations by Britain and Italy, but primarily upon obligations arising from relationship between France and Germany.

The only question at issue, therefore, is whether France, in undertaking the treaty obligations, kept within the bounds prescribed for it by the Rhine pact in relationship to Germany.

To this, however, Germany must reply in the negative.

The Rhine pact was to bring to realization the aim of securing peace in western Europe by renunciation by Germany, on one side, and France and Belgium, on the other side, of application of military force for all time in their relations to each other.

It took no exception to the treaties with Poland and Czechoslovakia, laid upon the table at Locarno by the representative of France, but it was on the self-evident assumption that these treaties were adapted to the construction of the Rhine pact and contained no provision for handling article XVI of the league covenant, such as that provided for the new Franco-soviet arrangement.

Germany Accepted Reservations.

The contents of those special arrangements, as it became known to the German government, corresponded to this.

The exceptions permitted to the Rhine pact are, to be sure, not expressly focused upon Poland and Czechoslovakia but were formulated abstractly.

The meaning of all negotiations having to do with this point, however, was this: that a compromise was to be found between the Franco-German renunciation of war and the desire of France to retain obligations from pacts already operative.

If, on conclusion of the pact, certain exceptions to this renunciation of war beyond the right of self-defense were conceded, the political reason therefore, as was generally known, lay solely in the fact that France had previously assumed certain obligations of an ally toward Poland and Czechoslovakia which it was unwilling to sacrifice to the idea of absolute safeguarding of peace in the west.

Germany, at that time, agreed to these reservations upon renunciation of war because it has a clear conscience.

If, therefore, France now makes use of the abstract formulation of war possibilities, approved in the Rhine pact, in order now to conclude a new treaty against Germany with a militarily highly armed state; if, thereby, it further and in so decisive a manner narrows down the implications of war renunciation as agreed to with Germany, and if thereby, as above pointed out, it does not even remain within the formal legal limits prescribed, it has thereby created a completely new situation and has destroyed the political system of the Rhine pact, both impliedly and actually.

The last debates and decisions of the French parliament have proved that France is determined, despite the representations made by Germany, to give final effect to the pact with the soviet union; yet diplomatic conversations have developed the fact that France already considers itself bound by the signature to this pact, affixed May 2, 1935.

In the face of such a development in European policy the German reich government cannot remain inactive if it does not want to reject or to renounce the interest the German people have duly entrusted to it.

Calls Treaty Defunct.

In the course of negotiations in recent years the German government has constantly emphasized that it is willing to stick to and to fulfill all obligations arising from the Rhine pact as long as the other contracting partners likewise are willing, on their part, to stand by this pact.

This self-evident presupposition can now be regarded as no longer fulfilled on the part of France.

France has replied to the friendly offers tendered it again and again by Germany and to Germany's assurance of friendship by violating the Rhine pact, and by signing a military alliance directed exclusively against Germany.

Thereby, the Rhine pact of Locarno lost its inner meaning and practically ceased to exist.

Germany, therefore, no longer considers herself bound to this now defunct pact.

The German government is now compelled to meet the new situation which developed from this treaty—a situation aggravated by the fact that the Franco-Soviet treaty finds its complement in the treaty of alliance between Czechoslovakia and the soviet union, which is an exact parallel.

Claims Right to Security.

In the interest of the primitive right of a nation to secure her own borders and to safeguard her possibilities of defense, the German government therefore, beginning today, restituted full unmitigated sovereignty of the reich in the demilitarized zone of the Rhineland.

In order, however, to forestall any misconception of its intention, and in order to pledge the purely defensive character of these measures beyond peradventure doubt, and in order further to give expression to its eternally constant yearning for real pacification of Europe and states having equal rights and enjoying equal respect, the German reich government declares itself willing, on the basis of the following proposals, to enter upon new arrangements for erection of a system of new European peace safeguarding:

1. The German reich government declares its willingness to enter at once upon negotiations with France and Belgium for creation of a bi-lateral demilitarized zone, and in advance, to agree to extend such a proposal to any desired depth of comprehensiveness, provided only there is complete parity.

2. The German reich government proposes, for the sake of securing the inviolability and invulnerability of frontiers in the west, a non-aggression pact concluded between Germany, France and Belgium, whose duration it is ready to fix at 25 years.

3. The German reich government desires to invite England and Italy to sign this pact as guarantor powers.

4. The German reich government is agreeable, in case the Royal Netherlands government so desires and other contracting parties deem it expedient, to have the Netherlands included in this pact system.

Will Sign Air Pact.

5. The German government is ready, for the sake of further strengthening these security measures, to conclude between the western powers an air pact, designed automatically and effectively to forestall the danger of a sudden air attack.

6. The Reich government repeats its offer to conclude non-aggression pacts with states bordering on the east of Germany, and a similar one with Poland.

Seeing that the Lithuanian government in the last few months has subjected its attitude toward the Memel territory to a certain revision, the Reich government takes back the exception which once applied to Lithuania, and declares its readiness to sign a non-aggression pact also with Lithuania, provided the guaranteed autonomy of the Memel territory is effectively carried out.

Now that Germany's equality at last is finally achieved and full sovereignty over the whole Reich territory is re-established, the Reich government regards the principal grounds for its withdrawal from the league of nations removed.

It is ready to reënter the league in expectation that in due course, by amicable negotiation, the question of colonial equality as well as the question of separation of the league of nations covenant from its Versailles basis shall be cleared up.

MUSSOLINI BACKS NAZI DEFIANCE OF LOCARNO TREATY

Italy Refuses to Go to Aid of France.

ROME, March 7.—(AP)—Italy, although a guarantor of the Locarno pact, met the news of Germany's remilitarization of the Rhineland today with the determination to do nothing about it.

Well informed Italians picked up the pieces of the European jigsaw puzzle, swept over Europe by Adolf Hitler's denunciation of the Locarno pact, and reassembled them in what they considered the following key position.

1. Italy will not rush to aid France and England to drive German troops out of the Rhineland zone, even though her obligations under the Locarno pact bind her to do so.

2. There is much doubt in Rome if France and England will invoke the Locarno pact against Germany.

3. If they should, however, Italy can always answer: "Why should we help nations employing sanctions against us?"

The Fascists well recall that the enthusiasm brought about by the Stresa conference—at which England, France, and Italy agreed upon a joint program of action following Hitler's rearmament of Germany last year—had hardly cooled before Britain signed a separate naval accord with Germany.

Italy has long agreed with Germany that the covenant of the league of nations should be separated from the treaty of Versailles, which provided for a demilitarized Rhineland zone.

Fascists generally believed the conditions for Germany's reëntry into the league of nations, laid down today by Hitler, would help secure European peace.

U. S. WILL SPEND BILLION IN 1936 FOR ARMY, NAVY

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—The spending of more than a billion dollars for national defense in the next fiscal year was definitly projected tonight, as a house committee prepared to draft a record naval appropriation bill to add to the army fund already approved by the house.

Hearings on the $549,591,299 navy bill have been completed and the appropriations subcommittee headed by Representative Grover H. Cary [Dem., Ky.] will start work next week drafting the measure which tops last year's appropriation by $67,859,920.

The war department bill carrying $545,226,318, also a peacetime record breaker, is pending in the senate.

Final approval of both measures appeared not unlikely as congress thus far has shown little inclination to skimp on national defense.

The navy appropriations subcommittee was described today as strongly inclined toward airplane construction as a paramount part of the national defense program. The navy bill is expected to carry at least $26,000,000 for building 333 new airplanes.

Germany Frees Prelate After Protest by Vatican

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 7.—The German government today attempted to improve its relations with the Roman Catholic church by releasing the Catholic prelate, Dr. Banasch. He had been in charge of the press department in the office of the bishop of Berlin. The Vatican had protested his continued arrest in most vigorous terms.

ITALY IS READY TO TALK PEACE ON OWN TERMS

Accepts League Parley Bid "in Principle."

ROME, March 7.—(AP)—Flanked by an imposing array of conditions, Italy's reply to the League of Nations' appeal for peace in Ethiopia was dispatched to Geneva today in a tenor bespeaking Premier Mussolini's determination to get what he started after.

First, Italy's peace conversations will be conditioned on the realization by both the league and Emperor Haile Selassie that Italy is in Ethiopia to stay, both in territories already conquered and in others where a semi-mandatory influence will be wielded; the territory where Italy's influence must be felt, it was explained, is "defined by past treaties."

Mailed Fist To Stay.

Second, Italy does not intend to let her African armies stagnate. If Ethiopia wants peace, it must seek it with an eye on the Italian mailed fist.

Il Duce made it plain that "equality" as between Italy and Ethiopia does not exist in the Italian lexicon. Hostilities cannot cease, he said, until Italy's needs and demands are satisfied.

Thus did Mussolini accept "in principle" the appeal of the league of nations for peace in East Africa.

The dictator's demands on which he based any move for ending his campaign of occupation, recently marked by outstanding victories on the northern front, included influence on sections of Ethiopia such as the Lake Tsana district, and areas west, south and southeast of Addis Ababa.

Significant was the point that the Italian conditions include the zone of influence which would have fallen to Italy under the peace proposal formulated by Sir Samuel Hoare, the then British foreign minister, and Pierre Laval, then the French premier.

Ethiopia had accepted the peace proposals of the league of nations committee of 13 without reservation.

[The league asked for consideration of a peace formula, holding in abeyance for the moment the question of imposing additional sanctions against Italy.]

Prior to Mussolini's announcement, informed sources said he would insist existing economic penalties be lifted before peace could be discussed.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander-in-chief of the Italian armies in East Africa, telegraphed today that Tigrean Galla tribesmen continued to harass fleeing armies of the enemy in Shoa province. He added: "One of our bombardment airplanes has flown over Addis Ababa without warlike action."

LEAGUE COMMITTEE PLANS ENFORCEMENT OF AN OIL EMBARGO

GENEVA, March 7.—(AP)—Unperturbed by exciting developments in the international situation, the subcommittee of league of nations oil experts finished a draft of its recommendations for enforcement of a possible oil embargo against Italy today.

The committee spent the entire day framing the oil sanction plan, finishing the task at 8 p. m. Their recommendations provide:

1. Prohibition of all sales of petroleum or petroleum derivatives to Italy.

2. Prohibition of sales of tankers to nonsanctionist nations with the proviso that this recommendation not apply to tankers under charter by American oil companies before the embargo would become effective.

3. Penalties for those nations which violate provisions of an oil embargo.

669 MICHIGAN AVENUE NORTH

FRENCH TROOPS MAN FORTS ON GERMAN BORDER

Paris Calls on League to Punish Hitler.

nounced after a two hour conference of French ministers in the foreign office this evening—the second ministerial consultation of the day.

Flandin Reads Communique.

After the meeting Flandin read to assembled newspaper men what turned out to be one of the bitterest communiques ever issued by a government in peace time. Starting out with a résumé of recent negotiations between France and Germany, the communique led up to the flat accusation of treachery against Germany for having sprung the Locarno denunciation at the very moment she had agreed to negotiate with France for a treaty of friendship.

"On March 2 Reichsfuehrer Hitler promised he would negotiate a treaty of friendship," the communique said. "Francois Poncet, French ambassador to Berlin, visited reichsfuehrer when the first steps of the treaty of friendship were discussed. He was told by the reichsfuehrer that a study was being made of the best way to insure Franco-German understanding. The next thing we knew was Hitler's announcement this morning."

Flandin then announced he considered German remilitarization of the Rhineland a "hostile act."

Britain Stays Out of Row.

Despite the bitter attack on Germany in the communique and the seemingly strong step in asking the league to apply sanctions against the reich, it appeared that Hitler has gotten away with his coup.

To swing the league against Germany, France needs both Britain and Italy. Although Sir George Clerk, the British ambassador, had a long talk with Flandin this afternoon, no satisfaction has yet been obtained from London and it does not appear that Britain is going to lift a finger about Germany's action.

As for Italy, the French are basing all their hopes on the belief that now Premier Mussolini has accepted the league's peace appeal, the quarrel between Britain and Italy will cease and the Stresa front again can be patched up.

See French Disillusioned.

The best informed diplomatic opinion here is that the French are in for bitter disillusionment. Mussolini, it is said, can be bought, but at a price of leaving him a free hand in Africa and the dropping of sanctions against Italy. This the British will not swallow. As for applying sanctions against Germany without Italian support, the Italians just laugh up their sleeve.

Whoever loses the conflict between Germany and France, the Italians are now convinced that Mussolini is going to win.

However much the French were shrieking tonight, it looks like all this is going to end in the French just having the memory of "another injustice" to nourish without being able to do anything about it.

The French, observers declared, have been let down by their British allies on whom they were counting and are divided among themselves so they can do nothing.

It was interesting to note how, as the day advanced, warlike sentiment diminished. Early in the day there was a considerable amount of saber rattling especially in the lobby of the senate. In the first ministerial consultation only the influence of the two generals, Maurin and Gamelin, prevented Minister of Communications Mandel's thesis of vigorous action—war if necessary—from prevailing. But that kind of talk died down.

It seems that France's bitter communique attacking Germany and the plan to denounce the reich before the league cuts off all possibility of a friendly accord with Hitler without really taking any steps to stop him.

That should leave the European mess just where it was before, except that the guns of the German and French fortresses will be rubbing muzzles across the frontier as in 1914.

The Rhineland; A Doughboy's Elysium Back in Days of 1919

The Rhineland, remilitarized yesterday by Adolf Hitler's Nazis, comprises in a political sense the Prussian province called "Rhein Provinz" and adjacent parts of Hesse-Nassau, the Free State of Hesse and the Free State of Baden.

It lies along both sides of the Rhine river, north of the Saar basin, south of the Netherlands and east of Belgium and Luxembourg.

The principal cities in the area are Cologne, Coblenz, Krefeld, and Aachen. The general region includes some 9,500 square miles with a population of approximately 7,920,000 persons.

In 1914 it was through the Rhineland that the troops of Kaiser Wilhelm invaded Belgium.

Doughboy's Elysium.

The Rhine valley became a doughboy's elysium for 200,000 American troops back in 1919.

The "Ameroca" as they were called, moved into Coblenz under command of Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen shortly after the armistice was signed. Headquarters were set up in Ehrenbreitstein castle on a high promontory overlooking the river.

The troops' early grumbling at not being sent right back to the United States quickly turned to complaisant sighs as the weary doughboys found the climate delightful, food first rate, discipline at a minimum, and the paymaster most regular in his visits.

Many Wed German Girls.

The German inhabitants of the district were most friendly to the Americans and many a fräulein became a doughboy's "missus."

By October, 1919, however, the number of Americans still "occupying" the Rhine had dropped to 21,445 and a little later the force was fixed at 15,000. Two years later this number was halved and in March, 1922, President Harding ordered every American soldier evacuated to the United States.

The last of the American army of the Rhine boarded box cars Jan. 10, 1923, to start for home.

Versailles Treaty Edict.

Demilitarization of the Rhineland was decreed by three paragraphs in the Versailles treaty.

Article 42—Germany is forbidden to maintain or construct any fortifications either on the left bank of the Rhine or on the right bank to the west of a line drawn fifty kilometers to the east of the Rhine.

Article 43—In the area defined above the maintenance and the assembly of armed forces, either permanently or temporarily, and military maneuvers of any kind, as well as the upkeep of permanent works for mobilization, are in the same way forbidden.

Violates Locarno Pact.

Article 44—In case Germany violates in any manner whatever the provisions of Articles 42 and 43 she shall be regarded as committing a hostile act against the powers signatory of the present treaty and as calculated to disturb the peace of the world.

The Locarno pact is a series of diplomatic instruments for peace and arbitration, drawn up at Locarno in 1925, by which Germany, Belgium, France, Great Britain, and Italy guaranteed western European peace.

The treaty of mutual guarantee provided that the parties pledged the inviolability of the German-Belgian and German-French frontiers as fixed by the treaty of Versailles, undertook never to attack each other and to settle disputes by arbitration.

The evacuation of the occupied Rhinelands by the allies followed as a result of conclusion of the pact.

U. S. SPECTATOR ONLY IN HITLER MOVE IN EUROPE

Government Is Silent on Germany's Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7—[Special.]—The United States tonight stood coolly aloof on the sidelines as an interested spectator of the developments following the swift stroke of Reichfuehrer Adolf Hitler in shattering the last vestiges of the Versailles treaty.

In official quarters it was said that this government will take no part in any negotiations or controversy resulting from the denunciation of the Locarno pact and reoccupation of the Rhineland. No official statement was made by the state department, however.

U. S. Not Legally Involved.

It was pointed out that the United States in its separate treaty of peace with Germany did not subscribe to part three of the Versailles treaty affecting political adjustments in Europe. For this reason this country is not legally involved by Germany's action, it was explained.

While the action brought discussion of the possibility of war, Dr. Hans Luther, German ambassador and the man who signed the Locarno pact for Germany, said that the action was motivated by a desire to establish a broader basis of peace in Europe.

Dr. Luther, who was reich chancellor at the signing of the pact in 1925 said the denunciation enlarges the real spirit of the original Locarno. Germany, he said, denounced the Locarno pact because France violated it in concluding a military alliance with soviet Russia.

"That point has been violated by the Franco-Russian military alliance," he said. "There is no doubt that it is a military alliance as numerous neutral observers have said.

Thus the basic idea of Locarno is destroyed. Germany had warned other nations again and again that she would observe Locarno as long as other nations do.

"When it was clear that France had not observed the pact, all that Germany could do was to terminate the agreement."

Confident of Understanding.

The ambassador expressed the hope that Germany's action would benefit relations with the United States in saying, "It is my belief that this solidification of peace in Europe will be favorable to the peace of the world and, since the United States is such an important part of the world, benefit the United States."

2,732 Italian Troops Sail on 2 Ships for East Africa

NAPLES, March 7.—(AP)—The steamers Sardenga and California sailed for East Africa today carrying 2,600 Italian soldiers, 132 officers, 20 nurses, and several hundred sailors and technicians.

G. W. BORG FIGHTS FOR CUSTODY OF YOUNG GRANDSON

Mother, 19, Unfit, Charges Wealthy Inventor.

A fight over the custody of George Marshall Borg Jr., 15 months old, grandson of George W. Borg, wealthy manufacturer and inventor, was disclosed in a hearing yesterday before Judge Michael Feinberg in the Circuit court.

The hearing was on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by the grandfather, seeking custody of the child from his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Anita Borg, 19 years old. According to the petition, she resided in the Borg home in Lake Delavan, Wis., with her husband, George Marshall Borg, 21 years old, until last Wednesday when she left him and came to Chicago with the child.

Named Guardian in Wisconsin.

In his petition the elder Borg charged that the mother is unfit to care for the baby and asserted that in a hearing in the County court at Elkhorn, Wis., last June 19 he was appointed legal guardian for the boy.

The petition charges further that the parents of the child are without funds to care for the baby and that the younger Borg desires his father to have custody of his son.

After a brief hearing yesterday during which the elder Borg appeared and the mother was represented by Attorney Samuel A. Rinella, Judge Feinberg issued the writ directing the mother and child to appear in his court tomorrow morning for a hearing. Attorney Rinella said the mother was "in hiding" in the city but promised she would appear with the baby.

Wants to Insure Good Care.

The elder Borg explained that his motive in seeking custody of the child is to see that the boy is properly cared for. "What is mine is my son's and my grandson's," he said. He declared that his appointment as legal guardian was made when it was shown that he was supporting his son and his son's family and for the best interest of the baby.

Borg declared he had "paced the floor for several nights because of anxiety over the infant" and that he had offered the mother the use of any of his homes or an apartment in the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Attorney Rinella said his client would contest the action brought by the grandfather. He charged that the mother had been induced to sign the guardianship papers against her will on the promise that Borg would establish a large estate for his grandson.

Mother's Version Given.

Rinella declared that the mother complained that the elder Borg interfered with her in caring for the boy.

IN CUSTODY FIGHT

Mrs. Anita Borg and George Marshall Borg Jr.

The attorney said that his client was planning to file a suit for separate maintenance from her husband. The couple were married in Chicago Jan. 24, 1934, after a courtship that began at Colorado Springs, according to the attorneys.

The elder Borg, who resides at 900 Lake Shore drive, is chairman of the board of the Borg-Warner corporation, 310 South Michigan avenue. His son is employed as head of the scale department of the corporation.

RENO DIVORCE GIVEN TO WIFE OF COUNT SALM

Reno, Nev., March 7.—(AP)—The Countess Maud Coster Salm-Hoogstraeten, member of a prominent New York family, obtained an uncontested divorce from Count Otto Salm-Hoogstraeten here today.

They were married in New York City May 26, 1916, and have two children, Louise, 19, and Henry, 16. Property rights and custody of the children have been determined in a separation agreement dated last Dec. 19.

Otto is the brother of Ludwig Salm-Hoogstraeten, first husband of the former Millicent Rogers.

COURT ENJOINS U.S. ELECTRICITY FOR KNOXVILLE

Guffey Coal Law Attacked in Another Case.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—The New Deal received two blows in courts here today. In one case its efforts to project the government into competition with private business was halted by a court order. A vigorous attack was made in the other litigation on the constitutionality of the Guffey coal control act.

Plans to furnish TVA power to the city of Knoxville, Tenn., under a project to be financed with PWA funds were blocked by a temporary restraining order issued by the District of Columbia Supreme court.

Tennessee Concern Wins.

The order was granted on the petition of the Tennessee Public Service company which contended its $1,000,000 investment in Knoxville would be rendered practically worthless, if the government brought cheaper power into the city.

The restraining order, signed by Justice F. Dickinson Letts, forbid the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Public Works Administration from proceeding with the Knoxville project, pending a full hearing. The date for that hearing has not yet been set.

The petitioners' suit said the government proposed to finance the construction of an electric distribution system in Knoxville and the installation of transmission lines connecting the system with sources of TVA power. Approximately $2,600,000 of PWA funds were to be used.

The Tennessee Public Service company directed its suit against Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and David E. Lilienthal, director of TVA.

Attack on Guffey Law.

In the Guffey coal case sixty-six producers of soft coal told the District of Columbia Supreme court that the control act is unconstitutional in its entirety. That challenge was made on the ground the Guffey law invades rights of the states and that it deprives producers of property without due process of law.

The producers' brief was filed immediately after the state of Pennsylvania joined with New Mexico and Indiana in the contention that federal action was the only means by which the bituminous industry could be regulated.

The producers' brief was filed by John W. Davis, 1924 Democratic presidential candidate and a critic of the New Deal.

The producers' attorneys argued that "the act is wholly void for the reason that it is not confined in operation and effect to directions in or directly affecting interstate commerce." They also asserted that the law "by its arbitrary, unreasonable, and capricious terms deprives producers of liberty and property without due process of law."

"To subject a producer to a system of rigid price fixing," the brief further contended, "which ignores even the existence of competition from the source and of the kinds above mentioned, and ignores the long continued method of selling coal, is arbitrary and confiscatory in that it deprives him of that freedom of contract necessary for the proper conduct of his business, and its continued existence."

The producers argued that much of the coal mined in each individual state is sold directly within that state and does not move in interstate channels. In many instances, it charged, many industrial plants, large consumers of coal, are located close to mines because of the easily available supply.

Such coal, the brief asserted, does not affect interstate commerce because the coal so used does not compete with coal produced in other states.

It charged that the operation of the law would confiscate the property of some high-cost producers and that was anticipated when the act was drawn.

Fights Price Fixing.

Attacking the price fixing provisions of the law, the brief charged that a "fundamental vice" in the provision is that "the minimum price at which a single producer is required to sell is based not upon his conditions and his own costs and quality but upon the conditions and costs of a vast number of other producers."

The brief filed by Pennsylvania joined in the contention of the states of New Mexico and Indiana that states have no power to regulate the coal industry, and that regulation through pacts or agreements between the states would be impracticable.

The test case will be argued Wednesday. The Pennsylvania brief was signed by Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, and Deputy Attorney Generals Grover C. Ladner and Edward Friedman.

ICE CAKES PARALYZE RIVER TRAFIC

Blame Warm Days

Warm weather of the last ten days was responsible, coast guardsmen said yesterday, for the jam of large ice cakes in the south channel of the Chicago river. The ice broke up in the basin at the mouth of the river and drifted inland. Fishing tugs and other small river craft were unable to break through yesterday. One tug, the Evelyn J., was stuck in the ice.

NINE MILLIONS SEEK JOBS, U. S. SURVEY SHOWS

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—Nearly nine million persons were seeking jobs on Jan. 1 through government employment agencies.

This was disclosed today by a labor department survey, which also showed the number had increased by 2,241,000 since last June 30.

Officials explained that a large part of the increase from 6,713,047 to 8,954,047 was due to an order directing all employable persons in families on relief to register with the employment service.

The total registered on Jan. 1 included 3,500,000 persons holding down work relief jobs. A primary aim of the employment service is to place applicants in jobs with private enterprises.

Officials contended the number seeking employment could not be used with any degree of accuracy in estimating the number of unemployed in the country.

On one hand they said, not all the unemployed have registered with the agencies. On the other, many have registered who would not want jobs in normal times and who therefore would not be classed among unemployed workers.

HORSE SHIES; POLICEMAN HURT.

Traffic Policeman Maurice Murphy, 38 years old, 6054 Irving Park boulevard, incurred a fractured leg yesterday when his horse shied at a piece of paper in front of 192 North Wells street, stumbled, and fell on him.

ARTHUR CUTTEN, GRAIN TRADER, SERIOUSLY ILL

Fact Disclosed by Income Tax Negotiations.

Arthur W. Cutten, wealthy grain trader, is seriously ill of heart disease in his suite at the Drake hotel. His illness was disclosed yesterday by his lawyers, Orville J. Taylor and Francis X. Busch, in the course of a conference with United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe on Mr. Cutten's income tax affairs. These affairs are being investigated by the federal grand jury.

Mr. Taylor's comment on his client's health was confirmed by Dr. Arthur F. Byfield. Last November, Mr. Cutten, who is 65 years old, was stricken with double pneumonia and was taken to Passavant hospital. After a month's treatment, he was able to return to his hotel apartment to convalesce.

Overtaxed by Holidays.

According to Dr. Byfield, however, the excitement of Christmas day seemed to overtax Mr. Cutten, and largely because of his weakened condition, he was stricken with heart disease. He is now under a nurse's care day and night.

"Mr. Cutten is responding satisfactorily to treatment," Dr. Byfield declared, "but his condition still is very serious. The heart condition is his worst enemy at present."

The tax matters discussed yesterday concern the government's allegation that Cutten owes $1,242,000 in taxes and penalties on his income for the years 1929, 1930, and 1933. Prosecutor Igoe contends that Cutten made large deductions for market losses, which in reality were profits.

Participants in Discussion.

At the three hour conference were Mr. Igoe, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Busch; A. P. Madden, chief of the intelligence unit of the treasury department; his assistant, Fred S. Peabody; Howard G. Campbell, special assistant to the attorney general; and E. Riley Campbell, in charge of income tax prosecutions in the district attorney's office.

"It was just a fishing expedition on both sides which failed to develop anything," said Mr. Igoe in describing the conference. "Mr. Busch and Mr. Taylor asked what would be the procedure in submitting a compromise offer. I told them they might compromise both civil and criminal actions by submitting a sum in settlement to the attorney general. We agreed to confer again on Monday."

"By agreement with Mr. Igoe," declared Mr. Taylor, "it was decided nothing would be given out about the discussions in the conference."

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—A speeding auto smashed into an underpass at Interborough parkway, near Cypress Hill road, Queens, early today, bringing death to two young women and two men en route home from a Queens restaurant. Another man and another girl were critically injured.

The dead: Mrs. Helen Lansh, 26, an attractive blonde, of Manhattan; John Balsko, 19, of Brooklyn; Robert J. Eddy, 34, a foreman of the Foster Canning company at Middle Village, Queens. An unidentified blackhaired woman of about 30.

"I remember Helen telling the driver to go faster," said Mrs. Claire Segar, 21, of Manhattan, the only survivor able to talk.

"The car speeded up. I don't remember anything else."

U. S. TAX RETURNS ARE 11,900 MORE THAN LAST YEAR

Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, yesterday reported an increase of 11,900 income tax returns filed so far this year as compared to the corresponding period last year. The returns filed to date totaled 58,000, with payments of $1,146,517, against 46,200 with payments of $735,947 for the same time in 1935. Nearly 3,000 taxpayers appeared in person yesterday at the internal revenue offices, while 5,700 returns were received by mail. The deadline for filing returns is March 16.

Ex-Singer Is Late 2d Time at Murder Trial; Rebuked

East St. Louis, Ill., March 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Peggy Nash, 30, former Chicago night club singer on trial for the slaying of her husband, was rebuked today for the second time for arriving late at the courtroom. She arrived 50 minutes late Friday and was 25 minutes tardy today.

CALLS PORTO RICO RAIDS WINSHIP'S 'ACT OF REVENGE'

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 7.—(AP)—Pedro Albizu Campos, Porto Rican Nationalist leader, filed a statement with the District court today alleging that Gov. Blanton Winship had ordered the homes of Nationalists searched because the chief executive had been called as a defense witness in a murder trial. The sworn statement by Albizu was made in connection with the case of Dionisio Pearson, charged with murder.

[Albizu and six of his followers were arrested Thursday for an alleged conspiracy to overthrow the insular United States government by force. They were later released on $10,000 bond each.]

As lawyer for Pearson, Albizu said the governor ordered the search as an act of vengeance and that it was Winship's firm intention not to appear as a witness at the trial because he considers the defense counsel a traitor. Further, Albizu declared, Winship ordered destroyers and military planes sent to the island and sought to displace the present regiment of Porto Ricans with a brigade of marines.

In reply to a statement by Secretary of the Interior Ickes at Washington, D. C., that "Campos is a dangerous man," Albizu said that "Ickes is a dangerous man for the government of the United States."

CRISIS BEFORE NATION TOLD BY OTIS GLENN

Illinois Candidate Is Michigan Speaker.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 7.—[Special.]—The coming national election is the greatest crisis in American history since the civil war, Otis F. Glenn declared here tonight.

Mr. Glenn, former Republican senator from Illinois and a candidate for the nomination again, said the voters must decide whether they will follow the New Dealers through another four years of repudiation of campaign pledges or will rally to the Republican party in its platform to end regimentation, burocracy, and soaring taxes.

Mr. Glenn was the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Republican leaders of the third congressional district. He addressed one of the largest G. O. P. gatherings in the lower peninsula of Michigan in the last ten years.

Face Critical Period.

"We meet tonight in one of the most critical peacetime periods of the republic," he said. "Seldom, except in time of war has America faced the future with less certainty, less faith, less confidence, or with more doubt and confusion. The American voter faces an epoch in his life, a crisis for his country. Not since the civil war has greater importance depended on his decision.

"Labor is unemployed, doubtful, desperate. Capital is dismayed, hesitant, afraid. Agriculture, under this administration, until the AAA was declared unconstitutional, has been overwhelmed by the arbitrary rule of the government, joining with the arbitrary rule of the elements, to devastate the farms upon which forty million people live and to destroy the foodstuffs upon which one hundred and twenty-five million Americans depend for sustenance.

"What will the future be? No longer can the magic of a charming personality—an alluring radio voice—a cheery word—a courageous and intrepid, if not indeed a rash and impetuous spirit—soothe and calm the American people with the assurance that something will be done, that some action will be taken, that this administration is one of trial and error."

Burocracy in Saddle.

Mr. Glenn then reviewed the planks in the 1932 Democratic platform. He showed how the "solemn covenants" have not been fulfilled; how, rather, burocracy has held sway. More money has been spent in this administration, he said, than in all the administrations from that of George Washington to Woodrow Wilson.

"Instead of balancing the budget," he declared, "the deficits have become so great that the former director of the budget resigned because he could not further stultify himself by remaining with the administration. Our government, for the first time in history, I believe, has set up two separate sets of books, so that the many enormous expenditures will appear as extraordinary expenditures . . . and the deficit will be reduced.

"The 1932 platform further solemnly promised the removal of the government from all forms of private enterprise, except where necessary to develop public works and natural resources in the common interest. This solemn covenant not only has not been carried out, but it has been substantially and repeatedly violated.

"Naturally those of us who believe in our system of government are disturbed and concerned by the occurrences of the last two years," he said.

Republican Party Needed.

"And so, I say, the Republican party is needed now because strange voices and strange theories occupy the national capitol—dreamers, theorists, impractical planners, inexperienced economists sit in high places in the government, invested with much power, constantly reaching out for more, constantly seeking to influence the highest power in the government to wholly abandon the processes which have made America great and free, and to substitute therefor the wild experiments which have failed in every country where they were tried, and have subtracted from, rather than added to, the liberties, the privileges, the freedom of the peoples of such countries."

JOEL LAY MADE STATE WPA MUSIC DIRECTOR; TELLS SYMPHONY PLAN

Joel Lay, according to an announcement yesterday, is now WPA director of music projects for Illinois. Until Thursday he was regional music director for Illinois, Wisconsin, and Missouri, but each state in which music projects are under way is to have a music director. A. Ivar Coleman, former Illinois director, will become supervisor of the WPA symphony orchestra.

In his new post yesterday, Mr. Lay said that the symphony will inaugurate a series of concerts in Thorne hall of Northwestern university's McKinlock campus next Sunday evening. Max Bendix will conduct and Ida Krehm, young pianist, will be the soloist.

About 1,000 musicians are being given WPA employment in Illinois, 450 of them in Chicago, Lay said. Most are being paid $94 monthly. The director said that he had been ordered by Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins not to place any more persons on the rolls, due to the recent order designed to cut down the WPA. The music and theater WPA offices have been moved to 343 South Dearborn street.

AL SMITH WILL HAVE FREE REIN AT CONVENTION

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—Democratic party chieftains intend to allow Alfred E. Smith to have his day in court at the party's convention in Philadelphia next June. That was the word today from James A. Farley, democratic national chairman.

The party's high command expects Smith to be elected as a delegate from New York. No effort will be made to keep him out of the convention if he presents proper credentials, it was said.

The administration also was represented as believing that no effort should be made to throttle the former New York governor, once he was seated.

Party chieftains expect President Roosevelt to dominate the convention so thoroughly that anything Smith might say against the New Deal would have no telling effect.

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL.

Samuel Sheets, 65 years old, who formerly resided at 935 West Van Buren street, died of a heart attack yesterday at 20th street and Indiana avenue.

NEW ROOSEVELT TAXATION PLAN HIT BY CHAMBER

Early Passage Predicted by House Leader.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States today attacked President Roosevelt's proposed corporate earnings tax as "a revolutionary plan of income taxation which would use a revenue measure to impose reform of important financial practices of business management."

"Whether the proposal of the President is considered as a political strategem, as a business reform or as a defensible effort to produce new revenues, or a combination of these, business awaits with trepidation the tax deliberations of the ways and means committee and decisions of congress upon expenditures," the chamber reported.

Meanwhile speaker of the house, Joseph W. Byrns, predicted victory for the President's suggestions, with the passage of the bill by the house "early in April." This forecast was concurred in by Democratic members of the ways and means subcommittee, which has been conferring with treasury experts on the details of drafting a bill along the lines suggested by the President, including a graduated income tax, averaging around 33⅓ per cent, on undistributed corporation earnings.

However, there were increasing demands that the proposal be modified to the extent of permitting corporations to set aside reserves to serve as a "cushion" in periods of depression. The most popular suggestion among the house Democrats is that corporations be permitted to allocate 10 to 20 per cent of their earnings for their reserves, such earnings to be taxed a flat rate of perhaps 16 per cent.

Would Repeal Present Tax.

Under existing law corporations pay a graduated income tax ranging from 12½ per cent on less than $2,000 to 15½ per cent on more than $40,000. The President proposes, however, to repeal this tax, as well as the capital stock and excess profits taxes.

The President's proposal of a tax on undistributed earnings is becoming increasingly popular with house Democrats as they study its implications. Faced with a campaign this fall they look upon the proposal as the answer to a politician's dream—a tax with supposedly large revenue possibilities without, at the same time, having to broaden the income tax base and soak the small salary earners.

Oppose Processing Levies.

On the other hand considerable opposition to the President's suggestion of new processing taxes, at lower rates but affecting many more commodities than the old ones, was developing. Many of the Democrats are hopeful that the new corporation taxes will yield sufficient revenue without imposing the special processing taxes, from which the President hoped to collect 122 million to 180 million dollars a year.

The ways and means committee held no meeting today but will continue its deliberations with treasury officials on Monday, with the hope of drafting a bill by the end of the week.

When the bill is introduced, the full committee will hold public hearings. The senate finance committee also will conduct hearings when the house draft is ready.

U. S. CASH BUILDING SOUTH'S SWEATSHOPS, HOSIERY UNION SAYS

Philadelphia, Pa., March 7.—(AP)—The national executive board of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers adopted a resolution today. It urged congress to investigate the alleged subsidizing of "sweat shops" with federal funds.

"We have discovered," John Edelman, the federation's research director said, "certain southern communities are contracting with nonunion garment and hosiery companies to erect manufacturing plants with WPA funds in complete defiance of the law."

The house labor committee, Edelman said, will be asked to stop "this illegal practice" and to investigate the "striking collapse of voluntary code standards in southern states."

POORHOUSE INMATE PAYS HIS WAY AND HAS A PROFIT OF $748

New Lexington, O., March 7.—(AP)—A paying guest at Perry county's poorhouse, his guardian said today, has balanced his books for 1935 and found a $748 profit.

Six years ago when investigators removed Leonard Glidden, a farmer, to the county home after the death of his wife, they found $4,000 hoarded away in his home—musty, crumpled banknotes stuffed in old tin cans.

Glidden became a ward of the home and his money was invested.

Glidden pays Perry county a dollar a day for living expenses and spends a little more for incidentals. He rejects all offers to provide him with a different home.

Former Maryland Senator Says He'll Bolt Roosevelt

Baltimore, Md., March 7.—[Special.]—Former United States Senator William Cabell Bruce, a Democrat, announced today that he would vote for the Republican candidate in November's presidential election. It will be the second time he has cast his ballot for a Republican candidate for President, he said. The first time was in 1896 when he worked for the defeat of Bryan. Mr. Bruce served one term in the senate, from 1923 to 1929.

ESTABLISHED MORE THAN 62 YEARS AGO—IN 1874

FALSE LIBERALS RULE NATION, SAYS HERBERT HOOVER

HALT NEW DEAL GRIP ON TRADE, HE URGES G. O. P.

Assails Dictators Before Colorado League.

"It was not long since we fought a great war to 'make the world safe for democracy.' Hardly four years ago we accepted freedom as we accepted the air we breathed. No man thought our ideals were endangered in his lifetime. Yet now men freely propose how much of liberty we shall sacrifice. Certainly your freedom and your opportunities in life are being mortgaged.

"Naturally I have been interested in the New Deal replies since I began discussion of these crucial issues. The President said on Jan. 3, 1936: 'We have been specific in our affirmative action. Let them be specific in their negative attack.' I have tried to be obliging.

"But they have made no answer to facts or chapters or verses given in proofs. They, however, are not taciturn as to personal remarks. I did note that one of the New Deal spokesmen in this debate seeks to justify the violation of their platform promises by claiming that I did not hold to our platform promises. There were 39 promises in the Republican platform of 1928. Of these, thirty-seven were carried out even in depression by my administration. And those fulfilled promises included upholding the constitution and the preservation of national honor. Two secondary promises broke against the obstinacy of a Democratic congress.

"I leave research into their platform promises to well-known Democratic leaders. The examination of spilt milk is of importance. It shows that certain people cannot be safely entrusted with the jug.

"The New Deal was not included in the Democratic platform of 1932. But the interpretation of political forces does not rest alone upon platforms.

Predictions Come True.

"It rests also upon a knowledge of the motives and aims of men and the forces they represent. Eight days before that election I stated that the real intention of these men was to tinker with the currency. I said their program would raise government expenditures to nine billion a year. I said it was their intention to put the government into business. I said it was their intention to undermine state and local government by centralization in Washington. I said it was their intention to regiment our people and undermine the American system with imported European philosophies. That was all vociferously denied. All those interpretations have come true except as to that nine billion—it was 95 per cent correct.

"During the last few months I have made some further interpretations of where we are now headed. I hear again from the New Deal spokesman the old catcalls of 1932—'creating fear,' 'creating fear.'

"For many years I have studied the tactics and techniques in European countries by which liberty has been dethroned and dictatorship erected by men greedy for power.

Blame Placed Wrongfully.

"First they ascribed the tragic miseries of the times not to the great war, where it belongs, but to some party or class. The great phrases born from the finest emotion of mankind were used to camouflage the greed for power. They made great promises. They demanded violent action against human ills that are only slowly curable. They claimed that sporadic wickedness in high places had permeated the whole system of liberty. They shouted new destructive slogans and phrases day by day to inflame the people.

"They implanted unreasoning hates in the souls of men. They first grasped at power through elections which liberty provided. Then began the 'must emergency instruments of power,' to save the nation. The first demands were powers of dictation over industry and agriculture and finance and labor. Legislatures were reduced to rubber stamps. Honest debate was shut off in the halls of deliberation. A powerful government propaganda was put on the taxpayer's bill, that hates and suspicions could be further inflamed. And all of these men insisted that civilization had begun all over again when they came to power.

"In the final stages of European degeneration liberty died from the waters of her own well. That was when the waters of free speech were poisoned by untruth. Then have followed the last steps to dictatorship, with suppression of freedom of speech, freedom of worship, of the courts, and all other freedoms. Men were goose-stepped in a march to the middle ages.

New Deal Apes Europe.

"Whether they knew it or not, the New Deal has imitated the intellectual and vocal technique of typical European revolution. In the talking and legislative stages they made some progress. You will recollect also the claim that even civilization came to a dead stop on March 4, 1933.

"But America has not reached these final stages. Thanks to a people of a great heritage, to the press and the radio, free speech still lives in America. I intend to use a little more of it tonight.

"My remarks tonight are addressed in large measure to the younger generation. It is you who will have to bear these increased burdens. It is you and your children whose opportunities are being limited.

"But far beyond that, our immense objectives upon which depend the welfare of mankind require the faith, the idealism, the courage of youth that they shall not fail. This is more than an acceptance or a rejection of the collectivist ideas and blunders of the New Deal. You must carry forward. The problems of today are different from those of three years ago or ten years ago.

"But what sort of an America do we want? What should be our foundations? What should be our ideals?

"Perhaps without immodesty I can claim to have had some experience in American life. I have lived all kinds of it. I have seen it in contrast with many countries. I lived my early boyhood on an Iowa farm. I lived it later as the ward of a country doctor in Oregon, I lived among those to whom hard work was the price of existence. The opportunities of America opened to me the public schools. They carried me to professional training of an American university. I began by working with my hands for my daily bread.

"I have tasted the despair of fruitless search for a job. I know now there was an economic depression either coming or going at that time. Nobody told me of it. So I did not have the additional worry of what the government would do about it.

"But I have lived the problems of labor both as a workman and with the men who had to find the pay roll. I have lived in the administration of industry with its problems of production and the well-being of men.

Hope of the World.

"My profession took me into many foreign lands under many kinds of government, both of free men and of tyrannies. I saw the squalor of Asia, the frozen class barriers of Europe. I was not a tourist. I was associated with their working lives and problems. I had to deal with their social systems and their governments. And everywhere to the common people America was the hope of the world.

"Every yearly homecoming was again to me a proof of the glory of America. I was each time refreshed by the sight of its less grinding poverty, of its greater kindliness and its greater spread of opportunity to the common man. It was more than that. It was land of self-respect that comes alone from freedom of the spirit.

"I participated on behalf of America in a great war. I saw untold misery and revolution. I have seen liberty die and tyranny rise. I learned of its unending calamities.

"I have been repeatedly placed by my countrymen where I had need to deal with the hurricanes of social and economic destruction which swept the world. I have had every honor that any man could want and I have seen the worst misery that men can produce.

Believes in Liberty.

"These experiences with all these mighty forces which influence the destiny of humanity make for humility of conclusions, and I recount all this to give emphasis to one great conviction.

"I believe in the American system of liberty. I believe in it from thousands of experiences. I believe that upon its foundations is the one hope of the common man. It has faults. But it contains the only real ferment of progress.

"There are other systems of liberty. But at the heart of our American system is imbedded a great ideal unique in the world. That is the ideal there shall be an opportunity in life, and equal opportunity, for every boy and girl, every man and woman. It holds that they have the chance to rise to any position to which their character and ability may entitle them. That ideal is limited or ended if this nation is to be goose-stepped from Washington.

"About every outstanding advance which has prompted the welfare of mankind in the last century has been born in countries of free men and women. The steam engine, electricity, radio, free schooling, the great advances in biology are but part of them. I might include the adding machine, but its present use by the New Deal raises doubts as to its contribution to the welfare of mankind.

Origin of Mistakes.

"On the other hand, almost every one of the world's mistakes has its origin in personal government. Violation of treaties, great wars, persecution of the Jews and other religionists, and so on down to the fantastic laws by a must congress, and the slaughter of pigs.

"American young men and women should have the right to plan, to live their lives with just one limitation—that they shall not injure their neighbors. What they want of government is to keep the channels of opportunity open and equal, not to block them and then charge them for doing it.

"They want rewards to the winners in the race. They do not want to be planed down to a pattern. To red blooded men and women there is a joy of work and joy in the battle of competition. There is the daily joy of doing something worth while, of proving one's worth, of telling every evil person where he can go. There is the joy of championing justice to the weak and downtrodden. These are the battles which create the national fiber of self-reliance and self-respect. That is what made America. If you concentrate all adventure in the government it does not leave much constructive joy for the governed.

"In economic life there is but one hope of increased security and comfort for the common men, of opportunity for all. That is to adopt every labor saving device, every discovery, every idea to reduce waste and the cost of producing goods. We must work our machines heartlessly but not our men. Thereby goods can be sold cheaper and more people can buy. That is the only sure road to a job for every man. It is the only road to restored employment.

"That production of a plenty can spring alone from the initiative and enterprise of free men. That is no system of robbery. It is action for the common service. That is destroyed at once by the grotesque notion that government shall limit production.

"We cannot operate this world of machines and men without leadership. Competent leadership can come only by the rise of men and women in a free society by the impulse of their own ambition, character, and abilities. That leadership cannot come by birth, or by wealth, or be nursed like queen bees. That leadership cannot be chosen by burocrats. It comes from the ambition of free men and women against the polishing wheels of competition.

"It comes in a system of rewards. America should not be divided into the 'haves' and the 'have nots,' but into the 'doers' and the 'do nots.'

Must Pull Laggards.

"There are those who scoff at individual liberty as of no consequence to the poor or unemployed. Yet it is alone through the creative impulses of free and confident spirits that redemption of their suffering must come. It is through them alone that social security can be attained. Our job is not to pull down the great majority but to pull up those who lag behind.

"And at once we come to the relation of government to economic life. I have discussed many of its phases elsewhere. On this occasion time permits me to refer only to the relations of government to business. For in this field lies a large part of the choice that youth must make.

"We have three alternatives:

"First: Unregulated business.

"Second: Government regulated business, which I believe is the American system.

"Third: Government dictated business, whether by dictation to business or by government in business. This is the New Deal choice. These ideas are dipped from cauldrons of European Fascism or socialism.

Tools of Oppression.

"While some gentlemen may not agree, we may dismiss any system of unregulated business. We know from experience that the vast tools of technology and mechanical power can be seized for purposes of oppression. They have been used to limit production and to strangle competition and opportunity. We can no more have economic power without checks and balances than we can have political power without checks and balances. Either one leads to tyranny.

"And there must be regulation of the trafic even when it is honest. We have too many people and too many devices to allow them to riot all over the streets of commerce. But a trafic policeman must only enforce the rules. He will block the trafic if he stands on the corner demanding to know their business and telling them how to run it.

"I am one who believes that the only system which will preserve liberty and hold open the doors of opportunity is government regulated business. And this is as far from government dictated business as the two poles. Democracy can regulate its citizens through law and judicial bodies. No democracy can dictate and survive as a democracy. The only way to preserve individual initiative and enterprise is for the government to make the same rules for everybody and act as umpire.

System Is Regulatory.

"But if we are to preserve freedom we must face the fact that ours is a regulatory system.

"And let us be definite once and for all as to what we mean by a system of regulation. It looms up more clearly against the past three years.

"1. A great area of business will regulate its own prices and profits through competition. Competition is also the restless pillow of progress. But we must compel honest competition through prevention of monopolies and unfair practices.

"2. The semi, yet natural, monopolies, such as railways and utilities, must be directly regulated as to rates to prevent the misuse of their privilege.

"3. Banking, finance, public markets, and other functions of trust must be regulated to prevent abuse and misuse of trust. The failure of the states, particularly New York, to do their part during the boom years has necessitated an extension of federal action. The New Deal regulations of stock and security promotion in various aspects have the right objectives. They were hastily and poorly formed without proper consideration by congress. But they point right.

"4. Certain groups must be appropriately regulated to prevent waste of natural resources.

"5. Labor must have the right to free collective bargaining. But it must have responsibilities as well as rights.

"6. At one time we relied upon the theory of 'shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves' in three generations to regulate overaccumulation of wealth. That is now guaranteed by our income and inheritance taxes. Some people feel these taxes take the shirt also.

Principles Are Required.

"But there are certain principles that must run through these methods:

"1. The first principle of regulation is the least regulation that will preserve equality of opportunity and liberty itself. We cannot afford to stifle a thousand honest men in order to smother one evil person.

"2. To preserve liberty the major burden of regulation must fall upon the states and local government. But where the states hopelessly fail or when the problem grows beyond their powers we should call upon the federal government—or we should invoke the machinery of interstate compacts.

"3. Regulation should be by specific law, that all who run may read. That alone holds open the doors of the courts to the citizen. This must be 'a government of laws and not of men.'

"4. And the American system of liberty will not function solely through trafic policemen. The fundamental regulation of the nation is the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount.

Suggests Using Own Method.

"Incidentally, the government might regulate its own business by some of the standards it imposes on others.

"There are certain humanities which run through all business. As we become more experienced, more humane, as conditions change, we recognize things as abuses which we once passed over. There are the abuses of slums, child labor, sweated hours, and sweated wages. They have been diminishing for decades before the New Deal. They have not been solved. They must be solved. We must not be afraid to use the powers of government to eliminate them.

"There will be periodic unemployment in any system. It is even so in the self-declared economic heavens of socialism and fascism. With common sense we could provide insurance programs against it. We could go further and prevent many causes of depressions.

"Out of medical and public health discoveries we have in eighty years increased the number of people over sixty years of age from 4 per cent to 8 per cent. That imposes another problem upon us.

Human Well-Being First.

"This American system has sprung from the spirit of our people. It has been developing progressively over many generations. However grave its faults may be they are but marginal to the great area of human well-being. The test of a system is its comparative results with others and whether it has the impulses within to cure its faults. This system based on ordered liberty alone answers these tests.

"The doors of opportunity cannot be held open by inaction. That is an ideal that must be incessantly fought for.

"The doors are partly closed by every gentleman who hatches some special privileges. They are closed to somebody by every betrayal of trust. But because brickbats can be used for murder we do not need stop building houses. These doors are partly shut by every needless burocrat. And there is the tax collector. He stands today right in the door.

"Every new invention, every new idea, every new war shifts and changes our economic life. That greatest instrument of American joy, the automobile, has in 20 years shifted regulation in a hundred directions.

New Abuses Added.

"Many obstructions and abuses have been added by the New Deal. Many of them are older but no worse. While the inspiration to reform comes from the human heart, it is achieved only by the intellect. Enthusiastic hearts have flooded us with illusions. Ideals without illusions are good. Ideals with illusions are no good. You may remember that youth with a banner of strange device. Was it 'excelsior' or was it 'planned economy?' He froze to death.

"Young men and women have grave need to look into this New Deal alternative to our American system.

"If anyone does not believe there is a bite in that innocent term 'planned economy' he might reread this paragraph from one of the leading New Deal spokesmen:

"'It is . . . a logical impossibility to have a planned economy and to have business operating its industries, just as it is also impossible to have one within our present constitutional and statutory structure. Modifications in both, so serious as to mean destruction and rebeginning, are required.'

Modification is Needed.

"That is involved language, but if it means anything it means that both private business and the constitution must be modified so seriously as to mean destruction and rebeginning.

"The President, far from repudiating these ideas, has continuously supported 'planned economy.' On one occasion he said: 'All of the proposals and all of the legislation since the fourth of March have not been just a collection of haphazard schemes but rather the orderly component parts of a connected and logical whole.'

"The Supreme court has removed some ten of these component parts. And rather than have the score raised to thirteen before an election we have seen three more quietly removed. However, if the New Deal is reëlected they will be found to have a lot of spare parts. Do not mistake. The choice is still yours. But the New Deal has no choice. The New Deal is committed to drive ahead for government dictation of our economic life. It is committed by a thousand statements, by a thousand actions. It is committed by the supporters upon whom it is dependent.

"The President assures them 'we will not retreat.' They did mention a breathing spell. A spell of a very limited period.

Few Choices Offered.

"I have spoken at length upon these subjects elsewhere, but I may remind you of a few examples of the choice that the New Deal offers to youth. Under that 'connected and logical whole' a man could be fined and sent to jail for starting a new business of his own; for refusing to sell his products as directed; for not reducing his production, for increasing his production if his energies found a market for selling at prices below his competitors, or for having 101 gold dollars.

"Also you might note that when you ask the man with a profit and loss motive for a job, he asks just one thing, 'Can you do the job?' When you ask the government for a job, your ability is second to your politics, your delivery of votes, and your affiliations generally. That is not equality of opportunity.

"And what of this managed currency and this managed credit, which threaten liberty and opportunity with the poison of inflation? What of this governmentally raised cost of living? What of all this continued waste and folly wrought in the name of relief? What of the folly of these purchases of foreign silver? What of the debauchery of the civil service and the politics in relief?

"What of the taxes that will ooze from this spending and debt all your lives?

"Do not mistake. The new taxes of today are but part of them. More of them are as inevitable as the first of the month. The only alternatives are repudiation or inflation. No matter what nonsense you are told about corporations and the rich paying the bill, there will be two-thirds of it for the common men to pay after the corporations and the rich are sucked dry.

"Taxation enslaves as well as dictatorship. Every increased dollar in taxes is a limitation upon your opportunities. It means you have to work that many days more for the government instead of for your own advancement. Your fireside talks in the future will be with the tax collector.

"And where do we get to after all this attempt to supplant the American system? At the time of the election day in 1932 the American Federation of Labor reported 11,600,000 unemployed. Today, after three years of the New Deal, they report 11,600,000 unemployed. To get these people back to their jobs was the outstanding job of our government. It was the excuse given for all these doings. But the grim fact remains that it has failed in its primary purpose. And $15,000,000,000 will be added to the national debt before the New Deal is over.

Hears Many Tales.

"We hear much as to who is a tory, a reactionary, a conservative, a liberal, or a radical. These terms when used honestly reflect an attitude of mind. The political use of them was imported from England. They do not fit well in America. However, they have certain advantages. You can elect yourself to any one of these groups if you say it often enough. If you do not like anybody you can consign him to the one which is most hated by your listener.

"Taking a compound of definitions coming out of Washington, the impression would be that the tories do the money changing. The reactionaries are members of well warmed and well stocked clubs. The conservatives are greedily trying to keep their jobs and their savings. The liberals have the exclusive right to define the opinions of others. The radicals do not know what to do but do it in every direction.

"As a matter of serious fact, these terms have been used mostly for camouflage and for political assassination.

"The natural choice of youth is toward true liberalism. True liberalism seeks all legitimate freedom first, in the confident belief that without such freedom the pursuit of other blessings is in vain. Liberalism is a force true of the spirit, proceeding from the deep realization that economic freedom cannot be sacrificed if political freedom is to be preserved.

Becomes People's Master.

"It is a false liberalism that interprets itself into dictation by government. Every step in that direction crushes the very roots of liberalism. It is the road not to liberty but to less liberty. The spirit of liberalism is to create free men. It is not the regimentation of men. It is not the extension of burocracy. You cannot extend the mastery of government over the daily life of a people without somewhere making it master of people's souls and thoughts.

"Today, however, the term liberal is claimed by every sect that would limit human freedom and stagnate the human soul—whether they be Fascists, Socialists, communists, Epics, or New Dealers.

"This misuse of English political terms is used to cover the confusion of thought that pumps from the New Deal. Yet our American problems cut squarely across such muddy classifications.

"If an open mind, free to search for the truth and apply it in government, is liberal, then you should be liberal.

"If belief in open opportunity and equal opportunity has become conservative, then you should be conservative.

"If belief that this can be held only in a society of orderly individual initiative and enterprise is conservative, then you should be conservative.

Way to Chart Course.

"If opposition to those things which abuse and limit equal opportunity, such as privilege, monopolies, exploitations, or oppression, whether in business or in government, is liberal, then you should be liberal.

"If opposition to managed economy, whether of the Socialist, Fascist, or New Deal pattern is tory, then you should be tory.

"If the humane action to eliminate such abominations as slum squalor, child labor, and sweated labor, to give greater protection from unemployment and old age is radical, then you should be radical.

"If the use of all the powers of the government to relieve our people from hunger and cold in calamity is radical, then you should be radical.

"If belief in old-fashioned virtues of self-reliance, thrift, government economy, of a balanced budget, of a stable currency, of fidelity of government to its obligations is reactionary, then you should be reactionary.

"If holding to the bill of rights with its safeguards of the balance of powers and local government is tory, then you should be tory.

"If demand that change in the constitution be by open submission to the people and not by subterfuge constitutes reaction, then again you should be reactionary.

"If your demand that we have a government of laws and not of burocrats is conservative, then you should be conservative.

"If you agree with all this, then you have shed yourselves of many 'isms' or you have melted them into plain Americanism.

"If you add to that a belief in decency of Americans, a conception of spiritual prosperity, and a faith in the greatness of America, you will have lifted these realities to the realms of idealism.

"But it all sums up to this—Whether the choice of youth will be to carry on that liberty, for which Americans have died upon a thousand battlefields.

Opportunity Lives Forever.

"I hear much that new opportunity for youth is gone. It occurs to me that for 150 years God-fearing people under the blessings of freedom built up quite a plant and equipment on this continent. It teems with millions of farms and homes and cattle and pigs, despite the AAA. There are railroads, highways, power plants, and factories, stores and banks, and money-changers. There are towns and magnificent cities. There are newspapers, colleges, libraries orchestras, bands, radios, and other noises.

"It is very sad, but did it ever occur to you that all the people who live in these houses and all those who run these complicated machines are going to die? Just as sure as death the job is yours. And there are opportunities in every inch of it.

"The New Deal would dim your dreams of new adventure by telling you that there is nothing to do any more but run the old plant.

"As a matter of fact, science and invention during even these troubled years since the war have given us further mighty powers of progress. These inventions will create a thousand new frontiers. You have the blood and the urge of your American forbears. You are as good stuff as they. You are better trained and equipped than they were.

"I have no doubt of your character and your resolution. I know American youth is champing at the bit to take advantage of an opening world. From that, if we preserve the American system of liberty, we could have a century of glorious opportunity to every young man and woman. We could have a century of unparalleled progress to the nation."

STOCK MARKET ONLY AIDED BY NEW DEAL, HERBERT HOOVER SAYS

Colorado Springs, Col., March 7.—(AP)—The "money changers" that President Roosevelt "promised to drive out of the temple" are the only ones that have profited from the New Deal, Herbert Hoover said today in an interview.

The stock market "is the only thing that has been helped by the New Deal," the former President added.

He expressed belief that anti-New Deal Democrats will vote Republican without the formality of a coalition.

W. J. CUMMINGS, TREASURER, WILL QUIT PARTY JOB

Democrats Fear More Blasts from G. O. P.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Walter J. Cummings of Chicago, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, will resign shortly as a result of the senatorial blast against his multiple political jobs. His other jobs are chairmen of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company and trustee of the Milwaukee road, both of which are backed heavily by the RFC.

It was learned today that party leaders are moving to force Cummings' resignation. At the same time it was said Cummings is mulling over the idea of retirement with a view to making his exit as graceful as possible.

Neither Postmaster General James H. Farley, committee chairman, nor RFC chairman, Jesse Jones, who got Cummings his political posts, would comment on the resignation.

Must Get Out.

It was understood, however, that both the Democratic leaders felt that Cummings must get out voluntarily or involuntarily. It is not expected Cummings will fight to retain his treasurership.

The multiplicity of political jobs held by Cummings, who draws a combined salary of more than $90,000 a year from appointments dictated by the RFC, was forcibly publicized in an attack from the senate floor by Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] two weeks ago.

Could Demand Party Aid.

Senator Couzens charged that Cummings, by virtue of his capacity as chairman of the bank and trustee of the railroad, is in a position to demand contributions to the campaign chest of which he is treasurer.

The senator's attack gave Democratic party leaders the jitters. Already smarting from charges that its campaign funds are being gouged out of federal employés and relief workers, the Democratic leaders saw Cummings' occupancy of the party war chest as giving Republicans a load of ammunition during the coming campaign.

RECORD SHOWS ROOSEVELT AIM TO BE DICTATOR

Arbitrary Force Is Used to Silence Foes.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Has the dictatorship arrived? This is the question occupying foremost place in public and private discussion in official Washington this week-end as the result of rapidly accumulating evidence of the New Deal's determination to stamp out criticism of its policies, activities and philosophy.

The multiplying instances of the use of arbitrary force to "crack down" on persons daring to raise a voice against the New Deal are viewed with ominous significance by those who fear the fiscal and economic policies of President Roosevelt are heading the country into bankruptcy, inflation and ultimate establishment of Fascism. Is the degree of dictatorship so far accomplished or attempted, they ask, a forerunner of the complete dictatorship in store under a Fascistic government?

Tries Dictatorial Power.

Since its inception three years ago the "Roosevelt revolution," as it is termed by the President's biographer, has been attended by many attempts to exercise the dictatorial power inseparable from revolutionary government.

Many of the attempts, such as the delegation to the executive of unrestricted authority over the occupations and liberties of citizens, have been frustrated by the Supreme court in the decisions invalidating the NRA and the AAA, not without reiterated warning by the court of the consequences to the republic of the unchecked exercise of such autocratic powers.

Likewise checked by the high court in the Humphrey case was Mr. Roosevelt's disposition to remove members of quasi-judicial boards and commissions for manifesting independence of thought.

Many other invocations of dictatorial power, however, remain to be passed upon by the courts and still others are beyond the reach of the courts.

Snoopers Face Court Test.

Headed for a court test, as a result of a suit filed this week, is the constitutionality of current endeavors of New Dealers to harass critics of the administration through the instrumentality of the Black committee, the creation of which by the senate Democratic leaders procured ostensibly to investigate lobbying. Under the guise of such authority Chairman Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] is pursuing numerous organizations and several thousand individuals prominently opposing the New Deal.

The suit brought by the Chicago law firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw, involves the authority by which the Black committee has seized from the telegraph companies, and scrutinized some five million telegrams sent or received by the organizations, corporations, firms and persons on the administration black list.

But this is only one of numerous recent incidents illuminating the attitude of the New Dealers toward criticism. There is the case of the summary removal of Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood of the United States army from his command by the President for his confidential testimony before the house appropriations committee in which the general criticized boondoggling extravagance.

Airway Chief Fired.

There is the case of the discharge of the superintendent of airways because he had disclosed to the senate commerce committee the inefficiency of supervision and the inadequate equipment of landing fields and the insufficiency of aids to air navigation to which he attributed many fatal passenger plane accidents.

Then there is the case of the discharge of the two officials of the bureau of navigation and steamboat inspection because they had revealed the inadequacy of the provisions for safety of life on passenger ships.

It is not doubted that the punishment meted out to these individuals will go far to suppress any further revelations of administrative inefficiency of which political capital could be made in the approaching presidential election.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.] has characterized the Black committee as the counterpart of soviet Russia's dreaded OGPU or Cheka which deals drastically with every evidence of opposition to the communist dictatorship. Others also have an uncomfortable feeling that in the Black committee and other agencies for harassing their opponents the New Dealers have created an effective political secret police.

With communication by telegraph no longer safe from the prying eyes of government agencies the telephone also has fallen under suspicion. Many critics of the administration are convinced by recent incidents that their telephone wires are being tapped by government sleuths. This would not be surprising in view of the fact that not so long ago a number of New Dealers were accusing Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes' secret agents of tapping their telephones.

For tapping telephone wires the New Dealers have the sanction of the Supreme court in a five to four decision in a case arising under the prohibition amendment. The decision, written by the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft, held that the wire tapping was not in contravention of the fourth amendment prohibiting unreasonable search and seizure because the element of force was not involved.

More Effective Means.

Justice Brandeis in the minority opinion said that when the fourth amendment was adopted force and violence were "the only means known to man by which a government could directly effect self-incrimination." But now there are "means far more effective than stretching upon the rack, to obtain disclosure in court of what is whispered in the closet."

Already the argument is heard that if the Black committee possesses the right to seize from the telegraph companies and read telegrams passing between citizens it possesses the right to seize from the postoffice letters passing between citizens, which is exactly what the secret police do in many other countries today.

What the New Dealers would do with information obtained from private letters is a matter not left entirely to the imagination when the removal of Gen. Hagood was being discussed in the senate Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas charged that another army officer was engaged in politics. Challenged, he named Maj. Gen. F. C. Bolles.

Quotes from Another's Mail.

Then it turned out that Senator Robinson based his charge on what he had read in a private letter written by Gen. Bolles to his personal friend, former Senator Arthur Robinson of Indiana, which had been addressed to Washington by mistake and opened by Senator Joe Robinson by mistake. Arthur Robinson had served under Gen. Bolles in France. Since the war they and their families have been on terms of intimate friendship. Seeing Arthur Robinson mentioned in print as a possible Republican nominee for President, Gen. Bolles wrote him that he was rooting for him.

It has been charged, and denied by Senator Black, but not by the commission, that the Black committee was enabled by the federal communications commission to get possession of the five million telegrams sent and received by the persons on the suspect list. The telegraph companies, it is alleged, refused the committee access to the messages till the commission intervened and compelled compliance with Black's demands.

It was said at the time of the creation of the communications commission that another dangerous weapon had been furnished the administration for cracking down on its opponents. The communications commission possesses such vast powers to harass the telegraph and telephone companies and the radio broadcasting concerns that they have become, in many instances, conspicuously subservient to the administration. The old radio commission which was absorbed by the communications commission was notoriously dominated by the White House in decisions rewarding friends and punishing foes.

Violation of Amendment.

In the pending suit to restrain the Black committee it is contended that the seizure of private telegrams is a violation of the fourth amendment, which provides:

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

The Supreme court has declared unconstitutional such a dragnet as the Black committee threw out for all telegrams sent or received by the suspected persons. In 1921 the federal trade commission demanded all correspondence between the American Tobacco company and its jobber customers that year. The company appealed to the courts and the Supreme court, in an opinion by Justice Holmes, held that the fourth amendment had been violated.

Affairs Not Public.

"The mere facts of carrying on a commerce not confined within state lines and of being organized as a corporation do not make men's affairs public," Justice Holmes said.

"Any one who respects the spirit as well as the letter of the fourth amendment would be loath to believe that congress intended to authorize one of its subordinate agencies to sweep all our traditions into the fire and to direct fishing expeditions into private papers on the possibility that they may disclose evidence of crime."

Justice Holmes declared that the interruption of business, the revelation of trade secrets, the expense of complying with wholesale demands for books and papers, while of importance, really constituted the least consideration in such a case. The vital thing, he pointed out, was that "it is contrary to the first principles of justice to allow a search through all" of an individual's or a corporation's records, "relevant or irrelevant, in the hope that something will turn up."

Black Threatens Courts.

Whether this reasoning by the court applies to investigations by the senate is the question at issue in the current case. If the courts should hold against the senate Black would hit back at the courts.

"I will state very frankly," said Senator Black, "that in my judgment, if any judge ever issued an injunction to prevent the delivery of papers that were sought by this body through subpena the congress should immediately enact legislation taking away that jurisdiction from the courts. Congress creates the jurisdiction of those courts."

FORMER MATE DELAYS VOYAGE OF ANN HARDING

Los Angeles, Cal., March 7.—(AP)—Ann Harding, blonde movie star, was blocked temporarily today in her plan to take her daughter Jane, 7, to England. Her former husband, Harry Bannister, his lawyer said, only would consent to the child's removal on condition she be allowed to spend three weeks with him in New Jersey before sailing. The case was continued until Monday.

AIR LINE IS SUED FOR $400,000 OVER CUSHING'S DEATH

Mrs. Harriett M. Cushing, 900 Edgemere court, Evanston, filed suit yesterday in the federal District court against United Air Lines, Inc., for $400,000 damages for the death of her husband, John F. Cushing, president of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company. Mr. Cushing was one of twelve persons killed on Oct. 6, 1935, when a United Air Lines plane crashed near Cheyenne, Wyo.

Mrs. Cushing brought the suit as administratrix of her husband's estate, through the law firm of Cooke, Sullivan and Ricks. She alleged that the plane was carelessly and negligently operated. The crash was "not an act of God," nor did it involve any unusual forces of nature, according to the complaint.

W. A. Patterson, president of the United Air Lines, commented that investigations by his company and by the United States bureau of air commercec "proved that the accident was not due to any mechanical trouble and that conclusion has been published in an official government report."

FARMERS REPAY FEDERAL LOANS FASTER THAN DUE

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—Gov. Myers of the Farm Credit administration said today that farmers were repaying the money they owe the government much more rapidly than required by their contracts.

In a statement showing repayment of 43 million dollars to federal land banks in 1935, Myers said the amount was larger than the regular principal amortization on all outstanding federal land bank loans.

Myers said only $40,900,000 would have been due in regular payments. He added that 15 million dollars of loans were paid in full during the year and that interest payments had shown steady improvement since the low points in 1933.

ANTI-NEW DEAL TREND STRESSED BY MINNESOTAN

Ray Chase Cites Abuses; Attacks Olson Regime.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Minnesota was pictured as one of the farm states where sentiment is swinging against the New Deal in a report to Republican leaders of 15 states at western headquarters at the Palmer house yesterday by Ray P. Chase of Anoka, Minn. After touring his state, he declared farmers are complaining of prodigality and waste, burocracy, and the mounting tax load under the New Deal at Washington and Gov. Floyd B. Olson, radical Farmer-Laborite.

Mr. Chase, who for ten years was state auditor and land commissioner of Minnesota and later a congressman at large, was Republican nominee for governor in 1930, the year Olson won. This year Chase has entered the Republican primaries for United States senator to succeed the late Senator Thomas D. Schall, whose widow also has filed as a candidate. Gov. Olson has announced he intends to run for the senate as a Farmer-Laborite.

Calls AAA "Sovietism."

Many Democratic workers, it was reported, are still wrathful because of the friendliness shown by the White House to Senator Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, in 1934, when he defeated Einar Hoidale, Democratic nominee.

In congress Mr. Chase attacked AAA as "sovietism" and a Wallace "dictatorship," saying, "This is Russian, only the cellars of Petrograd and the mines of Siberia are lacking."

"Minnesota is in pitiable condition," Mr. Chase told Republican headquarters. "The communists are using it for a laboratory, sparing the guinea pigs and experimenting on the taxpayers.

"I found that taxpayers are asking what this waste and nonsense under the New Deal and Minnesota radicals are going to cost, who will pay and how.

Tax Situation Reversed.

"Ten years ago expenditures, debt, and taxes were being reduced by the federal government and by the state of Minnesota, but local units were extravagant. Now the situation is reversed. Tax strikes and tax revolts have gone all over the state until wherever the taxpayers control taxes have been cut, and meanwhile at St. Paul and Washington, the two administrations, both radical, have gone financially crazy. That is what one hears in the Minnesota countryside.

"The radicals led by Floyd Olson went into office in 1930 on a pay as you go platform. In five years they have jumped the state debt from 84 million dollars to 118 million. Tax delinquency has gone from 36 million dollars to 83 millions in five years.

"Minneapolis is the county seat of Hennepin county. Between 1930 and 1933 Hennepin county cut city and village taxes 9 per cent, county taxes, 9.3 per cent, school taxes 11 per cent, township taxes 42 per cent. During the same four years state taxes paid by Hennepin county grew 83 per cent.

Crescendo of Complaints.

"Minnesota has 87 counties. In four years 79 of them cut county taxes, 81 cut city and village taxes, all cut school and township taxes. They are all asking why there was not a cut in the state tax rate.

"When the depression dried up sources of revenue and local governments retrenched, the dominant radical group went ahead spending money it did not have. The people are loudly complaining. Like the Brain Trust at Washington, the Minnesota Reds created or enlarged useless departments. For example, the drivers' license bureau, up to Nov. 20, 1935, collected $196,000 from the sale of licenses and spent $193,000 in doing it. That is a fair example of radical financial foolishness."

He crawled out a window and attempted to escape, but halted when shots were fired at him.

He was identified by Percy Jacobs, president of the Sherwood-Jacobs Stove Repair company, 3854 West Grand avenue, as the man who held a shotgun when on Oct. 10 he and five others robbed Jacobs of $60 at the store. Meegan then confessed. Two of his companions, Walter Weglarz, 21 years old, and Irving Stark, 26 years old, both of 2936 Warren boulevard, were shot and captured on Oct. 30 by Policeman Frank Fuerst, whom they attempted to rob. Thompson, attorney and former justive of the Illinois Supreme court, before the Illinois Society of the Sons of the American Revolution in the Hotel La Salle yesterday. "Vote stealing in Chicago is one subject which we do not need to consider as a rumor, because the court records show it to be a well established profession."

MANY OWNERS REPORT IT COSTS LESS TO OWN THAN SMALL CAR

—based on gas, oil and upkeep savings...

"IF MY new Dodge continues to use so little gas, it's going to save me enough to more than make up the difference in price between it and a small car," says Thomas L. Doris, New York.

Mr. Doris is only one of the many Dodge owners who report Dodge gives unusually high gas mileage and remarkable oil economy... who say Dodge will actually cost them less to own than small, lowest-priced, competitive makes.

Yet Dodge gives you far more than economy! It gives you the safety-steel body... genuine hydraulic brakes... Airglide-Ride... redistribution of weight equally to all four wheels... Chair-Height seats... patented Floating Power engine mountings... and many other features! And Dodge, above all, gives you dependability! It is not uncommon for dependable Dodge cars to give their owners up to 200,000 and even more miles of service!

Drive this new Dodge today! Prove to yourself how much extra value Dodge—now at new, low prices—gives you for only a few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars!

DRIVES 800 MILES ON 34 GALLONS OF GAS

"I recently drove my new 1936 Dodge coupe from Detroit to Mempbis, Tenn., a distance of 800 miles," says S. Richard Mook, Hollywood, Cal. "I averaged 23 miles per gallon, which is slightly over 34 gallons of gas for the entire trip. I am thoroughly satisfied with my Dodge's performance and particularly pleased with its economy."

MILWAUKEE CHICAGO

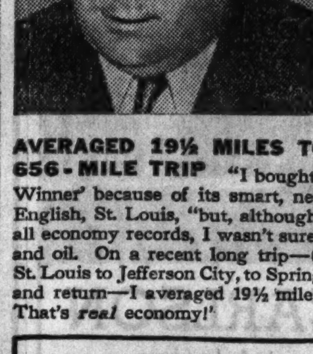
CHICAGO TO MILWAUKEE ON 5 GALLONS OF GAS

"I have often driven from Chicago to Milwaukee in a small, lowest-priced car," says George L. Deutel, of Chicago, "but until I got my 1936 Dodge, I never realized what real gas economy was. My big, new Dodge used only 5 gallons. That's better than 18 miles to the gallon."

MEMPHIS NEW YORK SAN LEANDRO, CAL.

CALIFORNIA TO NEW YORK—20 MILES PER GALLON

"I left San Leandro, California, and drove to New York City, via New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, St. Louis and Chicago," writes A. A. Sinclair, sales manager of the United Engine and Machine Company, San Leandro. "I watched my gas consumption very carefully and averaged 20 miles to the gallon. I made one oil change and used only three quarts of oil besides!"



AVERAGED 19½ MILES TO THE GALLON ON 656-MILE TRIP "I bought my new Dodge 'Beauty Winner' because of its smart, new lines," writes John P. English, St. Louis, "but, although I'd heard it had broken all economy records, I wasn't sure it saved so much on gas and oil. On a recent long trip—656 miles, from St. Louis to Jefferson City, to Springfield, Missouri, and return—I averaged 19½ miles to the gallon. That's real economy!"

Parley Ends After Voting to Ignore Candidacies.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Republican women leaders of the central west, meeting in regional conference yesterday at the Palmer house, urged unanimously that all candidates, "favorite sons" and platforms be disregarded until after the party's national convention at Cleveland in June.

In line with policies advanced by Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal of Washington, D. C., director of women's activity for the Republican national committee, the conferees decided to concentrate upon a threefold plan of action: enrollment of Republican "volunteers," dissemination of constructive information and arousal of the dormant vote.

With national committeewomen and vice chairwomen from fifteen states agreeing on this produce, the two day gathering adjourned with a new slogan—"Volunteers of '36 with the spirit of '76."

Hammer on the Silent Vote.

Mrs. Chris Carlson, Minnesota's vice chairman, told the conferees that the man or woman who does not exercise the franchise and who boasts about it is a public enemy. It is this man, she urged, who must be "shamed to the polls."

Charging that the women spend too much time worrying about "who will be the candidate" and "what will be the platform," Mrs. Hoyal laid blame for both worries on the "defeatist policy that the New Deal would feed you."

"Don't worry because we have a lot of candidates," she told the women. "It's the finest possible thing for us—the fact that so many outstanding American men are candidates. And don't forget that only twice in 75 years has the party known its candidate before the general convention.

A Fight for Americanism.

"We'll be called names, and if we do anything, we'll be cracked down upon, but we're fighting for American institutions and that is worthwhile. The only name they can't call us in this campaign is 'unAmerican.'"

Through all sessions ran an undercurrent, often an audible whirlpool, of insistence upon fair representation for women around the council table, at county, state and national conventions.

The women were the guests of Mrs. Bertha Baur, national committeewoman from Illinois, at luncheon yesterday, and of the Woman's National Republican Club, Inc., at a reception and tea in the Drake hotel.

LIST 'MISPLACED FACES' CONTEST WINNERS MAR. 15

Winners of the $10,000 offered by THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE to the 428 prize winners in the "Misplaced Faces" contest will be announced next Sunday, March 15. For twelve weeks a set of three mismatched pictures of movie star faces appeared in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

The contestants were asked to cut, assemble, and paste the component parts together in proper sequence, and name the movie stars. Jan. 20 was the deadline for receiving contributions. Accuracy and neatness were the two points on which every entry was rated.

Thousands of entries poured into the Tribune contest department until the mail bags were piled high while the workers counted their contents. This great number to be graded and judged has delayed the publication of results.

Chicago Girl Teacher, 20, Escapes Chinese Reds

Dr. and Mrs. Frank L. Brown, 23 South Central Park avenue, received word yesterday that their daughter, Bernice, 20 years old, had arrived safely in Peiping, China, after fleeing from Fenchow in Shansi province. She was one of several Americans who fled with other foreigners before advancing Chinese communists, according to dispatches. Miss Brown is not a missionary but had been teaching at the Fenchow mission center since last spring.

A. G. C. ATWATER WEDS DOROTHY LEE OF MOVIES

Dorothy Lee, widely known film actress, and A. G. Cox Atwater, vice president of the William Wrigley Jr. company and a brother-in-law of Philip K. Wrigley, were married yesterday afternoon at Crown Point, Ind., by Justice of the Peace Harvey T. Minas. Following the ceremony the couple, both of whom designated the Ambassador hotel in Chicago as their home, left for an unannounced destination.

Although Miss Lee is only 25 years old, the venture is her fourth into matrimony. Her real name was given as Marjorie Millsap Duffield, and she stated that her father, Homer C. Millsap, is a Los Angeles attorney. She was divorced from Marshall Duffield, former California football star, in Reno last November. Previously she had been married to, and divorced from, James Fidler, and another whose name seems to have been neglected.

Mr. Atwater, who is 28 years old, was divorced less than a month ago by Mrs. Betty Ann Bergmann Atwater, to whom he was married on March 15, 1932. Mrs. Atwater was given custody of their infant daughter and a private financial settlement was arranged out of court. The present Mrs. Atwater and her husband met last year while he was on a business trip to the coast.

17 AIR CRASH VICTIMS REMAIN MYSTERY AS REPORT IS ISSUED

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—Whether some one "incapacitated the pilot" or "maliciously interfered with the controls" of the American Air Line plane that took its crew and 17 passengers to their death near Goodwin, Ark., eight weeks ago probably will remain a mystery.

The commerce department citing those possibilities today in a report added they were "not substantiated by any of the available evidence."

The department said:

"Although flying at a low altitude may have contributed to the cause of this accident, the probable cause or causes thereof cannot be determined."

ROOSEVELT MUM AS NEWS GROUP 'PANS' NEW DEAL

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight saw and heard his New Deal satirized at the fifteenth annual banquet of the White House Correspondents association and was denied the right of reply. Under the association's rules, all speeches are banned except those by its officers who were installed during the evening.

The feature of the evening was a burlesque newsreel which travestied the New Deal as an amateur hour. All those subjected to funmaking were at the dinner. The guests included Vice President Garner, cabinet members and outstanding New Dealers, as well as its leading foes here.

Tomorrow, in accordance with his annual observance of the Sunday nearest the anniversary of his inauguration, the President will attend services in the Washington cathedral. The sermon will be delivered by Bishop James E. Freeman. Mrs. Roosevelt will accompany the President.

Olsen appeared at the Chicago Lawn police station Wednesday night and was given a night's lodging when he pleaded he was penniless. In the morning, after police had given him breakfast, Olsen told Desk Sergt. Joseph Feery that his conscience bothered him, and confessed the crimes.

FOR ECONOMICAL CHEVROLET TRANSPORTATION

Every test proves it's more economical . . . Every Chevrolet owner knows it's more economical . . . And every person will readily understand these simple A-B-C reasons why it is more economical

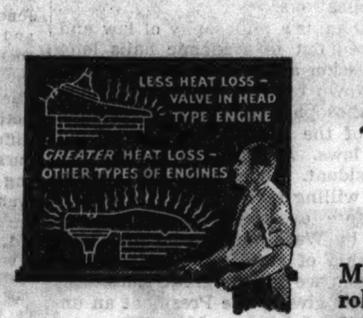
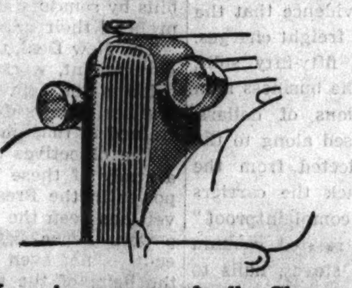
The Chevrolet engine is the most economical automobile engine produced today, because (1) it is a six-cylinder engine, and (2) it is a valve-in-head six-cylinder engine.

Its six cylinders use less gas and oil—in fact, use the least gas and oil—because six cylinders are the most economical combination used in modern automobiles.

Its valve-in-head design cuts gasoline consumption still lower because there is less loss of heat through the walls of the combustion chamber in valve-in-head engines, and the Chevrolet engine gives maximum heat (or power) saving.





Most important of all, Chevrolet's more efficient cooling system, pressure stream oiling and the greater accessibility of all working parts result in more dependable operation, over a longer period of time, with the lowest maintenance costs. Thus, Chevrolet's valve-in-head engine —only one of its kind in Chevrolet's price range— gives economy without equal.

CRIMINALS IN GOVERNMENT.

The Liggett murder focused national attention upon the governments of Minneapolis and Minnesota. Walter Liggett was the second crusading editor to be assassinated in Minneapolis after alleging that government officials were according protection to notorious criminals. What kind of a community was this and what kind of officials did it possess? Wayne Thomis of THE TRIBUNE staf had gone to Minneapolis to report the hunt for the murderers of Liggett and remained to answer these questions. He brought back a startling and almost unbelievable narrative of events. Any one of the incidents he recited might have been explained away, but in the aggregate they meant just one thing: that Minneapolis and Minnesota are dominated by gangland. A conspiracy exists to protect murderers.

So far as Minnesota is concerned, Mr. Thomis' brilliant analysis can leave no doubt as to the realities of the situation. How about other states? No comparable examination of the operation of their law enforcement machinery has been made in recent years, but facts are available from which inferences can be drawn.

The federal census bureau reported more than 12,000 homicides in the United States in 1933 and the actual number must have been considerably larger because many murders go into the records as accidental deaths, deaths from natural causes, and suicides. On the other hand, some of the killing was in self-defense, but it is safe to say that in almost all such instances at least a formal arrest was entered on the books.

How many of the 12,000 and more murders were solved to the extent that some one was arrested and charged with the crime? In 1934, the last year for which the figures are available, there were 6,636 arrests for homicide in this country. It follows that about half the murderers are never caught, much less brought to trial, and prison records show that fewer than 4,000 persons a year are sentenced for homicide.

Prison records show also that the average term served by those few who are punished is about five years. Less than 2 per cent of the murderers pay for their crimes with their lives. In 1932 the number executed was 128.

A murderer in this country has a 50 per cent chance to go scot free. If he is caught, indicted, convicted, and the conviction stands, he may expect to serve more or less time in jail, but he has a 65 per cent chance to avoid even that. He has better than a 98 per cent chance to beat the gallows or the electric chair.

These figures can lead to but one conclusion. They attest the wholesale corruption of government in this country. Stupidity on the part of the police, the prosecutors, the judges, and jurymen may account for some of the immunity which murderers enjoy, but not for all of it and in all probability not for most of it. Some murderers are clever enough to hide all trace of their identity, but there is abundant experience to prove that generally a persistent search for the killer will bring him to justice. If the murderers are not caught it is generally because the search has been only perfunctory. If they are not convicted it is frequently because the prosecution laid down on the job. If appeal to the higher courts brings freedom it is often because of deliberate error introduced in the trial by the prosecution or the judge. And so on.

The influence of the criminals in the law enforcement agencies has been suggested, but that is only the beginning. The same influence also is felt in the prisons and penitentiaries. Gangland expects favored treatment in jail and favored treatment by parole and pardon boards, and commonly is not disappointed, as one prison inquiry after another has demonstrated. News of jail breaks is everyday stuff in every newspaper. Only the gullible believe that these incidents occur without the connivance, usually, of the jail officials themselves. A criminal whom it is inexpedient to parole because of the heinousness of his offense is thus permitted to escape.

The facts given here with respect to murderers could be duplicated for other kinds of criminals. In the aggregate all this evidence argues that in many and probably most of our states the men in control of government are the active allies of the criminal classes. These relationships are something for voters in all sections of the country to remember when they go to the polls this year.

DR. KARL MARX IN WASHINGTON.

Back of every major proposal which comes out of the White House there is a long view policy which can be interpreted only in the light of the whole program of influential government advisers whose purposes are thoroughly disclosed by their utterances. Mr. Roosevelt's tax recommendations are to be scrutinized not only for their immediate effect but for the service they would do the ideas of the soviet minded advisers who are blueprinting the future government of the United States.

In NRA and AAA these ideas were carried forward, the attempt being to prepare both industry and agriculture for subsequent takeover by the collectivists. Industrial codes drove industry into groups which could be more easily brought under government control than the thousands and thousands of diverse and unconnected enterprises. Industries were to be driven into herds which at the proper time might be taken over by the masters. To dispel any doubts which might exist, read Mr. Tugwell and Mr. Ezekiel. They have the virtue of being explicit.

AAA was to do for agriculture what NRA did for industry and, indeed, went further because it applied Mr. Tugwell's quotas of production and distribution of money for operation. Don't think that things are fantastic in expectation when they have not been too fantastic to be actually in operation. Although NRA went out, AAA, which followed it into the discard, has been revived with the thinnest subterfuge to evade the Supreme court decision. Whatever it is called, it is the same old thing, and Mr. Tugwell is going about his way in spite of the nine old gentlemen.

Mr. Roosevelt's corporation tax proposal, whoever prepared it for him, has as sound Marxian philosophy back of it as could be found in Stalin's office. It is calculated to break down the industrial corporation's ability to save itself when profits begin to fall off. The distribution of its earnings each year to the stockholders, preventing the accumulation of sufficient reserves and surpluses, would pump the money into the consuming stream. The Marxian doctrin is that capitalism is exploitation of the masses because it does not pump in sufficient volume.

The government, by forcing the distribution of earnings and by preventing the accumulation of capital for expansions and for carrying on through depressions, would make it probable, if not inevitable, that private industry would be unable to continue and would gradually be proved incompetent. It would come to a standstill in inertia, deterioration, and debt. When capitalism thus stood revealed as a confessed incompetent, the way would be again open for Mr. Tugwell's quotas and allocations. Private enterprise would have been proved a failure and the argument for socialistic possession and use of the sources of material and the means of production would appear unanswerable. The procedure of the collectivist is first to destroy by intervention and interference or by force and then to assert that the failure thus produced was inherent in a system which must give way to communism.

There isn't a major Roosevelt method which cannot be revealed as essentially founded upon this theory of destruction of what exists to make place for the Marxian experiment. Whether he himself is fully aware of this is of no importance. He is completely under the influence of men who intend to bring it about if they have the luck to remain in power and to guide the hand holding the pen which writes the messages to congress and the bills which follow.

Mr. Raushenbush's young men, with their eyes open and their wits about them, have bored into the controls in Washington and every major proposal reveals either in the foreground or the background the success of their undertakings. The United States is going communistic as rapidly as these young men can write bills for congress and persuade Mr. Roosevelt to be their master salesman to the country. He hasn't failed them yet and if he is reëlected you can read the future of the United States in the works of Dr. Karl Marx.

A HINT TO AN AMBITIOUS LEGISLATOR.

Few people realize that the much touted regulation of our railways that was to remove "discrimination and preference in favor of large interests" and "abolish rebates, midnight rates, and free passes" has within thirty years degenerated into a profitable racket. Like all other rackets, it is supposed that the final consumer of the freight transported will foot the bill.

Under the mandate of the Hepburn act of 1906 the interstate commerce commission was empowered, upon complaint of a shipper, to declare unjust and unreasonable any rate published by the railways, and to fix a just and reasonable basis for the future. Perhaps the law would have been less destructive had it stopped at this point, but it went further—it authorized the commission to declare that the injustice had existed for two years, which "infraction of the law" could only be satisfied by a refund, with interest, to the shipper.

Within a few years "reparation bureaus" had sprung into existence. Receipted railway freight bills were solicited and purchased. Their ownership was regarded as sufficient evidence that the holder had "paid and borne" the freight charges. "Check your freight bills on a fifty-fifty split, mister?" became as familiar to the business man as "Shine your shoes?" Millions of dollars, which years before had been passed along to the ultimate consumer, were re-collected from the railways. Against such an attack the carriers could do nothing but erect a "complaintproof" barrier of rates. If arguments related vacuum cleaners to brooms, radiators to stoves, nails to glue, the rates must be "lined up" to forestall further assaults. Naturally the theory of promoting the widest possible distribution of commodities was forgotten, and just as naturally the railways' share of commercial activity has been dwindling for fifteen years.

The interstate commerce commission does not want the law and has repeatedly requested congress to delete the reparations features from the act. Certainly the railways abhor it, and so would the people if they knew what it was costing them for the benefit of a few. The way is open for a congressman to introduce and force through the necessary bill.

THE CONSTITUTION AND THE NEW DEAL

(Address by Monte Appel of the St. Paul Bar.)

II.

James Madison, writing in the Federalist a series of papers designed to explain and expound the constitution, said:

> If there is any principle in our constitution, indeed in any free constitution, more sacred than another it is that which separates the legislative, executive, and judicial functions.
> The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive, and judicial, in the same hands, whether of one, a few, or many, and whether hereditary, self-appointed, or elective, may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny.

And the Supreme court in the course of its opinion in the famous case of Field vs. Clark characterized the principle of the separation of powers as > . . . a principle universally recognized as vital to the integrity and maintenance of the system of government ordained by the constitution.

Therefore, if we are to maintain the American system of government it is vital that we maintain the basic principle of the separation of powers.

This cursory survey of the machinery of the American system of government makes it clear that it is one of carefully distributed power, designed to prevent the accumulation of all power in the hands of any one man or any one group of men; that if it is to function, the national government must be kept within its proper sphere, the states within their proper spheres, and the legislative, executive, and judicial branches of the federal government each within the orbit of action marked out for it by the constitution. In a nation of 125,000,000 people, with a heterogeneous population and a complex civilization, the lines of demarcation are not always clear. Even though all of the component parts of our federalized union are motivated by an honest desire to act within the limits of the power intrusted to them, conflicts of jurisdiction are bound to arise. If these conflicts are to be settled in a peaceable and orderly manner there must be some tribunal somewhere to which they can be submitted and by which they can be decided. The mind of man has so far been unable to devise a process for the settlement of disputes more fair or more accurate than the judicial process. For this reason the settlement of disputes between the federal government and the states, and between the legislative and executive branches of the federal government was made the duty of the judicial branch of government.

The American system of government cannot function without a judicial tribunal of last resort. The residual power of this republic rests in the people who are the citizens of this republic. They have delegated certain powers to the national government and retained certain powers in the states. Of these powers delegated to the national government they have vested specific powers in specified parts of that government. Any exercise of authority by nation or state, or by congress or President, beyond the power conferred by organic law is pure usurpation. Without a Supreme court of the United States there is no remedy for such usurpation unless it be the remedy in which our forefathers in desperation took refuge in 1776.

The Supreme court is the umpire of our federal system. The constitution sets up the rules of the game. Unless the power to call balls and strikes remains in the Supreme court the game must of necessity end in confusion and in chaos. If the American system is to stand the power of the Supreme court to declare unconstitutional acts of congress and executive orders of the President must remain unimpaired. The farseeing Montesquieu, whom I previously mentioned, stated the case with accuracy when he said:

> Again there is no liberty if the power of judging be not separated from the legislative and executive powers. Were it joined with the legislative, the life and liberty of the subject would be exposed to arbitrary control; for the judge would then be the legislator. Were it joined to the executive power, the judge might behave with all the violence of an oppressor.

Arbitrary control and violence of the oppressor have always in all ages and in all nations accompanied the consolidation of unrestrained power. Against these greatest of evils the American government set up a bulwark of distributed power.

This brings me to that philosophy of law and government which has come to be known as the New Deal. At the outset we can, with truth and justice, make certain statements of fact with reference to it.

First, we can say that the New Deal is a philosophy of law and government. The laws which have been enacted under President Roosevelt's tutelage may appear to the superficial observer to be separate and unrelated phenomena, but any careful study of them discloses that in their objectives and in the mechanisms employed to achieve those objectives they constitute a consistent whole. What those objectives and mechanisms are I shall discuss in a very few moments.

Second, we can say that this New Deal philosophy is not one worked out of a study of the facts of this depression. On the contrary, it is a philosophy worked out in academic halls long before the advent of our present economic difficulties and foisted upon a suffering people, who clutched eagerly at a plausible promise of salvation. If young men, trained in certain great national institutions of learning, and now in the service of Mr. Roosevelt, draft laws for enactment by congress which break down the doctrin of the separation of powers and preclude review by the courts of the actions of the executive we have not far to search in order to discover the source of their ideas.

Third, we can say that the laws which effectuate the New Deal were all drawn outside of congress by a relatively small group of these young men. In the hearings on the bills held before the committees of congress there are frequent references to the "group that drew the bill." If it were not stark tragedy it would be high comedy to read in the reports of these hearings the groping questions directed at the authors of these bills by senators and congressmen unable to comprehend their implications.

The New Deal, then, is a philosophy of law and government, worked out in academic halls long prior to the depression and put into practice by a series of laws drawn by a group of young men trained in that philosophy.

The objectives of the New Deal emerge from a study of these laws. All of them concentrate power in the President. Under them Mr. Roosevelt has been the willing recipient of 77 different powers never before exercised by a chief executive, not even by Washington, who first took the helm of the ship of state, or by Lincoln or Wilson, under whom we fought great wars.

Most of these laws give to the President an uncontroled power to make laws. Many examples could be cited, but one must suffice. The National Industrial Recovery Act gave to the President unrestrained discretion to do what he pleased in the interest of national recovery. He could raise or lower wages as he pleased. He could fix the prices of all commodities and of all services according to his own sweet will. Under the NRA the power to make laws, vested by the constitution in congress, was handed bodily by congress to the President. Executive orders issued by the President and not a statute enacted by congress made the law. Whereas in the period since Lincoln our Presidents have issued on an average 90 executive orders each year, President Roosevelt, during the two year period while the NRA was on the books, issued over 1,100 of such orders. In undertaking to thus make the law, President Roosevelt was exercising usurped power never delegated to him by the people.

ATTACKS OF UNCONSCIOUSNESS.

A DISCONCERTING and dramatic situation is presented when illness attended with unconsciousness or coma—as it is sometimes called—strikes an apparently well person. As a rule the condition comes on with little or no warning. There may be a sudden loss of muscular control and the victim may fall, sustaining a cut, a bruise, or even a fracture. An attack may occur when the patient is in a potentially dangerous situation, such as driving a car. Instances have been reported of individuals who after falling have been struck by motor vehicles.

In a busy place the circumstance always creates consternation and attracts crowds to such an extent that it is often difficult to aid the patient even though a physician is at hand. Insatiable and morbid curiosity exists in most of us and it requires no small amount of self-control to "stand back."

Every one should know some of the possible causes of coma, as the management of the case depends entirely upon the reason for the attack. An injury should first be thought of, such as a blow on the head, whether it has been severe enough to cause a fracture or not. Care must be taken also not to confuse a cut, bruise, or scalp wound resulting from a fall with the initial injury that may have brought on the symptoms.

Apoplexy or rupture of a blood vessel in the brain may be followed by a hemorrhage large enough to produce paralysis and deep unconsciousness, or a patient with severe diabetes may develop diabetic coma. A similar situation—uremic coma—may occur in advanced disease of the kidneys, when the patient is overcome by retention products that should have been throw off by the body.

Poisoning is a common cause, and if due to morphine the pupils of the eyes will be observed to be unusually small—pinpoint in size. Large doses of barbituric acid compounds or chloral hydrate also may be offenders.

When coal gas, illuminating gas, or some other asphyxiating gas is inhaled in sufficient amount the symptom will appear. If carbon monoxide [in cooking gas] is responsible the patient's skin will show the cherry red color which forms when this compound is taken up by the hemoglobin of the blood.

The question naturally arises, "What can be done?"

In most cases it is wise to remove the patient to the nearest hospital or first aid station where needed procedures can be carried out. He should be handled as gently as possible. If a hospital is not within reach, it is well to place the patient in a comfortable position with plenty of fresh air and adequate covering to keep him warm. A physician should be summoned and a relative sent for if the sick man can be identified, so that all the facts concerning his habits may be learned. No one, from merely looking at a patient, can determine with certainty whether he is suffering from diabetes or not, although sometimes the acetone odor of the breath is significant.

The case is related of a man who fell to the floor in an unconscious state in one of our large retail stores. The physician called was at a loss as to how to proceed as no obvious cause of coma was detectable. The fortunate arrival of a relative with the information that the patient was a diabetic supplied the clew, and saved the day and the patient.

To the lay mind a sip of brandy is the most desirable form of first aid. Unfortunately, this is not the case. If alcohol is given the evidence afforded by the odor of the patient's breath is disguised and of no value. It should be recalled that few of these persons can swallow, hence liquids should not be given by mouth.

Drug poisoning can best be handled in a well equipped hospital where the stomach can be thoroughly washed and proper antidotes and stimulants administered.

If the patient is warm and has access to fresh air, artificial respiration should not be used unless natural breathing drops below 10 times per minute.

PAGET'S DISEASE.

E. W. writes: A relative of my husband's is paralyzed from the waist down. The diagnosis is Paget's disease. Is this a venereal disease and is there any danger to children in eating at the same table with the patient?

REPLY.

Neither paralysis nor Paget's disease [an inflammation of the bone with bone deformity] is caused by venereal disease. There is no danger of contagion.

DISEASES OF HEART.

Ned writes: What is the difference between angina pectoris and coronary occlusion?

REPLY.

Coronary thrombosis or occlusion is an obstruction, generally acute, of a branch of one of the arteries resulting in death of that portion of the heart muscle formerly supplied by the closed up vessel.

Angina pectoris is not a disease, in the true sense of the word, but a symptom group characterized by paroxysmal attacks of intense pain beneath the breastbone, fainting, and a fear of death.

The attacks are usually brought on by exertion and the pain is of short duration. In coronary occlusion exertion has little if anything to do with the condition; the pain may last an hour or even longer, and the patient may move about in order to find a comfortable position.

A NEW PLATE.

L. H. T. writes: About a month ago, after having my teeth out, there was a decided increase of saliva. Since having false teeth put in the condition has grown worse. This seems to come from one side. Sometimes this leaves for two or three days, but always comes back. Can you tell me the cause and if anything can be done about it?

REPLY.

Since the increase in salivation is on one side it may well be that a nerve irritation followed the extractions. There is also the possibility of an infection. Meanwhile, diet and personal hygiene should be of the very best, and astringent mouth washes should be tried.

The very pressure of a dental plate may cause sufficient stimulation to the salivary glands to bring on an increased flow. In fact, a few pebbles in the mouth would have the same effect. When you become accustomed to the plate the secretion will probably cease.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN AHL-NIELSEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark.—Hard times, and the consequent loss of passenger trafic, have driven the Scandinavian-American line off the seas.

The American immigration quota killed most of the passenger trade. The American protective trade movement, with a subsequent decrease in Danish exports to the United States, dealt another hard blow to the steamship line.

For the little business left there was great competition from the steamship lines of other countries, many of which had subsidies from their governments. For some time the Danish company tried to get financial support from its government for the sake of maintaining the 56 year old passenger service between the United States and Copenhagen by way of Oslo, Norway, and Halifax, Nova Scotia. It was in 1880 that Scandinavian emigrants crossed the Atlantic for the first time on a line flying the Danish flag.

The attempt to win financial aid was not successful. The Socialist cabinet and the liberal bloc forming the Danish legislature dropped the contemplated bill and the only Danish liner, the Frederick VIII., will be sold. Recently the second oldest liner, the Oscar II., was removed from service and sold to Italy to be used as a transport for carrying troops to Africa.

The Scandinavian-American line, in 1898, had over ten ships in its service, but they were wrecked one after another. The last to go was the Norge, which struck Rockall reef in the Atlantic in 1904, and sank with a huge loss of life.

Then three new vessels were built. The last one was the Frederick VIII., being launched in 1914. These ships carried thousands of Danish born Americans back to their native land. Most of the trips were organized by the late Dr. Max Henius, of Chicago, in coöperation with the Danish societies Dania and Harmonien.

With the establishment of the American immigration quota, Danish emigration to the United States was practically stopped, and the Danish settlements in America were cut off from the infusion of fresh blood from the fatherland. Consequently the interest of the younger generations in Denmark, Norway, and Sweden decreased to a great extent. The effect of this was strongly felt by the passenger ships.

The United States line has been the most important competitor of the Scandinavian-American line. In the future the Danish freighters in regular service to the United States will carry passengers.

Among the Scandinavian societies and unions on both sides of the Atlantic there is a great feeling of regret that the line which flew their flag, and which united those at home with those abroad, should have to pass out of existence.

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Please advise, if, where there is a joint bank account, there is a difference between the wording "John Jones or Mary Jones" and "John Jones and Mary Jones." 2. I have been told there is a difference, so that in case of the death of one the other would not be allowed to take the account, although both are contributing to it. If there is a difference when the death of either occurs will you please so to advise me, stating which word should be used, as we want either one who lives to get it.
T. E.

1. We would suppose that where the word "or" is used, either party could sign checks, but where the word "and" is used, both might be required. The practical question is the attitude of the bank handling the account.

2. If the survivorship principle does not operate, this would contradict your hypothesis that the account is "joint."

To create a joint tenancy in real estate the conveyance should expressly declare that title is to pass not in tenancy in common but in joint tenancy. [Ill. revised statutes, chap. 76, sec. 1.] If title is already in one of the parties it should be deeded to a third person who is not subject to judgment liens. He should then deed back to the two, using a joint tenancy form, which can be secured from a stationer.

To create a joint tenancy in personal property the "will or other instrument in writing" should express "an intention to create a joint tenancy . . . with the right of survivorship" [section 2]. Under the statute we consider it advisable not to rely on the wording of a stock certificate nor on the fact that the parties have joint access to a safety box. The intention should be expressed in a writing by the owner or owners.

On the death of a joint tenant, the property passes to the survivor without necessity for probate and to the exclusion of the heirs or devisees of the one who dies first. The one-half that thus passes by survivorship is subject to inheritance tax.

Kewanee, Ill., Feb. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I found out recently that I am adopted. I would like to find out [1] who my parents were. 2. I understand [from hearsay] that they were wealthy. Is there a way I would be entitled to any of their estate in case they are dead? 3. What would be my legal relations to my foster parents' estate—the same as their own daughter? M. C.

1. Follow up clews in your possession.
2. Depends on whether they left wills and on other facts that are not before us.
3. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

GUARDIANSHIP.

Park Ridge, Ill., Feb. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Upon the death of my father eight years ago, my son, a minor, was one of the heirs in his will. I, being a widow, a guardian was appointed by the court. This inheritance was invested in bonds of a concern which soon after went into the hands of a receiver. In about six months my son will become of age. 1. Can the guardian be held responsible for the amount of the inheritance plus interest? 2. Would the court give him the authority to invest it in such a manner? H. L. I.

1. If the investment was properly handled the guardian is not obliged to make up a loss.

2. The only clew as to the manner of the investment is that it turned out poorly. This does not prove anything.

THE ECONOMICS OF SCARCITY.

Chicago, March 4.—In your editorial today condemning the Agricultural Adjustment act and its influence in raising farm prices you said: "But the advance in prices has not been enough to offset the reduction in output so that farmers are actually receiving less for the smaller crops sold at higher prices than they would have received without the AAA when larger crops sold at lower prices."

We doubt if this statement can be supported by facts. As applied to live stock, and I believe that most, if not all, other farm crops, it is dead wrong. The facts are that Illinois farmers last year received $40,000,000 more for 25 per cent less live stock marketed in 1935 compared with 1934. The sharp drop in live stock volume last year was due largely to the drouth—partly to the AAA.

Hog prices at Chicago, for example, averaged $4.65 per hundred weight in 1934 compared with $9.27 in 1935. Our live stock income figures are based on United States census reports. These reports as well as the hog price averages are of public record.

Your statement quoted above likewise fails to take into consideration the increased cost to the farmer of producing large crops to sell at a loss compared with smaller ones.

You will be interested in knowing that crude oil prices in California and elsewhere are being maintained by a restriction of output. Throughout industry, production and price control are the rule. Why do you condemn this principle when applied in agriculture? Balanced production in farming is a defense measure. The American system of controled production and prices has forced the farmer to it. If all other interests in this country would abandon price fixing and production control I think the farmer would be willing to take his chance along with the rest.

A LAWN RUINED.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 26.—The disappearance of the snow this week-end revealed lovely green grass in our back yard. On our front parkway lay revealed the unsightly miniature mountain range, composed of broken surface pavement, deposited by WPA workers some three months ago. Not a vestige remained of the carefully tended lawn which last spring was planted, almost blade by blade, on hands and knees.

Now that the weather has improved, the so-called workers seem to be engaged in a different type of marathon. They parade up and down the sidewalk, carrying their brooms and shovels over their shoulders, like so many little soldiers. Would it be too much to expect them to at least rake the débris off the lawns and carry it away? We could, of course, do it ourselves, except that we do not know where to put it, since the alley is already glutted with ashes, garbage and tin cans which have not been cleared away for weeks.

Disgust is too mild a term to describe the feeling on the part of the residents of West 64th street toward this WPA farce.
MARIE AEBISCHER.

OTHER SOURCES OF INFLATION.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—In your editorial, "Hedging Against Inflation," you state that if the budget were balanced and if the possibility of further devaluation of the dollar were removed the danger of inflation would vanish.

These are not the only causes of inflation. In the past we have had periods of inflation and periods of deflation, intentionally created by the bankers. In 1927, for example, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, using financial and political power, compelled the lowering of the rediscount rate, although the other eleven reserve banks were opposed to it. Prior to the establishment of the reserve banks the banking system would expand credit for the purpose of creating inflation, and then would cause deflation by contracting credit, calling loans, and refusing to make new loans.
SINGLE TAXER.

CIVIL SERVICE.

Chicago, March 2.—Friends of good government are still interested in the passage of a civil service bill for all Cook county employés.

In the interest of all taxpayers the selection of these employés and their continued retention in public service should be judged on a merit basis and not of patronage. Especially true is it of the office of the registrar and recorder of deeds, as well as the county treasurer, where accuracy, efficiency and full knowledge of their work are essential.

Such a bill, I believe, was introduced at the last session in Springfield, and after being advanced to third reading was referred to the committee on civil service, where it was pigeonholed and never reported out.
CIVIL SERVICE.

THE CARDINAL SIN.

Chicago, March 2.—In the discussion of the retirement of Gen. Hagood there is one incident that I have not seen mentioned, except in the news columns. It is important in that it is characteristic of the New Deal viewpoint, which looks at all events only as they may affect party success. I refer to Senator Blanton's angry demand that Secretary Dern and two assistant secretaries be impeached. "Why," he exclaimed, "their action may cost our party a million votes."

DOWNSTATE WILL GET INTENSIVE DOSE OF POLITICS

Candidates' Trails to Cross and Recross.

BY PARKE BROWN.

For the next three weeks downstate cities are to be treated to a kaleidoscope of politics such as they never have witnessed. Candidates will be coming and going so rapidly that ordinary onlookers may have trouble in keeping track of what's going on.

Up to and including March 28 the scores of state nomination seekers will be stumping throughout the state with Cook county reserved for the final two weeks of the battle. With seven of the eight Republican candidates for governor actively campaigning, and with the Horner-Bundesen battle being waged steadily, and with dozens of other candidates scurrying around, every major town can count on at least a couple of political demonstrations every week from now until the end of the month.

Some Actual Collisions.

So thoroughly is the state outside of Cook county to be canvassed that the trails of the speakers cross each other frequently. In some instances actual collisions will occur, according to the lines of march now laid down. There will be rival meetings at the same hour in some towns.

The most interesting day of this sort is Saturday, March 21, as forecast in the itineraries for the three weeks now public—those of the two Democratic governorship contenders, Gov. Horner and Herman N. Bundesen, who is accompanied by the rest of the regular slate, and that of Wayland Brooks, the most active of the Republicans seeking the same office.

According to the official announcements, Horner and the Bundesen caravan on that day will appear at the same hour of the day in each of three northern Illinois cities.

Three Meetings in Day.

At 11 o'clock both are slated to appear in Belvidere, in Boone county. Both then move eastward across the Eighth senatorial district. Both are due in Woodstock, McHenry county, at 2 in the afternoon. Then both are scheduled to face massmeetings in Waukegan, Lake county, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Those three places are the only ones on the Horner schedule. The Bundesen itinerary provides for stops also at Marengo, Harvard, McHenry, and Libertyville.

Since they are to be in these and other communities at the same time, there have been suggestions that the rivals appear together on the same platform and speak for the same length of time.

While the Eighth senatorial district affords the finest example of competition, there will be other collisions throughout the three week period. On Friday of this week there will be rival evening meetings held by the Brooks and Horner forces in Bloomington. And Bundesen will follow on their heels Saturday evening.

Springfield will have a Brooks meeting Thursday evening and a Bundesen meeting. Decatur will see this program reversed. Bundesen will be there Thursday evening and there will be a Brooks massmeeting Friday evening. Jacksonville will have a chance to hear Horner Tuesday evening and to go to a Brooks rally Wednesday evening.

As a sort of introduction to this close contact between contestants, Galesburg tomorrow is to see all the seven active Republican candidates for governor. All were invited to the annual meeting of the John Ericsson Republican league, a Swedish-American organization, and all but Len Small, who, possibly because of his advanced years is not active, have accepted.

The Other G. O. P. Candidates.

The other candidates, in addition to Brooks, are a second Cook county man, H. Wallace Caldwell, and five downstaters, John G. Oglesby, Oscar E. Carlstrom, J. Paul Kuhn, Thomas P. Gunning, and George W. Dowell. These five downstaters are expected to cross lines during the next three weeks with other travelers downstate but their itineraries have not been announced. Otis F. Glenn and William E. Hull, candidates for United States senator, will continue downstate, as will seekers of nominations for secondary state offices.

In connection with the presence of candidates in Galesburg tomorrow, the Republican Service Men's league of Knox county, an affiliate of the regular organization there, will give a reception for Wayland Brooks, whom it already has indorsed.

The Brooks for Governor Union Labor league was organized yesterday at the Hotel La Salle and opened its headquarters there in suite 514-15. Thomas J. Murray of the electrical workers was chosen president. The other officers include Michael J. Kennedy, also of the electricians, Robert Byren and James J. Ryan of the sheet metal workers, George Roscoe of the cement finishers, Peter A. Ruley of the roofers, Thomas Priestly of the lathers, and Frank Lunquist of the Musicians' union.

LAUNCH $2,000,000 SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM TOMORROW

Mayor Edward J. Kelly is to participate tomorrow in two ground breaking ceremonies which will signalize the start of the board of education's $2,000,000 school construction program, according to James B. McCahey, president of the board. The first ceremony will be at 1:45 p. m. on the site of the LeMoyne Elementary school addition, 851 Waveland avenue, and the second at 2:30 o'clock at the Lyon Elementary school.

CRUSADERS TELL TACTICS IN BLACK INQUISITION HERE

Wheeler Charges Violation of Constitution.

The senate lobby investigating committee, headed by Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.], was accused yesterday by the Crusaders, a national patriotic society, of violating the constitution in its inquisitions. Seymour Wheeler, national commander of the widely known organization, recited facts about the committee's methods in a letter to the two Illinois senators, James Hamilton Lewis and William H. Dieterich.

All telegrams received and sent by the Chicago office of the Crusaders from Feb. 1 to Dec. 1, 1935, have been subpenaed by the Black inquisition. In addition Mr. Wheeler's personal telegrams during the same period have been ordered seized. In his letter to the senators Mr. Wheeler denied the society ever engaged in lobbying and added that he believed the committee's action was a "distinct violation of the fourth amendment to the constitution." This amendment forbids search and seizure without proper legal process.

Mr. Wheeler said the Western Union Telegraph company recently informed the Crusaders it had been served with a mandatory subpena dated Jan. 11, to turn over copies of all the Crusaders' and Wheeler's messages.

"Early in September, 1935, the Crusaders received a questionnaire from the Black committee, demanding information and records which we did not feel they were entitled to," said the letter. "We replied, agreeing to coöperate with the committee in an investigation which would expose all types of lobbying, and that any fair and complete investigation should include that carried on by government officials.

Committee Ignores Efforts.

"Shortly thereafter, two investigators representing the Black committee appeared at the Crusaders office here. Although counsel advised us that we in no way came under the purview of that committee, our records were made available to them.

"In spite of this fact and that we coöperated in every way, the Black committee has seen fit to take this unwarranted action.

"This organization never has lobbied. We never have been subsidized by any group or individual, nor have our radio broadcasts in any way been subject to outside influences.

Fights for Constitution.

"If to insist on the maintenance of individual rights and liberties and preservation of the constitution is un-American, then this organization must plead guilty to a lack of patriotism.

"If we have reached a point when the constitutional rights of the individual can be violated by any political group, is it not high time that we have an accounting?

"I would appreciate your opinion as to whether you regard this action of the Black committee as a violation of the constitution."

However, as an aid to you, Hines has a list of independent contractors who use good materials and the quality of whose work we can certify. These Hines certified contractors are men fully capable of guaranteeing satisfaction on their own account. They are the preferred contractors in every community. HIROTA LINES UP CABINET; SEEKS JAP ARMY'S O. K.

Premier-Designate Aims to Please Militarists.

TOKIO, March 8.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Koki Hirota, Japan's veteran foreign minister, was believed to be nearing success early today in his struggles to construct a new government.

Friends said he expected to be able to line up sufficient ministers to give him a complete cabinet by nightfall—providing the nation's military leaders approve the names on the list.

Hirota, designated premier after the attempt of assassins last week against members of Premier Okada's cabinet, was expected to submit his nomination to Gen. Count Juichi Terauchi—his nominee for war minister—for approval.

Hirota already has run counter to the army's tastes in a preliminary choice of ministers. He had a slate all chosen, then discovered that the military men disapproved of three of his choices.

All three are Liberals and Hirota's friends. One of them, Shigeru Yoshida, he had chone to succeed himself in the foreign office. The other two are Naoshi Obara, whom he wanted to be minister of justice, and Hiroshi Shimomura, whom he had invited to serve as minister of colonies.

The three withdrew voluntarily in order to give Hirota a free hand in new choices.

Four Sisters and Brother Overcome by Oil Fumes

Five members of a family residing at 812 North Damen avenue were revived by a fire department inhalator squad last night after they had been overcome by fumes from a small oil stove in their home. The victims are Miss Anna Fogarty, 21 years old; her sisters Catherine, 17; and Lucille, 15, and Mary, 11, and their brother Michael, 13. Their condition was not regarded as serious, but Lucille, Michael and Mary were taken to the County hospital.

JUDGE UPHOLDS INDICTMENT OF CAPTAIN FORBY

Minneapolis, Minn., March 7.—[Special.]—District Judge Levi M. Hall refused today to quash an indictment charging Capt. William D. Forby of the north side police station with wilful neglect of duty.

Attorney Eugene Rerat argued that the January-February grand jury which indicted Capt. Forby was unduly influenced. Rerat supened Byron H. Timberlake, foreman of the November-December grand jury, who denied being in the grand jury room at or about the time when Capt. Forby was indicted.

Rerat contended, among other things, that the grand jury had no competent evidence on which to base its charges. He argued a police officer of Minneapolis is not a peace officer of the state and therefore not accountable for enforcement of state laws.

Mrs. Mary A. Crews, 88, Sister of Borah, Stricken

Fairfield, Ill., March 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Alice Crews, 88 years old, a sister of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, suffered a paralytic stroke at her home here today. Physicians said her condition was critical.

POLICEMEN SHOT IN BATTLE WITH THREE GUNMEN

Policeman George Schupolsky Jr. of the Albany Park station was wounded in his left hand early today in a gun fight with three young hoodlums which ended a three mile automobile chase through the north side. Schupolsky and his partner, Thomas Smith, sought to question the youths at Addison street and Crawford avenue, but they drove away at high speed.

The squad car followed and overtook the fugitives at Damen and Belle Plaine avenues. The gunmen opened fire and a dozen shots were exchanged, one bullet striking Schupolsky.

KILLS RICH HEIR, THEN HIMSELF AT SIDE OF HIS WIFE

Paris Business Man Slain by Brother-in-Law.

Paris, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Ben Logan, 47, wealthy Paris business man, was shot and killed today by his brother-in-law, Arthur Reese, 53, who then went home and killed himself while clasped in his wife's arms.

Logan was slain as he was shaving in the washroom of an office in the Logan Lumber company, which he inherited only about three weeks ago on the death of his father, W. S. Logan, millionaire Paris merchant.

Logan was left the bulk of his father's huge estate and was named executor of the will and trustee for most of the other heirs. His sister, Mrs. Reese, received approximately $50,000 under the terms of her father's will.

At an inquest held shortly after the shootings, Homer Perkins, a bookkeeper at the lumber yard, said he witnessed the slaying of Logan. After Reese shot down his brother-in-law, he turned his revolver toward Perkins and pulled the trigger but the cartridge fortunately did not fire, the bookkeeper said.

At an inquest Mrs. Reese testified that her husband came home carrying a pistol in his hand. She said he told her he "might need it."

"I put my arms around him and said 'We have each other—what difference does money make?' but he shot himself while I still held him," she related.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder and suicide. In addition to his widow, Reese is survived by two sons. Logan also was married but had no children.

SENTENCE UPHELD AGAINST WIDOW OF CHICAGO PASTOR'S SON

Memphis, Tenn., March 7.—(AP)—Daisy Alexander Root's second degree murder conviction and 10 year sentence for the slaying of her husband, Brenton Root, were allowed to stand today. Judge Phil Wallace of the Criminal court overruled her motion for a new trial.

Root, son of the Rev. Benjamin F. Root, Chicago clergyman, was shot to death at his country home near here several months ago a few hours after a night club argument with his wife. She said she had resented his attentions to a cabaret "cigaret girl." On the witness stand Mrs. Root pleaded self-defense. She said her husband had "reached for his gun." Mrs. Root will remain at her mother's under $7,500 bond until the state Supreme court has ruled on her case.

EX-MISSIONARY'S RECORD AS BIBLE READER: 84 TIMES

On Knees Much of Time; Aims for 100 Mark.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Friends of John S. Fiddler of 1706 North La Salle street, 70 years old, a retired missionary to China, pointed out yesterday that he had surpassed by far the record of Mark J. Goodger of 1251 North Dearborn street, in quantitative reading of the Scripture.

Goodger revealed last Thursday that he had completed his thirty-fifth reading of the Bible in its entirety. He is 36 years old. Mr. Fiddler, however, has read the Bible 84 times, according to his recording.

Of the 84 readings of the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, 22 of them were performed while Mr. Fiddler was on his knees. His outstanding year was in 1934, when he read the Bible eleven times, all in a kneeling position.

Reads Bible 2½ Hours a Day.

"I found at the end of that year, though, that the small of my back gave way," Mr. Fiddler said, "so I've read it sitting up since."

He spent about 2½ hours a day that year on his knees reading the scriptures, he said.

The ruddy, lean cheeks of the former missionary grew ruddier and his neat white goatee bristled upward as he threw back his head and said:

"I know of Christians who do not read their Bible so much as once a year. It seems to me that is the least a body can do."

Goodger, who began reading the Bible when he was 10 years old, has a slight edge over the elder man in one respect. When Mr. Fiddler was Goodger's age, 36, he had not equaled Goodger's record. He dates his recorded reading of the Bible from the time he was 22 years old.

"From the time I was saved until last December I read the Bible 83 times," he said. "But I don't want to seem boastful. If the Lord spares me, I hope to read it seven times this year. I'm on the second reading now.

"Of course," he said, "I will never cease so long as I live."

Wife a Missionary, Too.

Mr. Fiddler went to a bookcase filled with religious works and brought out several volumes of a large typed Oxford Press edition of the Bible, which he handled with apparent tenderness. Near by his wife Matilda, a missionary in China almost as many years as he was, smiled and murmured that she, too, had read her Bible on her knees when she was younger.

"For 10 years in China I always read the Bible while kneeling, but I didn't take much time to do it then," Mr. Fiddler said. "Then, in 1930, two years after we came home here, when every one was talking about A Century of Progress, I decided to try to read the Bible 100 times. George Muller of England in his writings says he read it 100 times."

Explaining that the time went rapidly when he read the Bible, Mr. Fiddler declared:

"The Bible is God's love letter to me. Now, my wife and I never courted. I met her after she came out from six months of hiding in holes in the ground during the Boxer rebellion in China. We parted, were three months distant by travel, and when we saw each other again, three years later, we were married at once."

Disabled Veterans of 3 States Open Convention

The annual eighth district caucus of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War opened at the Hotel La Salle yesterday with about 200 delegates in attendance from Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin. M. J. Sonius, national committeeman of the organization, presided. The delegates discussed problems of the D. A. V. and were addressed by Sidney T. Holzman, Cook county commander of the American Legion, who welcomed them to Chicago; Lyman Zimmer, national rehabilitation officer of the disabled veterans, and Carter Smith, past state commander of the organization.

'ABUNDANT LIFE' HIS PLAN, TOO, BUNDESEN SAYS

West Frankfort, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Saying that if elected governor he would promote "the more abundant life," Herman N. Bundesen, seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, addressed 1,500 in the high school auditorium here tonight.

Bundesen said that phrase meant to him "jobs, health giving food, a habitable home, a good education, not too much to ask in the midst of our great national resources." He favored a "buy Illinois" policy that would increase the consumption of Illinois coal. Bundensen added that state institutions bought only three barrels of Illinois apples in a recent thirty day period. Bundesen, as president of the Chicago board of health, said women need not fear that milk is fattening.

Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes of Chicago, seeking renomination, said Bundesen was indorsed by the Democratic state central committee because of his vote getting ability and his record in public office.

"Don't let anybody tell you," Hughes declared, "that there's any question of Bundesen carrying Cook county by close to 500,000 votes in this primary."

Plan Special Machine Gun Classes for New Detectives

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan announced yesterday that a class will be opened March 16 to instruct new detectives in the use of machine guns. Three one hour classes will be held every day except Sunday. Chief Sullivan said the new school is necessary because of the recent transfer to the detective bureau of many policemen from district stations. Sergt. Frank Ballou, ballistic expert, will be in charge.

TWO INTRUDERS BEAT WOMAN, 47, AND FATHER, 82

The police searched last night for two robbers who entered the home of Matthew Holstein, 82 years old, at 2038 Emerson avenue Friday evening and beat him and his daughter, Miss Christine Holstein, 47 years old. Miss Holstein said she admitted the men when one of them pretended to be a messenger with a telegram. She screamed when the two forced their way past her. Her father was beaten after he ran to help her when the robbers were maltreating her for making an outcry. The victims required the care of a physician yesterday.

11 Workers Killed by Blast in Italian Auto Factory

MILAN, Italy, March 7.—(AP)—Eleven workmen were killed and three others seriously injured in a terrific explosion today at the Isotta Fraschini automobile and airplane motor factory. The explosion, which occurred near a furnace used for fusing metal, set fire to two large gasoline tanks.

MANVILLE AND WIFE SEPARATED AGAIN; HE MAY FLEE TO EUROPE

New Rochelle, N. Y., March 7.—(AP)—The Manvilles have separated again and Tommy, roofing fortune heir, has moved his office here to be safe behind guarded gates from "continued threats."

He declared today he would flee to Europe "like Babs did," referring to the Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz Reventlow, if he doesn't get "some peace."

His wife, the former Marcelle Edwards, who returned to him from Reno only a few weeks ago, is in New York.

"Threats against my life, attempts at extortion and pursuit by various women, have got to stop or I'll go to England," Manville said.

He said Marcelle left him six hours after she got back last month from Reno where she had gone, he said, to get a divorce with $100,000 he agreed to settle upon her.

RADIO CHANGES THEATER TO FIT FIRESIDE STAGE

Home Circle Guarantor of Morals, Taste.

Points for Air Actors

This is the second of a series of three articles on phases of radio broadcasting, prepared by James O'Donnell Bennett after he had spent many hours in the studios of W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune radio station, watching the preparation and presentation of hundreds of varied programs.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Radio is making new history in the annals of acting and in the use of the human voice.

"Vox es, et praeterea nihil!" exclaimed Plutarch's peasant who, having plucked a nightingale bare, gazed upon the tiny body that lay in the palm of his hand.

The story was old at the dawn of the Christian era, but as a description of radio acting it is as up to the minute as a radio playlet scheduled for this Sunday.

For of radio acting there can be no more accurate description than the ancient laconicism:

"Voice thou art, and naught else!"

Radio Actor's Task Arduous.

Few radio listeners comprehend how heavy are the handicaps laid upon the radio actor and how distracting are his difficulties.

Those handicaps and difficulties are created in part by that trick medium, the microphone.

The microphone not only exaggerates faults but makes faults of what, on the old dramatic stage, were merits.

What radio actors call "the Shakespearean voice box"—meaning the elaborate delivery of the old stage—is not needed in radio, and when old timers draw upon the Shakespearean voice box, the result is insufferably oppressive.

Precision Drawn Too Fine.

If a radio actor, in a well meant effort to be precise, waxes a shade too precise the microphone makes him sound mincing. If he becomes as "dramatic" as he safely could have been on the old stage, the microphone turns his utterance into ranting.

On the old stage an actor with an excess of "refinement" could say something like "O, mothah, pahss me a glahss of watah" and not be hissed. In radio the sufferers soon switch him off.

Almost all the character actors on the air today are from the old stage, but only those have survived who were able to adapt themselves to radio's demands. Only 30 per cent of them did adapt themselves.

Ethel Barrymore Exceptional.

When Ethel Barrymore first assaulted radio she was a failure. For some strange reason the audiences of her girlhood considered her celebrated huskiness and her drawl charming. The microphone made them sound like the utterance of an uncertain old dowager, and decidedly they were not charming. Being a resourceful artist, Miss Barrymore was able to adapt herself to new demands. After six months of experience she sounded twenty years younger. Bravely meeting new and exacting demands put youth back into her voice.

Phonograph Shows Flaws.

The most pitiless critique of o'er-confident notables coming newly to radio is a phonograph recording of them as they speak into the microphone.

The sensible ones who can bear the shock say:

"Good heavens, am I as bad as that!"

"Not as bad," the patient director replies, "but the microphone makes you sound that bad. It is as cruel as an enlargement of a poor photograph."

Those not so sensible say:

"That's an atrocious recording!"

"Possibly," the director grants, "but the atrocity is fundamentally your doing and not the record's."

Dudley Crafts Watson, art critic and lecturer, was shocked by what a record made of his somewhat overprecise diction. But he did not sulk. He modified.

Directors Aim at Fine Line.

Blair Walliser of W-G-N, accounted one of the very best dramatic directors in radio, summed up the whole matter thus:

"What we most strive for in radio diction is the fine line between diction so precise that it will sound affected and diction so natural that it will sound too casual. Naturalness is at a premium on the air as nowhere else, because the mike so pitilessly emphasizes affectations. And yet it must not be a slipshod naturalness. Hence many a child who is being just naturally 'natural'—if I may put it that way—is better on the air than is many an old school actor who is studiously trying to be natural."

Sometimes a tactless employé in a studio will say to an actor of the old stage who is newly come to radio:

"Well, my boy, I guess tonight brings the first time you ever had an audience of 500,000!"

That scares the wits out of the newcomer. In his panic he forgets for the moment that his audience unit is as a matter of fact smaller than ever he had before. It is father, mother, junior, sister, and perhaps neighbor or two assembled not in a theater seating a thousand persons, but in a cozy sitting room.

The result is blah.

Shouters Are Tuned Off.

"You don't like shouting in your home," said Mr. Walliser. "If a guest shouts you don't invite him again. Neither do radio's family groups like to have shouters and blatters crowding into their sitting rooms. They disturb the peace and get on the nerves. In the theater the entertainment is for five hundred or a thousand persons. That audience has paid its way. Its mood is keyed high. It wants to be tremendously moved to laughter and tears. The vast grand total of radio's audience is in a different mood. Its units are at home and they incline to look upon the radio as a guest of the family circle and on much more intimate terms with them than the actor in a theater is with his audience."

Family Keeps Radio Decent.

The moral Mr. Walliser drew from this distinction between the radio's unit of audience and a theaterful of audience is that the decency of the American sitting room—with mother and the children assembled there—is partly what keeps radio decent.

Unscrupulous managers of the old stage could—and still do—evade their obligation to the decencies by saying, "Well, if you didn't want smut you shouldn't have come to this play."

Radio managers cannot say that because they are the comers. They are the ones asking to be admitted. If the sitting room considers their presence undesirable and their product unsavory they can be put out with one twist of the wrist.

The result is that the American sitting room is a better censor of radio's morals than all the burocracies in Washington possibly could be.

Few Graduates of Stage.

Whence come the thousands of eager, alert, responsive, adaptable and—on the whole—correct speaking young actors and actresses who are with remarkable success meeting the requirements of the hundreds of little "continued in our next" dramatic episodes which American radio puts on the air every day?

In the first place, a large proportion of them does not come from the old stage. Nor, on the other hand, is the percentage of successes—of "finds"—from the ranks of absolutely raw amateurs large.

Source of Radio Actors.

The smaller radio stations of the so-called bush leagues, where almost the rawest of amateurs can get a chance to prove how bad he is.

The speech schools and student dramatic clubs of universities and colleges, notably, in Chicagoland, the speech school of Northwestern university.

The legitimate—or what I have been calling the old—stage.

Summer stock companies.

The individual entertainers—recitationists, humorists, monologists, and the like—of the Chautauqua circuits.

Auditions for amateurs, which are usually "blind auditions" because they are so conducted that no "influence" can be exercised.

"Little Theater" groups, such as the group at the Goodman theater of the Art institute and numerous less pretentious organizations of persons who act for the love of acting.

Unseen by Judges.

Of those eight sources the most fruitful, in the order here given, are the smaller radio stations, the university and college speech schools and dramatic clubs, and the legitimate stage.

The auditions for leading parts are called "blind auditions" because the judges neither see the contestants nor know their names. Radio acting being vox et praeterea nihil, the judges do not have to judge the contestants on facial play, gesticulation or bearing. The contestants are known by numbers and when the third contestant in an audition faces the test he says merely, "This is No. 3 speaking."

About 75 per cent of them are college bred. Many of the young women are convent schooled. Most of them get forward rapidly because convent schooling almost always means good diction.

Total Pay Exceeds 30 Millions.

The grand total of money earned by this new group of mostly young players in a young development in an old profession—radio acting being only seven years old—is amazing. Today the expenditure for talent on major networks is from thirty to thirty-five million dollars a year, and seven hundred independent small stations spend from three and a half to five millions a year for talent.

The minimum payment in radio, except for the merest bits, is $10 for participation in one 15-minute "show"—or episode—of a drama, three to six different episodes being enacted weekly. But you have to remember that this payment per episode also includes payment for rehersals and that a 15-minute episode is rehersed from one to two or even three hours.

According to the gifts of the player the $10 payment per episode mounts to $25 per episode or even more. In the case of players on contract, salaries may run as high as $150 to $200 a week for participation in five 15-minute episodes. But if the $200 a week player of five episodes a week in one drama has the strength to act in two, three, or four—that last the limit—episodes of other dramas every week, he can run his weekly income up to $300 or $400. But for the supplementary work he thus takes on he will not receive a $200 a week salary—far from it. This is because in the supplementary work he will not be playing leading parts.

You can count on the fingers of both hands all the $400 a week radio players in Chicago.

Clara, Lu, and Em—$500.

Then come the nationally featured players, as in the Case of Clara, Lu, and Em, who give the amateur actor dizzying dreams of the opulence that will be his if he can get into radio. Before Clara, Lu, and Em went domestic they each were earning as high as $500 a week, but that was very exceptional.

Altogether exceptional is the salary of one of the leading comedians of the air who gets $10,000 for one half hour broadcast a week. Out of that sum he pays his foil and his writer, and it is probable that his half hour broadcast means ten hours of rehersal.

On the whole, nobody starves in this new trade.

What the little people and some of the big ones are like in action—in other words, in rehersal—will be told in next week's article.

New York, March 7.—(AP)—Charging deprecation of his claim to discovery of the north pole in 1908 Dr. Frederick A. Cook today filed a $125,000 damage suit in Supreme court against the Encyclopedia Britannica, the Viking Press, the Houghton Mifflin company, and Jeanette Mirsky, a writer.

Vilhjalmer Stefansson and Donald B. MacMillan, explorers, contributed to two of the books of which Dr. Cook complains, but they are not named as defendants.

The suit contained three causes of action. The first named Miss Mirsky and the Viking Press for publication of the book, "To the North." Dr. Cook charged that the book accused him falsely of fraud, misrepresentation, and obtaining money under false pretenses. In this action the complainant asks $50,000 damages.

A second cause asks $25,000 damages for a four line reference to Dr. Cook in the Encyclopedia Britannica which closes with the statement: "Claims universally rejected."

In the third cause of action Dr. Cook named the Houghton Mifflin company for publication of the book, "How Peary Reached the North Pole," by Donald B. MacMillan.

Dr. Cook said in his room at the Bismarck hotel here yesterday that the New York action is one of the steps he plans to take to prove that he discovered the north pole in 1908 and to end circulation of false statements about himself.

CORONER ACTS ON DOUBLE SLAYING.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned verdicts of murder and suicide respectively in the deaths of Mrs. Barara Rivers, 23 years old, and her husband, Michael, 25 years old, found shot to death in a hotel room at 768 Jackson boulevard Friday.

MRS. BAUR PENS HER ANSWERS TO VOTERS' QUERIES

A new handbook for voters, entitled an "A-B-C Primer of Practical Politics," has just been issued by Mrs. Bertha Baur, Republican national committeewoman for Illinois, a candidate for the Republican nomination in the Ninth congressional district.

The primer, a 12 page folder, is the second to be issued by Mrs. Baur. The first, "A B C's for Young Republicans," was issued in 1934.

The new booklet answers such questions as: What is a national convention? What is a national election? What are the qualifications for voting? What questions are asked the applicant for registration? What is the first registration day in Cook county? May a resident register by mail for the primary? [The answer is "No."] For the general election? ["Yes."] and—How may I help the Republican party in the 1936 campaign?

Other pertinent facts concern rules governing registration in Illinois, the dates for primary and general elections, who can vote in both elections, and the procedure to be followed in voting by mail.

NEW SENSATIONS HIT 'DOLL BABY' MURDER TRIAL

Sergeant Collapses, Juror Flees to Burning Home.

DORCHESTER, N. B., March 7.—(AP)—New Brunswick's "doll baby" murder trial, infused with generous testimony from the Royal Canadian mounted police, manufactured sensations not pertinent to the case today.

As Arthur Bannister, 19 years old, fighting for his life, looked on, a crown witness tumbled in a faint from the witness box and a juror fled from the courtroom in answer to a summons that his house had burned down.

Sergeant Collapses.

The fainting witness, already ill with a cold when he took the stand, was Sergt. B. G. Peters of the mounted police. He had to be carried from the courtroom.

Before his collapse, however, he had described the death scene at lonely Pacific Junction where Philip Lake, for whose slaying Bannister is on trial, was found dead—or so the crown insists.

Lake's son, 21 months old, died in a snowdrift near the body of his mother, Mrs. Marshall Ring, Lake's common law wife. Lake's daughter, six months old, was carried off.

Theory of Slaying.

The prosecution's case is built around the theory that the triple slaying occurred to permit Bannister's mother to obtain possession of Lake's baby daughter. The baby daughter, in turn, according to the prosecution, was to be used in place of a doll baby which Mrs. May Bannister had been using to bring pressure on two men friends of her own daughter to contribute to the latter's support.

In this bizarre situation a brother of the present defendant also is charged with murder and kidnaping, and the mother with conspiracy and kidnaping.

Peters described the footprints found at the burned ruins of the Lake home, and the remnants of a body. Defense counsel asked, "was any search made to locate Philip Lake?"

"No," responded the witness. "It was taken for granted the body was that of Lake."

Albert A. Powell, another witness, who previously told the court Mrs. Bannister had warned him he would be held responsible if her 11 year old daughter, Marie, became a mother, testified regarding a hunting knife found by police near the ruins of Lake's cabin.

"I saw that knife at the Bannister home," he said.

Try to Show Doctor's Jealousy.

MANCHESTER, England, March 7.—(AP)—A detective testified today that Dr. Buck Ruxton, on trial for the murder of his wife and a nursemaid, once said he "could murder" another man.

The other man, said Detective Constable John Winstanley, was Robert James Edmonson, assistant solicitor in the Lancaster town clerk's office.

The crown was trying to bring out that Dr. Ruxton was jealous of his wife whose dismembered body was found last fall in the Scottish border ravine known as "The Devil's Beef-tub."

Ruxton went to the police station in Lancaster, his home, last Oct. 4 to report that his wife and the nursemaid had disappeared Sept. 15. Detective Winstanley and Inspector T. D. Clark testified that Ruxton at that time asserted Edmonson was responsible for Mrs. Ruxton's disappearance.

Doctor Speeds to Win Bet from Girl; Arrested

Park Policeman David J. Fortier chased a speeding automobile south in the outer drive last night and at 7th street arrested the driver, Dr. Henri L. Du Vries, 37 years old, 401 Fullerton parkway, who has offices at 25 East Washington street. The doctor explained to the policeman that he had wagered $5 with his companion, a young woman, that his car would go 45 miles an hour in second speed. "You've won your bet," said the policeman. Dr. Du Vries was freed in $50 bond.

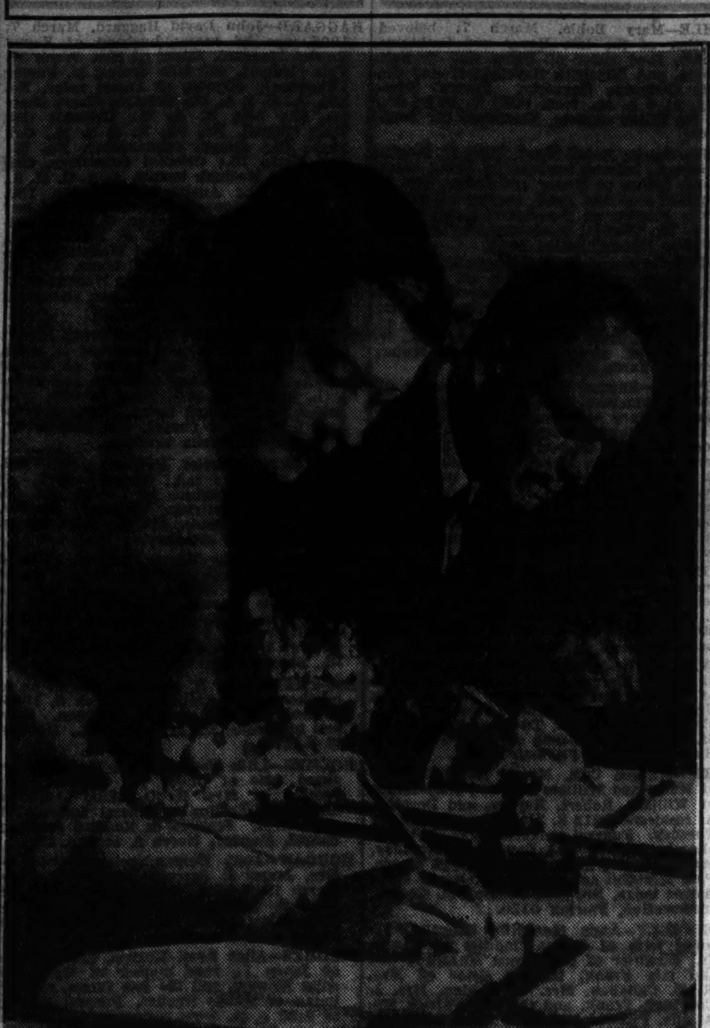
FAIRBANKS MARRIES AGAIN



Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Lady Ashley were married at the Paris city hall yesterday by special dispensation from state officials who waived requirements of residence and publication of bans. This picture, sent by radiophoto from London to New York and by Wirephoto transmitter to Chicago, shows Fairbanks and his bride signing the register after the ceremony. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

DOUG AND SYLVIA HEAD FOR CHINA ON HONEYMOON

PARIS, March 7.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and his bride, the former Sylvia, Lady Ashley, were honeymooning tonight after a civil wedding ceremony had culminated their hectic efforts to have the French marriage laws suspended.

The couple planned to leave on a motor trip to Belgium and Holland and then to sail for China where Fairbanks plans to produce a motion picture based on the life of Marco Polo.

Their marriage was performed earlier in the day by Mayor Gaston Drucker in the gold marriage salon of the eighth ward city hall under a ceiling gaily decorated with pink cupids.

Straus a Guest.

Miss Elizabeth Govet of London attended Lady Ashley and American Ambassador Jesse Isidor Straus arrived at the last minute to sign the register as Fairbanks' witness.

The wedding brought to a climax several days of concerted effort to win suspension of the French marriage regulations of a 30-day residence and 11-day publication of Banns. Final approval for the suspension was given by the state's attorney after Lady Ashley's birth certificate and her divorce decree statement had been brought by plane from London.

Mayor Drucker closed the ceremony with the traditional phrase—"I hope that your love marriage will be very happy"—and wished the newlyweds a pleasant voyage to China.

Doug Wears Overcoat.

Fairbanks and Straus kept their overcoats on during the ceremony and all the wedding party were seated on red plush benches before the mayor's desk during the short legal ritual.

The wedding of the American actor and the former British actress climaxed tangled marital difficulties of both principals which have been aired in courtrooms in the United States and England.

Lord Ashley named Fairbanks as correspondent in the nobleman's divorce suit. He won a decree at London, Nov. 28, 1934, on charges of misconduct between Lady Ashley and the actor.

In January, 1935, Mary Pickford won a divorce from Fairbanks on grounds of mental cruelty, indifference and neglect. The Canadian-born actress' decree became absolute early this year, shortly after Fairbanks returned to the United States.

TELEPHONE COMPANY ASKS PERMIT TO QUIT; ONLY TWO CUSTOMERS

Ottawa, O., March 7.—(AP)—Down to its last two subscribers—and both of them ringing off April 1—the Putnam County Telephone company "folded" today.

Manager John L. Eden asked the public utilities commision for permission to abandon the 32 year old business, whose exchange has not handled a call for a month. There were once 450 subscribers. "You can't make money with only two subscribers," he said, "and when you lose both of them it's time to quit."

Eden said he doesn't know even the names of the president and directors of the company.

The commission promised to act on the petition next week.

CUTS OFF PARTS OF FROZEN FEET WITH JACKKNIFE

WILLIAMS LAKE, B. C., March 7.—(AP)—From a hospital cot Dan Crawley related today how he operated upon himself to save his life as he waited for several days in a cabin in the wilderness for help. With a jackknife Crawley cut away parts of both frozen feet when gangrene set in after his partner, Ted Vachon, had left him in their cabin 45 miles from Blue River to summon medical aid.

Crawley was out on his trapline when he discovered his feet were frozen and barely reached the cabin.

"Vachon and I tried to thaw my legs, but in spite of everything we could do gangrene set in," Crawley related. "Then Ted set out for Blue River. It took him six days to negotiate the 45 miles. During his absence I was fireman, cook, nurse, doctor, and general housekeeper, and didn't know what was going to happen. You can imagine my joy when I heard the whirr of a plane landing."

MOB VIOLENCE DAMAGE SUIT SET FOR THIS WEEK

Judge Grover C. Niemeyer of the Superior court yesterday continued until next Saturday the county's motion that it be dismissed as a defendant in a suit for damages under the seldom invoked mob violence act. In this suit four men are seeking $75,000 damages each from the city, county, and Chicago park district on the charge that they were beaten by police in a dance hall at 1118 West Madison street a year ago.

The plaintifs are Samuel Boyle, 46 years old, 1301 East 48th street; Eric Franks, Otto Wallace, and Henry Nelson. Edgar Bernhard, their attorney, said they were beaten up in a raid in which the police mistook an assemblage of 37 men for a communistic gathering.

Attorney Bernhard's bill contends that the policemen's assault constituted mob violence.

BREVITY EQUALS WORLD RECORD IN FLORIDA DERBY

WIDENER COLT BEATS DNIEPER BY FIVE LENGTHS

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., March 7.—Brevity, the picture colt, perhaps the colt of the year, supplemented his grand looks with dazzling speed this afternoon to win the ninth Florida Derby at Hialeah Park before 25,000 spectators in 1:48 1-5, which equaled the world record for the 1⅛ mile route.

It was an event of superlatives so far as the Joseph E. Widener colt was concerned. It was Brevity, knocked nearly to his knees at the start through being bumped by his stable mate, Dnieper, which rushed to the front and set the pace which made the record possible with the half mile reeled off in :46 1-5, six furlongs in 1:11 1-5, and the mile in 1:35 1-5, the fastest mile of the meeting with stake weight up.

Another for Wright.

At the finish Brevity was galloping five lengths before Dnieper, with Bright Plumage third. Jocky Wayne Wright, who also piloted Top Row to victory in the Santa Anita $100,000 handicap, had the son of Chance Shot or Sickle-Ormonda under mild restraint. Had Brevity been urged he could have lowered the old mark established by Discovery last year with 123 pounds up. On the basis of weight for age, the Derby winner's performance was superior. He carried 120 pounds.

Brevity, coupled with Dnieper, running in the colors of Mrs. P. A. B. Widener, daughter-in-law of Mr. Widener, was an almost prohibitive odds-on choice, paying $2.50 to win. Because the entry ran one-two the colt yielded a higher place price of $2.90, and was at $2.20 to show. Bright Plumage, the Whitney entrant, paid $2.60 to show. The Derby was worth $20,050 net to the winning owner.

Mont Blanc Is Scratched.

Behind Brevity by those five lengths was Dnieper, a length before Bright Plumage, which in turn was a length before Gallant Gay. Songmaker, Faust, Maerial, and Jamboree finished as named. Of the eleven named overnight to start, Higher Cloud from the Denemark barn, Old Comrade, and Mont Blanc, the imported colt, declined the issue. Mont Blanc's withdrawal was a disappointment. It was explained he showed a tendon ailment after Friday's final preparatory breeze.

Brevity's victory, so easily and so impressively recorded, is just what is needed to stimulate interest in the Kentucky Derby, Withers Mile, Belmont Stakes, and Arlington Classic for which he is nominated. The colt will not start in the Preakness, according to Owner Widener.

Delay at Post.

For the event of the day there was a nine minute delay at the post caused when Mariel's bridle broke and the red coated chap on the lead pony galloped back to the paddock for new equipment. All the jockys jumped from their mounts so as not to tire the colts about to engage in their first big test as 3 year olds.

Finally they were away to a good start, with Dnieper and Brevity bumping as they emerged from the starting gate. Bright Plumage, Gallant Gay and Jamboree broke on top with the latter on the rail in the van for a few seconds until Brevity's speed from his No. 9 post position carried him to the front. The Derby was over right there, but no one knew it at the time.

Brevity Widens Gap.

Down the backstretch sped Brevity, two lengths in front, then three lengths, then five lengths, and still apparently wanting to go on, but Jocky Wright took a stout hold, relaxing the terrific pace being set. Jamboree and Dnieper, running almost as a pair, were closest in attendance during this stern chase, but Jamboree soon wilted. Dnieper had several lengths of daylight before Gallant Gay at the far turn with Bright Plumage, Songmaker and Faust attempting to make their challenges. There were no challenges which could bother the dark bay fellow.

Dneiper was going easily in second position, but Bright Plumage, closing fast on the inner rail, caused Gilbert to go to the whip on Mrs. Widener's gelding.

Goldey F. Wins.

Despite the fact that the Derby was a bad speculative race because the Widener pair, play through the mutuels reached $130,649, with the total for the day $520,000, high mark for the season.

In the secondary feature, the Hialeah handicap at three furlongs, straightaway, Goldey F., unbeaten in four previous starts, outfinished Mrs. Emil Denemark's Owaller by a head in a hard drive. The winner paid $7.30, $3.10 and $2.60.

White Sox Play Seattle Today in First Game

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 7.—The 1936 White Sox will be unveiled tomorrow in the spring's first exhibition game, scheduled against the Seattle team at Santa Monica. However Manager Jim Dykes wants it understood he is not going to put a finished article on display. He is merely using the occasion to gather ideas on some of the freshman members of his squad. The absence of two regular infielders increases the scope of the experiment.

Four fellows, exclusive of pitchers, who either weren't with the Sox at any time or came up only in the waning moments of last season's race, will participate in the contest. Three of these will be outfielders—Mike Kreevich in left, George Stumpf in center, and Malin McCulloch in right. The other is Joe Morrissey, slated to remain for utility work, but who may play shortstop tomorrow because of the time it took Luke Appling, regular man for the job, to accept terms.

Appling reported during mid-afternoon and will don a uniform tomorrow. Appling said he was pleased with the contract offered him and would play against Seattle tomorrow if Manager Dykes so desired.

Mule May Kick 'Em Out.

For the three games scheduled with the Cubs next week-end at Los Angeles Dykes has different outfield plans. He probably will return Rip Radcliff to his old position in left field, leave Stumpf in center, and move Kreevich into right. This will be a step closer to what might be the alignment when the season opens.

The latter pair, of course, will have to keep in mind that they are in danger of losing their seats at any time to Mule Haas, who just now is busy at first base, where he promises that if given a few more weeks at the post he'll make everybody forget Zeke Bonura, the holdout.

Two of the three pitchers billed for three inning appearances tomorrow are newcomers with possibilities. Vernon Kennedy will start. He will be followed by Red Evans and Ira Hutchinson, both citizens of Chicago. Dykes figures one of this pair is likely to prove of value this season, but he isn't worrying much along this line. With Ted Lyons, Johnny Whitehead, Kennedy, Monty Stratton, and Les Tietje as possible starters he figures he might have as good a staf as a manager could ask for.

Dykes Feels Better.

Manager Dykes, who was too ill to take part in yesterday's practice, felt well enough today to put on a uniform and jog leisurely around the park.

The pitchers who are counted on to do the regular work during the season are in such excellent shape that Dykes believes it will be safe to employ any or all of them in the Cub engagements next week. This means Charley Grimm's National league champions will see plenty of Kennedy, Whitehead, Stratton, and Tietje, as well as such second stringers as Phelps, Wyatt, Evans, Hutchinson. The Cubs don't have to worry about the veteran Ted Lyons. He will not report until the middle of next week and will require considerable time to get himself in trim.

FOUR QUINTETS ARE VICTORS IN OLYMPIC TRIALS

Indianapolis, Ind., March 7.—[Specail.]—Illinois' representative in the opening round of the Fifth district Olympic basketball trials, Augustana college of Rock Island, turned back Butler university of Indianapolis, 41 to 40, tonight in the Butler fieldhouse. Augustana won with a second half rally.

Other winners were Central Indiana Normal of Danville, which beat the University of Cincinnati, 46 to 36; Ball State of Muncie, which whipped Wayne university of Detroit, 33 to 16, and Indiana State of Terre Haute, which eliminated Miami university of Oxford, O., 45 to 27.

The survivors will compete in the three day competition to pick a winner from the district, which opens in the International amphitheater at Chicago next Thursday.

TWO WISCONSIN ATHLETES TELL WHY THEY QUIT

Appleton, Wis., March 7.—(AP)—Tony Popp, regular full back on the University of Wisconsin football team last year, and Archie Van Ryzin, sophomore basketball guard, said here today that they returned home because they were financially unable to continue school.

Popp denied rumors from Madison that he was to follow Coach Clarence W. Spears to Toledo. He said he expected to get a job at Appleton. Van Ryzin said that rumors that he was dissatisfied with his treatment by Coach Harold [Bud] Foster of the basketball team were not true. He said he left because he had a good chance to get a position in Appleton.

Avalon, Cal., March 7.—Charley Root and Lon Warneke, described throughout the blizzard season as the Cubs' two problem gents, did their first competitive pitching today, performing for the Yannigans in a game which the Regulars won by a score of 15 to 6. The Regulars slammed out a dozen hits off Root in four innings and a dozen more off Warneke. The assortment included two triples off Root and a homer off Warneke.

It was the fourth straight plastering the Regulars have accorded the Yannigans led by the first string pitchers. In none of the games, including today's, has the slamming of the Regular pitchers caused any alarm, it being explained that Larry French was the only one who really was bearing down.

Warneke's Shoulder O. K.

Root and Warneke did not loaf today, but it was apparent that neither was putting all he had on the ball. Both worked gracefully and Warneke showed no more evidence of favoring his shoulder, injured in the fifth game of the world series, than he has in training routine, which is to say he did not favor it at all.

While the lack of earnestness was emphasized in discussing Root and Warneke, the enthusiasm was great for the hitters who thumped them about. Augie Galan made a triple, double, and two singles in six times at bat; Bill Herman rapped out two doubles and three singles in six times at bat, and Chuck Klein socked a triple, two singles, and drew a pass in six trips to the plate. Phil Cavarretta had a homer off Warneke.

Grimm Gets a Hit.

The Yannigans managed to stay in the game in the early stages by virtue of the hitting of Charley Grimm and Ken O'Dea. Charley and Ken knocked successive homers off Johnny Hutchings in the second inning. Grimm's hit was the first he had made in fifty-six times at bat, this year and last. He added a single off Lefty Shoun later on.

Hutchings did not look as good as he did in the opening contest of the intraclub series last Wednesday, but Shoun, also staging his second performance, continued to work brilliantly. He allowed three hits in five innings.

Root at the outset suffered an experience a mite too reminiscent of the first inning of the second world series game. Galan opened the game with a single and Herman also singled. Then Klein tripled. Charley then braced and held Chuck on third while effecting three infield putouts.

Regulars Keep at It.

The Regulars continued to be rough with Root in the second. They pounded out four more hits, including a triple by Galan. Three singles, and a double by Hutchings was the hit allotment off Root in the third inning. Charley finished up his assignment in the fourth by really bearing down. He made Stephenson, Demaree, and Cavarretta look easy.

Warneke took over the pitching job at the start of the fifth and the pesky Regulars again showed a vicious strain. Hack opened up with a double. Hartnett made a pinch single, Herman made his fourth hit in five innings, Klein walked, and Stephenson singled before Lon got through his first inning of 1936. Three singles were knocked before the Cub ace got the side out in the next inning. He allowed only one single in his third inning of work and a single and a blooper double in the eighth, his fourth session.

THAT'S ALL FOR THIS YEAR

St. Augustine, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews of Miami today chased the jinx that has been pursuing defending champions this winter by crushing her old foe, Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, 4 and 3, to retain her Florida east coast golf championship.

Through a heavy mist and against a brisk wind, Mrs. Crews won three of the first four holes played. She beat back a rally from the Kansas City veteran, who eliminated the sensational Patty Berg of Minneapolis in yesterday's semi-final, and then won with a closing rush that found her whipping the elements and par.

Putts, Approaches Fail Mrs. Hill.

Mrs. Hill, suffering from an attack of intestinal influenza, was no match for the Miami star. She couldn't get started, winning only two holes of the 15 played and then by her opponent's mistakes. For the distance, Mrs. Hill was six over women's par while Mrs. Crews was playing almost perfect figures.

Three putt greens and two timid approaches, generally, cost Mrs. Hill whatever chances she had.

Match Ends on 15th Green.

As against her brilliant 36, one under men's par, of yesterday Mrs. Crews needed 42 strokes to Mrs. Hill's 44 out.

The end came quickly. Mrs. Crews won the 10th and 11th as Mrs. Hill three putted and then was wide with her approach. Three putts cost Mrs. Hill the 14th. The match ended on the 15th when Mrs. Crews' putt stuck on the cup lip, laying her foe a dead stymie she couldn't make.

Name 33 Boxers on Chicago Golden Glove Intercity Team

BY FRENCH LANE.

On to New York! That battle cry was heard in Chicago yesterday as the boys who Friday night had battled furiously before a Stadium crowd of 21,302 in the Tribune's Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions forgot their grudges and made plans for the invasion of Manhattan's Madison Square Garden.

On March 23 the long standing boxing rivalry between the nation's two largest cities will be settled for 1936, and Chicago's scrappers are hopeful that they will be the first to win in the enemy's ring.

Eight times these Chicago and New York teams have come together. The score stands Chicago, 4; New York, 3. There was one tie in 1928. That happened during the first year of Golden Gloves, when 10,000 gathered in the Chicago Coliseum to watch the New York boys win eight fights and the Chicago standard bearers the other eight.

Chicago never has beaten New York in Madison Square Garden. Nor has New York eked out a decision over Chicago here.

Then Olympic Trials.

After the Chicago champions have finished their chore with the New Yorkers, they will turn their attention to the Olympic trials which will be held in Chicago under the auspices of THE TRIBUNE, to pick the team which will represent the United States in the Olympic games.

The preliminaries to which will come the National A. A. U., national collegiate, army and navy champions, and representatives of other national athletic groups, will be held at the International amphitheater on May 7 and 8. The finals will be held at the Chicago Stadium on May 20.

The big job of picking the Chicago squad of thirty-three members which is to invade New York was completed yesterday. It includes ten Chicago boys and twenty-three from the out of town cities which sent representatives to this greatest of all amateur boxing enterprises.

Here's the Squad.

The complete squad as announced by Johnny Behr, coach of the Chicago team and also the coach of the United States Olympic boxing team, is as follows:

These boxers will report to Coach Behr at the Illinois Athletic club tomorrow. The Chicago training camp will be pitched at the Illinois Athletic club, and on Tuesday morning the Chicago boxers will start drilling for that fuss with Daddy Knickerbocker.

Train Week Here.

The Chicago team will train for a week at the I. A. C. The boxers will

MANGAN BEATS CUNNINGHAM IN SPECIAL MILE

Providence, R. I., March 7.—(AP)—Joe Mangan of the New York A. C. caught the judges' eyes when he ran what appeared to be a dead heat with the world-record holder, Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, tonight in a special mile race that featured the New England A. A. U. track and field meet at the auditorium. Mangan was timed in 4:28.8.

It was the rubber meeting of the current indoor season for those outstanding milers and Mangan, who reached the last turn a yard behind Cunningham, wiped out that deficit during the last 50 feet of flat going.

They appeared to hit the finish line shoulder to shoulder but Mangan, on the outside, was declared the winner after much delay. The third starter, Lieut. Dick Bauer of Fort Myer, Va., trailed from start to finish and was five yards behind when his famous opponents broke the tape.

Ann Arbor, Mich, March .—[Special.]—Purdue spotted Michigan a 15 point lead tonight and came back in traditional Boilermaker basketball style to whip the Wolverines, 38 to 37. The victory sent Purdue into a tie with Indiana for the Big Ten title and dropped Michigan into a tie with Illinois and Northwestern for third place. This was Purdue's third straight championship and the ninth since 1920.

Michigan went far in front early in the game, holding a 19 to 6 lead at one time. Through the efforts of Johnny Sines, the Boilermakers stayed even the rest of the period and were on the short end of a 25 to 12 score at half time.

Kessler Does It Again.

During the first eight minutes of the second half Michigan extended its lead, to 30 to 15. Jewell Young then started hitting the net and Pat Malaska and Bob Kessler followed suit. The Boilermakers kept possession of the ball, took a shot every time they came close and finally, with two minutes to go, forged ahead on Kessler's sixth basket. Kessler then connected on two free throws to clinch the game. John Townsend hit for Michigan just before the final gun was fired.

Kessler, who won the Big Ten individual scoring title with 160 points, was held to a basket in the first half, but led the co-champions with five in the second period. Malaska came through with four, as did John Townsend, Gee, and Capt. Chelso Tamagno of Michigan.

N. U., 34; CHICAGO, 33

Northwestern came from behind in the final minute to defeat an inspired Maroon team, 34 to 33, at the University of Chicago field house last night as the Big Ten basketball season closed. A surprised and screaming crowd of 2,000 Maroon partisans, watching Chicago play its best game of the season, was denied the pleasure of seeing the Maroons achieve their first conference victory of the season when the Wildcats overcame a four point handicap and Mike McMichaels dropped in a free throw with forty seconds to play.

Capt. Bill Haarlow of Chicago gave the crowd what it was expecting in the way of a new record, however. Haarlow made three baskets and seven free throws, finishing the 1936 season with 151 points and his collegiate career with 416 points in three years of conference play. This feat established a new record for three seasons. The former record was 406 points, made in 1928, 1929, and 1930 by Charles [Stretch] Murphy of Purdue. Haarlow's achievement is the more remarkable because the Maroons won only four Big Ten games during his tenure, while losing thirty-two.

Wildcats Tie for Third.

Northwestern finished the season in a tie with Michigan and Illinois for third place, with seven victories and five defeats. For the first season in Midway history the Maroons failed to win a conference game.

A great second half rally, led by Haarlow and Johnny Eggmeyer, sophomore forward, put Chicago ahead in the closing minutes. Northwestern led at the half, 20 to 11. During the period Haarlow was held to 5 free throws by the guarding of Duke Vance.

The score was 23 to 14 when Chicago's rally began. Haarlow made a free throw and a long basket, his first. McMichaels made a run-in goal. With four minutes to go Haarlow made a long field goal and Amundsen tied the score with a tip-in shot. Then two long baskets by Eggmeyer gave Chicago the lead, 32 to 28.

Fouls Decide Game.

McMichaels made a short basket, and when Gene Smith was fouled by Amundsen while making a short basket, he dropped in the free throw to put the Wildcats ahead. Eggmeyer made a free throw which tied the score at 33 all. A dramatic finish was provided when a double foul was called on McMichaels and Fitz-

NOTRE DAME WINS

BY CHARLES NEVADA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 7.—Notre Dame's basketball squad scored its twenty-first victory of the season in the Auditorium here tonight in whipping Marquette, 37 to 34. It marked the close of a mediocre campaign for the Milwaukee school, which won only seven of nineteen games.

The Hilltoppers, showing the best form of the season, led through most of the engagement and were not forced to yield until the closing minutes, after they had been deprived of two players on fouls. They were in front at the half, 22 to 17.

The game was the last in the collegiate careers of Capt. Cy Rubado, James Rasmussen, and Al Ehrig, all of whom stood out in Marquette's attack.

Kiefer Breaks World Record in Back Stroke

Adolph iKefer, tall Roosevelt High school swimmer, representing the Lake Shore Athletic club, established another new world record last night, when he won the 150 yard back stroke event in 1:32.3. In the opening Central A. A. U. indoor meet of the season. The meet was conducted under the auspices of the Chicago Athletic association at the latter's pool.

Kiefer now holds 27 swimming records. The former 150 yard back stroke mark was 1:36.9, established by A. Vande Weghe. Danny Zehr of Northwestern's team finished second, while Charles Bowman of the Lawson Y. M. C. A. was third.

Kiefer also helped the Lake Shore Athletic club's relay team set a new world's record in the 300 yard relay. Others on the team were Max Brydenthal and Charles Flashman. They covered the distance in 2:56.1. The old record was 2.57.7, set by a Lake Shore squad.

Marion Mansfield, Lake Shore, won the women's low board diving event from Caludia Eckert, Shawnee Country club. Arlite Smith, Lake Shore, took third place. The summaries:

HARTMAN AND MANGIN ADVANCE TO TENNIS FINAL

New York, March 7.—(AP)—Gregory Mangin, defending title holder, advanced by default to the final of the United States indoor tennis tournament today, while Leonard Hartman, whose previous athletic fame has been won on basketball courts rather than on tennis courts, had to defeat Frank Bowden to gain the other final place.

Mangin, three times champion and in the final for the fifth successive year, advanced when his opponent, Wilmer Hines of Columbia, S. C., became ill. Mangin and Hartman will decide the title Tuesday night.

Hartman's elimination of Bowden, 7—9, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4, provided the biggest upset of the tournament.

The final brackets in the women's division were gained by Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn of Philadelphia, wife of the Davis cup doubles player, and former Champion Norma Taubele of New York. Mrs. Van Ryn, who entered the tournament for experience on board courts and without title aspirations, eliminated Millicent Hirsh, 6—1, 7—5, while Miss Taubele had some trouble disposing of Mme. Sylvia Henrotin of France, 6—3, 4—6, 6—0. The women's final will be played Monday night.

The international combination of Mme. Sylvia Henrotin of France and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of New York retained the national doubles championship tonight with a 6-4, 9-7 victory over Norma Taubele and Florence Leboutillier of New York.

Crown Golden Gloves Champions Review of Week's Sports

When the Chicago Stadium was opened in 1929 with a seating capacity surpassing that of Madison Square Garden it was generally believed that it would take care of any indoor sports crowd that Chicago might supply for a great many years. Less than two years later THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament, by packing the mammoth building, proved how wrong that belief was. Year by year since then, with only one exception, Golden Gloves has gone ahead selling out the Stadium with a demand for tickets far greater than the supply.

Last Friday night the finals of the ninth annual tournament again filled every available seat, left many outside who wanted places inside the Stadium, and in doing so established a new record by selling out eight days before the contests. Twenty-two thousand persons saw 31 boys—one finalist was unable to compete because of an injury—battle through 23 bouts for the eight championships. The eight champions are survivors of a field of 17,000 amateur boxers from 43 cities in 16 states, from the Alleghanies almost to the Rockies. With 16 others, chosen because of their showing in the Tournament of Champions, they will constitute the Chicago team which will meet New York's Golden Gloves team in the annual intercity bouts at New York on March 23. Their victories also qualified them for the final trials for the United States Olympic team.

112 pounds—Jackie Wilson, Cleveland.
118 pounds—Johnny Brown, Chicago.
126 pounds—Ted Kara, Cleveland.
135 pounds—Pete Lello, Michigan City, Ind.
147 pounds—Chester Rutecki, Chicago.
160 pounds—Milton Shivers, Detroit.
175 pounds—Carl Vinciquerra, Omaha.
Heavyweight—Paul Hartnek, Omaha.

O'Mahoney Loses Mat Crown to Dick Shikat.

The labor permit under which he entered the United States nearing its expiration date, Danno O'Mahoney, Irish heavyweight wrestler who was generally recognized as the world champion, yielded his crown to Dick Shikat, German ex-champion, before 7,000 in Madison Square Garden last Monday night. The Irishman conceded victory to Shikat when, after 18 minutes and 57 seconds of wrestling, Shikat applied a hammer lock, supposedly painful. O'Mahoney won the title last June from Jim Londos, who had won it from Shikat in 1930.

Olympic District Basket Final Awarded Chicago.

Indianapolis, the capital of the greatest basketball domain in the world, set itself for an orgy of basketball even greater than that afforded by the Indiana state high school tournament when last Sunday the Olympic basketball committee awarded the fifth district trials to Butler university. Included in the district are Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, homes of five leading Western conference quintets and of Notre Dame. Out of the district trials was expected to come a winner that might very easily be America's representative in the Olympic games.

But on Tuesday Illinois, Ohio State, Notre Dame, and Ohio Wesleyan all withdrew from the tournament. On Wednesday Indiana, Big Ten leader, announced it would not compete. On Thursday Illinois Wesleyan, Little Nineteen champion, decided to drop out. The only major teams left were De Paul of Chicago and Northwestern, two of the original seeded entries.

With no strong Indiana quintet remaining, the Olympic committee on Thursday changed its plans, switched the finals of the tournament next week-end from Butler fieldhouse to the International amphitheater in Chicago.

Red Wings Increase Lead in Hocky.

Despite a week of play without losing a game the Chicago Blackhawks saw the Detroit Red Wings pull a little farther away from them in their race for first place in the American division of the National Hocky league. Detroit, by winning two games and losing one while the Hawks were winning one and tying one, gained a half game, stretched their lead to two full games. The week's scores:

SUNDAY.
Chicago, 2; New York Rangers, 1.
Detroit, 3; Canadiens, 1.
New York Americans, 5; Boston, 2.

TUESDAY.
Toronto, 0; New York Rangers, 0.
Canadiens, 3; N. Y. Americans, 1.
Montreal Maroons, 3; Boston, 3.

THURSDAY.
Chicago, 2; Boston, 2.
Detroit, 4; New York Americans, 1.

Johnny Behr, athletic director of the Illinois Athletic club, long coach of Chicago Golden Gloves teams, was appointed coach of the Olympic boxing team on Tuesday. He will be assisted by Freddy Caserio, Golden Gloves middleweight champion in 1931 and 1933. Behr was assistant to Lawson Robertson, Olympic track coach, in 1928.

Two of the problems that beset the White Sox at spring training camp were eliminated last week when Shortstop Luke Appling, the club's leading hitter, and Second Baseman Jack Hayes signed contracts for the season. Sole remaining holdout was Zeke Bonura, first baseman, who turned down an offer of $8,500 salary, demanded $15,000, and hoped for $10,000,

The St. Louis Cardinals' perennial problem, the signing of the Dean brothers, was still far from solved. Repeating his assertion that he would not accept the Cardinals' offer, Dizzy, the elder and more famous of the pair, vowed never to pitch another ball to Catcher Virgil Davis, his battery mate. Davis, tired of Dizzy's tirades, announced on Wednesday that he would punch Dizzy's nose on sight. Dean responded with a promise to give not only Davis but Manager Frisch and Vice President Branch Rickey as well a sound beating when he sees them.

AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY

Name Chicago Golden Gloves Intercity Team

do their road work in Grant park. Then they will move on to New York and stage their last five or six drills within the shadows of Madison Square Garden.

That question started a lot of arguments in downtown Chicago yesterday where Friday night's thrilling battles still were the main topic of conversation.

Most Chicagoans believe Chicago has one of the strongest teams it ever sent into an intercity match. They believe Paul Hartnek and Carl Vinciquerra, the Omaha boys, who won the heavyweight and 175 championships, are about as good as any ever developed in a Chicago tournament, with the exception, of course, of Joe Louis, who was the light heavyweight champion in 1934.

Vinciquerra in particular is a slashing slam-bang type of a fighter who carries a stick of dynamite in either hand. Tyrus Smith, the Indian, and John Washington came so close to whipping Hartnek for the heavyweight title that either will be a worthy Chicago representative in the secondary inter-city match.

Shivers Is Star.

Milton Shivers shapes up as one of the best middleweights ever to come out of a Chicago tournament. He, too, is a terrific puncher and won his semi-final and championship matches on knockouts.

Not since the days of Billy Celebron and Henry Rothier has the Chicago tournament turned out more finished welterweights than those who came to the front this year. The welterweight championship battle between Chester Rutecki and Johnny Barbara was one of the greatest any crowd ever watched. It was the high spot of this year's tournament. These boys stood toe to toe in the center of the ring and traded punches from start to finish. The New Yorkers will know they have been in a fight before they get through with Rutecki and Barbara.

In all the other divisions Chicago is well fortified. There isn't another flyweight in the world like Jackie Wilson, the tall Negro who towers 6 feet and whose chin was hardly touched throughout the Tournament of Champions. Johnny Brown is a greater bantamweight champion this year than he was a year ago, and Pete Lello completely outclassed his rivals in the lightweight division.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer and Omaha World-Herald teams, which tied for the team championship, will receive duplicate trophies.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.
Montreal Maroons, 5; Detroit, 3.
Toronto, 8; Montreal Canadiens, 1.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The ever annoying Montreal Canadiens, who have constituted an increasing source of irritation to Chicago hocky fans this season, will meet the Blackhawks at the Stadium this evening in their final effort of the season to make themselves the unchallenged Hawk nemesis of the year.

The general all around orneriness of the visitors is not founded on theory, either, for they bring a record of their doings with the Hawks that more than bears them out. This final game between the two teams, as far as the regular schedule is concerned, is their sixth meeting, and out of the preceding five, the Frenchmen have suffered our side to win just one game, and that by a single goal. The three games played at Montreal all resulted in ties, 1-1 2-2, and 3-3.

Joliat Beats Hawks Alone.

The Hawks took one of the Chicago contests by the margin of Rookie Eddie Ouellette's second period goal, and in the second game, with the Hawks leading 1 to 0, the biggest pest of all the Canadiens even though he's one of the smallest players in the league, got himself the two goals that were enough to beat the Hawks.

That pest, one of the all-time greats of hocky, is none other than 135 pound Aurel Joliat, who will be round more than somewhat tonight. This game is just the sort that M. Joliat would pick out to go on one of those scoring benders which have made him a threat to any defense, and the Hawk rear guard, which has been functioning smoothly in its recent games, is taking special steps to thwart him. Earl Seibert, who is large enough to pat M. Joliat on the head; Alex Levinsky, Marty Burke, and Art Wiebe have been detailed to take these special steps.

Want Place in Playoffs.

Joliat, however, will have more than personal glory in mind if he bears down tonight, for the team of which he has been a member for more than 12 years, is now in the midst of a fight to stay in the playoffs.

That was 'way back when, however. Here are the Frenchmen battling desperately with the New York Americans for the third place berth in the Canadian section. If they don't make it, it will be the first time the Canadiens have been shut out of the series since the present playoff system was devised. The Rangers are the only other team who can match this record.

Mantha Called from Bench.

There are experts who opine that if the Canadiens had not been so thoroughly riddled with injuries this season, they could easily have taken over second place now. As it is, the misfortunes which have fallen on them have forced Sylvio Mantha to be a playing manager, calling him back from the bench to which he had thought he had retired for good. One of the chief casualties has been his brother Georges, who has been out most of the year, but is expected to face the Hawks tonight.

Shamrock Six Meets Detroit 2d Time Today

Inter-city rivalry between the C. Y. O. Shamrocks and the Detroit Chevrolet hocky team comes to a head this afternoon on the Chicago Stadium ice at 2:45 o'clock.

The Shamrocks will seek retaliation for the 4 to 2 defeat handed them last month by the Detroiters. Practice sessions this week have rounded the Shamrocks into excellent condition.

The Shamrocks are confident of evening up the series by a victory today. The recovery of such casualties as Tony Beda, defenseman who suffered a charley horse, Burr Spreitzer, out last week with a knee injury and Wilbur Savela, leading Shamrock scorer.

Buried under a three-goal barrage in the last period in the previous game the Shamrocks averted a shutout for Detroit when both Roland Conacher and Ken Begin scored for the C. Y. O. Jimmy Sullivan, Detroit wingman, was responsible for three of the goals. Sullivan made two of his scores in the final period and assisted Slim Bogue in another goal. Bogue was also credited with a pair in last month's encounter. Lineup:

I. C. 4-A TRACK TITLE RETAINED BY MANHATTAN

Piles Up 26 Points for 3d Straight Victory.

New York, March 7.—(AP)—Climaxing their performance with a smashing triumph in the 1,600 meters relay, final event of the meet, Manhattan college's track and field team tonight captured the intercollegiate A. A. A. A. team title for the third straight year with a total of twenty-six points.

Scoring in only five of the twelve varsity events but capturing three of them, the Jaspers from the sidewalks of New York asserted their supremacy on the boards by a decisive margin, while a crowd of 10,000 spectators acclaimed their performances.

Yale and Harvard waged a hot battle for second place, with the Elis emerging in front with 18½ points to the Crimson's 17¾.

Burns Wins 1,500.

Lou Burns, lanky Manhattan college sophomore, and his teammate, the veteran Bill Ray, finished one-two in the 1,500 meters run. Burns came from nowhere on the last two laps and won by three yards in 4 minutes 5 seconds. Ray set all the pace until he was overhauled by Burns. Cornell's Johnny Meaden, after following Ray's pace closely, faded back to fourth at the finish as he was passed by Jerome Calijone of Fordham.

An unwieldy field of twenty-five runners started. In the jam at the first turn Harvard's Bob Woodward tripped and fell heavily to the boards. He picked himself up and continued, but was groggy and trailed all the way.

O'Brien Finishes Fast.

Eddie O'Brien, Syracuse middle distance star, survived rough going to capture the 600 meters final. Pocketed and bumped around during the first half of the race, he shook himself loose just in time to outsprint Edgar Borck of Manhattan on the final lap and win by five yards.

O'Brien, with no chance to take the pole and force the pace, failed to threaten his own world indoor record of 1:21, set this winter. He was clocked in 1:21.7.

Penn State Beats Boston.

Penn State, thanks to a brilliant anchor 800 meters by Duverney Book, carried off the 3,200 meters varsity relay, beating Boston college, with Manhattan third. Book fought off a series of challenges from John Downey, Boston anchor, and pulled away to win by five yards.

The 3,000 meters run developed a close finish in which Wilbur Woodland of Yale stood off the challenge of Phillips Smith of Rutgers to win by a yard in the sparkling time of 8 minutes 55 seconds, only one-fifth of a second off the intercollegiate indoor record.

Eipel Takes High Jump.

Manhattan scored again when Bill Eipel captured the high jump at 6 feet 3 inches.

After three false starts the 50 meters sprint final was won by Arthur Thomas, colored sophomore from the University of Pittsburgh, in 6.1 seconds, with Arthur Jannell of Fordham second by a stride and John Donovan of Dartmouth third.

Jannell jumped the gun on the third false start and the dash men were half way down the board straightaway before Starter Johnny McHugh fired the recall shot. This apparently took the steam out of Walter Janiak, Holy Cross star, to such an extent that he was off last and trailed all the way in the deciding test.

The complete teams' score:

Manhattan, 26; Yale, 18½; Harvard, 17¾; Dartmouth, 12; Fordham, 10; Cornell, 9¼; Pittsburgh, 8¼; Bates, 8; Boston College, M. I. T., Rutgers, Rhode Island State and Syracuse, 7 each; Holy Cross, 6; Penn State, 5; Colgate, N. Y. U., Pennsylvania, Brown and Princeton, 4 each; C. C. N. Y., 3; Columbia, 1; Haverford, ¼.

LEIBER WEAKEN? DAD'S READY TO WAGER HE WON'T

Phoenix, Ariz., March 7.—(AP)—Henry Leiber Sr. said today he would take "500 of anybody's money" in a bet that his son Hank would not be in center field when the New York Giants open the season—unless Manager Bill Terry meets Hank's salary demands.

"Henry may be stubborn and cocky, but so is Terry," Leiber Sr. declared. "And when you set a couple of guys like that at each other you've got something."

CARDS ARE BEATEN.

HAVANA, Cuba, March 7.—(AP)—A wild throw to third by Ed Heusser today gave Havana an eleven inning 2 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. A crowd of 20,000 saw the game at Tropical stadium.

Three St. Louis pitchers, Roy Parmelee, William McGee, and Heusser, gave only eight hits, while Rosseli, going the route for Havana, yielded twelve.

In the eleventh the Cuban center fielder, Alvarez, led off with a double to center. Shortstop Correa sacrificed but Heusser threw wild in an attempt to catch Alvarez going to third and the runner scrambled home with the winning tally.

The Cards scored their only run in the eighth on a case on balls to Pepper Martin and Joe Medwick's double. Parmelee gave only three hits in five innings and McGee three in three. Score:

St. Louis [N.] .000 000 010 00—1 12 1
Havana ....000 100 000 01—2 8 0

REDS WHIP MACKS.

Miami, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, aided by five walks, a sacrifice, and two hits, scored all their runs in the fifth inning today to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 4, for the second straight day.

The American leaguers outhit the Reds, 5 to 4, bunching three of the hits off Don Brennan in the sixth, with a walk and an error, to tally their four runs.

Gene Schott, starting pitcher for Cincinnati, yielded one hit in the five innings he worked. The score:

Philadelphia [A.] ..000 004 000—4 5 0
Cincinnati [N.] ......000 050 00*—5 4 1

INDIANS TAKE OPENER.

New Orleans, La., March 7.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians made a successful Grapefruit league debut today by defeating the New Orleans Pelicans, 9 to 7.

Manager Steve O'Neill used every man on the roster except a few pitchers. Twenty-four Pelicans also saw action in a game which the Indians won with a four run attack on a young southpaw, Loafman, in the sixth inning.

Ralph Winegarner, who pitched the first three innings for the Indians, yielded three hits and one unearned run. Score:

FANS FIGHT AT PIRATE DRILL.

Two husky baseball fans clashed with William Ketchel, a scorecard salesman, inflicting a black eye. Several Pirate players, including Big Jim Weaver, the pitcher, offered to step under the stands with the pair. Before the players reached the scene, however, police arrived and established order.

About 500 fans took advantage of the hot weather and free entrance to view the play. Pitcher Bill Swift drove the ball over a fence some 500 feet away.

HASSETT GOES TO WORK.

Clearwater, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Buddy Hassett, the expensive first baseman, took part in his first workout with the Dodgers today and performed impressively both in the field and at bat. Like the rest of the players who arrived yesterday, Hassett was not in as good form as the early arrivals, but he banged out a few good line drives. Ben Geraghty, rookie shortstop from Villanova college, also looked good in the field.

WEST SIGNS WITH BROWNS.

The terms were not disclosed, but it is believed West received a raise over his 1935 pay check. West signed shortly after reaching camp from his Texas home.

The Browns' entire pitching staf cut loose today, displaying speed and curves for the first time since the spring training season began.

Manager Rogers Hornsby, appearing very much pleased at the workout, nominated Walkup and Caldwell to pitch against Andrews and Van Atta in an intrasquad practice game tomorrow.

RED RESERVES LOSE.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 7.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Eagles, semipro club, defeated Cincinnati's second team today, 10 to 4, hitting both Barnes and Cook freely. Perucho's home run with one on in the seventh was the batting feature. Veach worked the entire game for Brooklyn.

ROLFE JOINS YANKEES.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Red Rolfe, a bit overweight but boasting a good batting eye, joined the Yankees for his first practice today. His hitting and Monte Pearson's hurling were the features of the day's drill.

PHILS SPEED UP.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Manager Jimmy Wilson had his Phillies hurling squad bear down today for the first time and was pleased with the results. First Baseman Dolph Camilli displayed a mid season batting eye. The first intra-camp game will be held tomorrow.

PAUL DEAN STILL HOLDS OUT, BUT HE'S WEAKENING

Dallas, Tex., March 7.—(AP)—Paul Dean, less talkative member of baseball's Dean brothers, indicated today he is weakening in his holdout fight with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Not so, however, with Frank [Pinkey] Higgins, who said he was getting nowhere with the Philadelphia Athletics.

"I haven't signed yet—but I sure hope to soon. I haven't heard a word. I'd like to settle this business."

Recovers from Bruised Leg.

He apparently has recovered from a bruised leg suffered in a recent automobile accident. Paul has been training on golf—and golf has been "terrible," he said. He figures it will take him three weeks to get ready for the season.

Higgins, star third baseman of the Athletics and the outstanding remnant of the club after a winter's heavy trading and selling, is training with the Dallas Steers.

"I'm just waiting," he said. "Mr. Mack hasn't said a word in several days—and neither have I."

Higgins Cites His Case.

Higgins, who picked up $10,000 last season, received a pay cut on the first contract offered, but the second contained his old wages. Now he wants more—and argues he's worth it if he's worth $100,000 on the auction block.

GREENBERG HOLDS OUT.

New York, March 7.—(AP)—For the first time since Ty Cobb's day, the Detroit Tigers had a full fledged holdout on their hands today.

Big Hank Greenberg, hard hitting first baseman of the world champions, told the Associated Press hehad no intention of going to the Tigers' training base at Lakeland, Fla., until he had ironed out his contract difficulties. He was due to report there with the second squad tomorrow.

"I read in the papers that Mickey Cochrane says he won't permit any player to work out until he has signed a contract," Hank said, "so I'm going to stay here for a while."

The big slugger declined to say just what salary he was seeking or how much the club had offered. He was paid somewhere around $10,000 last season and probably asked for $20,000 or $25,000 for his labors during 1936.

GREENBERG GETS ORDERS.

Detroit, Mich., March 7.—(AP)—Charles F. Navin, secretary and business manager of the Detroit Tigers, said this afternoon that Hank Greenberg, star first baseman now having contract difficulties with the club, has been ordered to report to the spring training camp at Lakeland, Fla.

Navin said he had received no word from Hank since wiring him to report. Navin declined to say what salary the club had offered Greenberg.

RIPPLE IN LEIBER'S PLACE.

Pensacola, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Jimmy Ripple, switch hitting slugger from Montreal, was named to fill the place of Holdout Hank Leiber in the Giants' outfield today as Bill Terry picked his teams for the first intraclub game tomorrow. Terry will not take part in the first few games, remaining on the bench to rest his damaged knee.

BADGER BOXERS LOSE FIRST MEET IN FOUR SEASONS

Syracuse, N. Y., March 7.—[U. P.]—Wisconsin boxers lost their first dual meet in four years today, bowing, 5½ to 2½, to Syracuse's undefeated team.

Capt. Gordon Harmon of Wisconsin, undefeated in five years of competition, was beaten by Art McGovern. Charles Zynda, Wisconsin 165 pounder, also undefeated in intercollegiate competition, lost to Ord Fink, who dropped him twice for the count of nine in the first round.

Commune 79 Wins Final of District Basketball Meet

Commune 79's basketball team defeated the Sebasta Ringers, 27 to 15, in the final round of senior play in the Chicago district basketball tournament at De La Salle gymnasium last night. Other results: Immaculate Conception defeated St. Mathias, 17 to 13 [Girls' Church]; Roseland Missions defeated Edgewater Presbyterian, 27 to 14 [Men's Church]; King Kolts defeated Garden City Brewery, 26 to 21 [boys under 20].

Yankees Give Joe Di Maggio A-Plus Rating

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—The most talked about baseball rookie since Dizzy Dean has been voted "all right" by his New York Yankee teammates.

Young Joe Di Maggio, the outfield sensation from the Pacific Coast league, hasn't had a chance yet to prove he can go in the majors, but the Yankees, from Manager Joe McCarthy down, like what they've seen of him.

He's been graded A-plus on size, speed, willingness and hustle. Joe's arrival in camp was almost as much of an event as the night the celebrated Jimmy Foxx walked into the Red Sox hotel at Sarasota carrying his own grips. Some of the regulars actually went over and introduced themselves to Di Maggio.

Long Ball Hitter.

"It's too early to tell much about him yet," says Manager McCarthy, "but he certainly can hit a ball a long way. We'll have to see what he can do when the pitchers begin to bear down. At that, he's hitting straight balls farther than some of the others."

Di Maggio, who batted .399 for the San Francisco Seals last year, comes heralded as an excellent fielding, hard throwing outfielder who can hit any and all kinds of pitching. If he lives up to his press notices he'll do about everything except make Yankee rooters forget Babe Ruth.

Big and Husky.

Few major leaguers have a finer pair of hands. They are big and strong, with the long fingers managers and scouts look for. Joe can grip five baseballs in either hand.

Di Maggio is 21, stands 6 feet 1, and weighs 187 pounds. He was at playing weight when he reached camp. Right now it appears as if he'll have to battle it out with George Selkirk for the right field job.

SWEEPSTAKES MEDLEY TO TOP AUTO PROGRAM

A new feature in indoor auto racing will be introduced at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, tonight when the leading drivers of the central states hold their weekly battle for championship honors.

The departure is a medley sweepstakes, which is expected to give an equal opportunity to sprint and endurance pilots, and a particular advantage to those drivers who have proved their liking for both short and long racing. The sweep is divided into one heat of five laps, two heats of ten laps, one heat of 20 laps, and a windup 30 lap final.

Tonight's competition is expected to be as exciting as any yet seen on the Washington Park oval as the five leading point standing drivers fight to fortify their positions. Pat Warren of Los Angeles now enjoys top rating, although he is closely pursued by Ronnie Householder of Chicago, who scored a grand slam in the racing last week. Jimmy Snyder, midseason champion and popular Chicago star, is third, with Curly Mills of Los Angeles and Tony Willman of Milwaukee fourth and fifth, respectively.

TABLE TENNIS TIPS

[This is the twelfth of a series of weekly articles on table tennis by Coleman Clark, former national champion, present western doubles champion, and authority on this sport. Readers are invited to send contributions and address questions to the conductor of the column, care Chicago Tribune, Tribune Square, Chicago.]

FREE INSTRUCTIONS.

The public is invited to a "Table Tennis Clinic" Wednesday at the Stay and Play club, 168 Monroe street. Time—8 p. m. Coleman Clark will demonstrate fine points of the game and help with problems. He also will play an exhibition game against an outstanding opponent. There will be no charge.

BY COLEMAN CLARK.

We have recommended that novices play the "close to the table game," placing themselves about 18 inches behind the table. We have also suggested that they confine their early efforts to the half-volley or "push" game.

Hints for Advanced Players.

We shall take for granted that you have graduated from the novice class. Now if you have room enough behind the table you may indulge in the long attack and long defense game. Here is where you can bring into play the classic strokes that make table tennis the great sport it is.

Keep Your Eyes on the Ball.

These little balls are small and they travel fast, hence the importance of closely following the ball with the eyes, especially when you attack. Glance momentarily at the spot on the table where you wish to place the ball. Then don't lose sight of it until it is hit.

Star players generally stand well away from the table and many require as much run-back as 15 to 20 feet. Why? To begin with one is not as likely to be surprised by quick angle shots. Besides, there is more time to get into a good defensive position. Moreover, you can pound the ball without fear of your bat striking the table.

Drive Up—Chop Down.

In attacking remember to stroke the ball up so that it will take the all-important nose-dive after passing the net. Watch an expert player drive and note the descending arc the ball describes after it leaves his bat. On the other hand, when you chop make certain that the stroke is a vertical downward movement. Table tennis strokes should be decisive—clear cut. This will lend character to them and give you a feeling of accomplishment.

World Champions Coming.

A fitting climax to the current table tennis season will be an exhibition at Loyola university gym, Sheridan road and Devon avenue, played by a galaxy of European and American stars. Viktor Barna, Miklos Szabados and Sandor Glancz will represent the continent and Ruth Aarons of New York, Jay Purves of Chicago and the conductor of this column the United States. The matches will be played on the afternoon and evening of April 26.

In addition to the Loyola appearance, exhibitions will be played on April 28 at Maine Township High school at Des Plaines and on April 29 at the Ridge Park fieldhouse, 96th and Longwood drive.

Those who saw the international matches at the Stevens last year in which Barna and Glancz appeared are still awe struck and will welcome this happy announcement. Those who missed the spectacle last year have a thrill coming. For further information call L. E. McDonald, Official 9300, Extension 3793.

Chicago Events.

Sid Smith's sport shop, 6316 Stony Island avenue, has installed six new tables now available to the public. Paul Pearson, Edwin Lewis, Sam Fallick and Emil Calban dedicated the opening with an interesting series of exhibitions.

P. Wickhorst, president of the Calumet Region Industrial league, provides us with the results of the recent tournament in which J. Levin defeated I. Bishop in the singles final. The combination of Bower and White defeated C. and N. Smith in the doubles finale. The Albany Park Table Tennis club is sponsoring an open tournament on March 11, 12 and 13 at the Eugene Park fieldhouse, 5100 North Ridgeway.

The annual Elmhurst tournament will be held March 12, 13 and 14 at the Elmhurst community house. Any resident of a Chicago suburb may enter.

Ideal Home Layout.

D. A. Kittermaster, vice president of the U. S. T. T. A., is building a new home around his recreation room and fashioning his recreation room around his table. The room is 36 by 19 and ceiling 8½ feet high. Ten 60 watt shaded lights will illuminate the arena. The walls will be dark and the floor non-skid. It is a paradise for fast play. [Enterprising architects please note.]

ILLINOIS BEATS MINNESOTA IN WRESTLING MEET

Minneapolis, Minn., March 7.—(AP)—Illinois trounced Minnesota's wrestling team, 23 to 3, in the Gophers' final western conference dual meet before a crowd of 2,800 today. The Illini are present holders of the Big Ten wrestling title. Only one match resulted in a fall, all the rest going to a decision.

Ralph Silverstein, western conference champion, threw Capt. Calfson Johnson of the Gophers in 5:03 in the 175 pound class. Silverstein, undefeated in three years of Big Ten competition, made short work of the Gopher leader.

ALLEN WINS 2D LAP OF ALASKA DOG SLED DERBY

Fairbanks, Alaska, March 7.—(AP)—John Allen raced his nine malemutes to victory today in the second 30 mile lap of the annual 90 mile Fairbanks dogsled derby.

The Ruby, Alaska, musher's time was 2 hours, 12 minutes, 2 seconds. Yesterday he won the first lap in 2:06:30, which race officials said was exceptionally good time.

Bergman Kokrines, Nulato, was second today in 2:14:08. He also was second yesterday. The final lap of the race, feature of the annual ice carnival, will be run tomorrow.

West Side Players Reach Senior Semi-Final.

The last chance for the north section to win a title this year in the junior or senior basketball divisions of the Chicago Public High School league was lost when Crane Tech of the west section defeated Schurz, 31 to 23, in the senior division quarter-final round of play at the 132d Regiment armory yesterday.

WYKOFF FAILS IN FIRST COMEBACK TEST; RUNS 5TH

Long Beach, Cal., March 7.—(AP)—Frank Wykoff failed today in the first test of his comeback attempt pointing toward the Olympic games. He finished fifth in the 100 yard dash at the annual Long Beach relays.

Al Fitch of the University of Southern California, a converted quarter-miler, won in 9.7 seconds.

Wykoff, whose record of 9.4 seconds, established in 1930, still stands, won a preliminary heat in 9.9 seconds. He has been out of competition for more than two years.

In the finals he and Fitch ran even for the first 50 yards, but there was daylight showing between Fitch and the field at the tape. Maurice [Mushy] Pollock of the University of California was second; Vincent Reel of Occidental college, third, and Mack Robinson of Pasadena, fourth.

KITTY GORMAN TO COACH LINE AT KENTUCKY

Tom [Kitty] Gorman, freshman football coach at the University of Notre Dame for the last two years, yesterday signed a one year contract to serve as line coach at the University of Kentucky. Gorman, a product of St. Philip's High school, Chicago, was graduated from Notre Dame in 1933.

Gorman will leave Chicago Tuesday to assist Head Coach Chet Wynne, another Notre Dame alumnus, in spring practice. Gorman, a center, was a member of the College All-Americans when they held the Chicago Bears, then champions of the National Professional Football league, to a scoreless tie at Soldiers' field in 1934.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Routes to Busiest Gateway

This map shows main routes from Chicago's busy southeastern motor gateway badly in need of improvement. Also on the drawing, prepared by the Chicago Motor club, is the route (indicated by a broken line) of proposed elevated highway construction.

MOTOR COUNCIL URGES IMPROVED SOUTH GATEWAY

Appeals for Easing of Trafic Bottle Neck.

BY HAL FOUST.

The south area council of the Chicago Motor club, a group of civic and local improvement clubs in this section of the city, is appealing for the paving and widening of Ewing, Mackinaw and Burley avenues to ease the bottle neck at Chicago's southeastern gateway.

Dr. Miller McClintock, head of Harvard university bureau of trafic research, in a survey for the city council a couple of years ago, recognized that this is the city's busiest gateway, that it is the convergence of cross country routes from the northeast, the east, the southeast and south.

He recommended as part of a superhighway system for Chicago, that a six lane elevated pavement be constructed to connect Indianapolis boulevard just west of the Indiana line with South Chicago avenue at 95th street. The through route would continue in South Chicago avenue at grade to Stony Island avenue and thence north in Stony Island at grade to rise onto an elevated structure that would bear fast trafic safely from 72d street through Jackson park to connect with the outer drive at 56th street.

Asks Surface Development.

The motor club group, agreeing that this superhighway scheme is of primary desirability for travel from Indiana to the loop, is asking for the development of the surface streets that now bear the highway markers, pointing out that this surface pavement improvement can be completed promptly as an immediate relief for the problem, pending construction of the elevated structures. They also point out that local trafic will use these surface streets even after completion of an elevated system for through trafic.

To widen these streets sufficiently to afford a smooth pavement with one lane free for travel between street car tracks and parking lanes and to reconstruct the pavements where there are no tracks is estimated to cost between $250,000 and $300,000. The 2.3 miles are now over bumpy and narrow old pavement.

On a normal summer week day, the trafic in Indianapolis boulevard at the city limits totals 28,000 vehicles for 24 hours. On week ends and holidays, it runs as high as 42,000 vehicles for 24 hours.

Present Trafic Routes.

This heavy trafic, to reach the loop or the north side, now struggles over Ewing, Mackinaw and Burley avenues and 83d street to the South Shore drive, or goes west in 95th street to approach Jackson park in Stony Island avenue, or filters north through the residential district south of the park.

The Illinois highway department has placed 95th street and South Chicago in good condition for through travel from Indianapolis boulevard and Avenue L. These improvements contemplated that the old South Park district would repave and widen Yates avenue from 71st street to South Chicago avenue.

In 1931 a bond issue was approved by referendum for the old park district to reconstruct Yates at a 42 foot width and to build a boulevard from Jackson park in Jeffery avenue to 92d street, thence east to Anthony avenue, southeast to Escanaba avenue, south to 100th street, east to Avenue L, south to 112th street and east to Indianapolis boulevard.

No Money Available.

These bonds were never sold because there was no market for them. With the park merger, the paper was invalidated. However, under a refunding plan being carried out by the Chicago Park district, money might become available after next July to carry out the program contemplated in the 1931 referendum.

Even with this construction under the old bond issue program, the south area council of the Chicago Motor club contends that the dense population along the lake front will require the improvement of Ewing, Mackinaw, and Burley avenues route.

Delays Annoy North Shore Car Drivers

Construction is still suspended on an unfinished new bridge in Railroad avenue over the north shore channel in Evanston, much to the annoyance of north shore motorists who would use this important trafic artery to avoid tortuous Sheridan road. However, Kendrick Harger, district engineer of the Illinois highway department, explained last week that there is really no hurry about this job.

The engineer's explanation gave a reason for continued idleness on the project but it won't temper the impatience of the motorists forced to use a rough and narrow detour between Railroad avenue at McCormick road and Ridge avenue at Emerson street. There is no use rushing completion of the bridge, Mr. Harger said, because construction is about to start on new pavement and on a railroad grade separation just south of the bridge.

Ridge Avenue Paved.

Ridge avenue, Evanston's heaviest trafic artery, was closed farther south for eight weeks last summer for new pavement. Then in August, just before the new pavement was opened to trafic, work was started on the bridge, placing an unsatisfactory detour on the connection with Railroad avenue.

The contract for the bridge, a $75,000 concrete and steel structure with a 44 foot roadway, financed by federal "easy money," called for completion on March 1.

"It could have been completed at this date," said Mr. Harger, "but the cost would be boosted considerably by handling fresh concrete in cold weather. And contractors are now getting ready to close the road south of the bridge for the grade separation and the new paving. It will be fall before these additional jobs are done."

Future Improvement.

The new pavement will consist of 50 feet of concrete, replacing narrow and rough brick. There are two railroad grade separations both with center pillars in Railroad avenue between Emerson street and the north channel bridge. Only one of these structures, the one with a sharp reverse curve, is being rebuilt at this time. The cost is estimated at $150,000.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

BUS DRIVERS.

Chicago, March 4.—Perhaps any ordinary motorist, like myself, should be very grateful to the local bus company for use of its rights of way, such as Michigan avenue, Jackson boulevard and other parts of the boulevard system. However, I can see no wrong in humbly making some criticism of the manner in which the buses are handled, particularly during the rush hours.

Years ago, when the buses were first placed on the streets, and motorists and bus drivers enjoyed something like equal rights, the buses followed fairly well established lanes. Now, however, the drivers of these juggernauts, whether by instructions of their superiors or on their own volition, cause their charges to weave in and out of trafic and careen wildly about the streets, seemingly without any regard whatever for other drivers.

As long as ordinary drivers are permitted at all on their rights of way it would be greatly to the benefit of all concerned, and not the least the bus company, if the bus drivers were instructed to run their machines in something like straight lines and to observe the trafic rules generally. HUMILITY.

THERE IS SUCH A LAW.

Chicago, March 5.—Isn't there a law requiring big trucks to have some mechanical device to indicate the driver's intention to turn? I know there's a law requiring all drivers to use hand signals before starting to turn, although due to the lack of enforcement you'd never know it from Chicago's trafic. With these big trucks, a hand signal would do no good because the chauffeur's hand could not be seen from the rear.

ROBERT HAMMOND.

NEWS AND VIEWS

During the severe cold weather the choke was used excessively in starting. This flooded cylinders with unvaporized gasoline. Also during these low temperatures, combustion was imperfect. And ventilation from the crank case was retarded.

Now that the weather is moderating old oil in the crank case may foul the engine. Fuel that has leaked into the lubricants will evaporate with modern crank case ventilation. But there are impurities in all gasolines that do not evaporate; they may score a friction surface.

With the approach of fine weather in many parts of the country the Chrysler convertible coupes and sedans on the six and eight are in great demand. The popularity of this type of car has been growing steadily in recent years among motorists who want the protection of a closed car in cold or inclement weather and the advantages of an open car when the weather is fine.

This desire on the part of the motoring public has been greatly stimulated by the fact that Chrysler engineers have achieved, through an independent X-type body frame, a unit that they say permanently prevents squeaks, rattles, weaving and all the other objectionable things common to most other types of convertible bodies.

Every two minutes on each of the assembly lines at the Hudson factory a new car is born. At the juncture of the body and chassis assembly lines there is a crane which picks up the body and carries it over the chassis and lightly places it in proper position.

From this point on the car rapidly takes finished form and soon comes off the end of the line a completed Terraplane or Hudson. Then comes the road test and final inspection where men with trained eyes and ears go over every detail of engine, transmission, brakes, etc.

Studebaker sales for the first twenty days of February were 46 per cent in excess of the corresponding figures for 1935, according to an announcement last week by Paul G. Hoffman, president of the corporation. The actual statistics covering total sales of passenger cars and trucks as released by the factory follow:

Feb. 1 to 20	2,452	3,562	45%
Jan. 1-Feb. 20	6,962	9,604	38%

This gain was made despite adverse weather.

Sales of Chevrolet cars and trucks exceeded all others in Cook county in the month of February, it was announced by R. W. Hill, Chicago zone manager. Final registration figures for the month for Chevrolet total 1,349 units, which is an increase of 90 per cent over February a year ago.

"We regard the final registration figures for the month of February in Cook county as more than usually significant because, in spite of the extremely unfavorable weather with which Chicago was faced during the entire month, the demand for both new and used cars was really impressive," said Mr. Hill. "Now that there is a prospect of an early break in the weather, we believe the outlook for March business is more favorable than it has been for many years."

PEORIA Y. M. C. A. CAPTURES STATE CROWN, 50 TO 47

Peoria defeated Oak Park, 50 to 47, last night in an overtime battle to win its fourth state Y. M. C. A. basketball championship at the Evanston gymnasium.

The score was 44-all at the close of the regulation time. The Peoria five defeated Clinton, 40 to 31, in its semi-final match. Oak Park defeated Decatur, 38 to 24, to reach the finals. Clinton defeated Decatur, 46 to 40, for third place.

BADGERS BEAT MARQUETTE

Madison, Wis., March 7.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's undefeated track team added Marquette to its list of victims in the field house this afternoon. The score was 49½ to 36½.

New meet records were established in seven events and new Wisconsin indoor marks were set in five events. One of them, the half mile record, has stood for 20 years. It was established by Dow Harvey of Wisconsin in 1916 at two minutes flat and tied by Ray Erickson, also of Wisconsin, in 1927. Cal Beckett, Marquette's colored ace, raced the distance this afternoon in 1 minute 56.6 seconds.

Charley Fenske, Wisconsin's sophomore star from Shorewood, Milwaukee, ran the mile in 4:20.7, fastest indoor mile ever run in Madison, and Al Haller of the Badgers cracked both the indoor and meet records with a leap of 13 feet 4⅛ inches in the pole vault.

A. B. C. Tournament Opens Tomorrow in Indianapolis

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Thirty-two glistening alleys are ready in the gayly decorated Fairgrounds Coliseum in Indianapolis for the start of the 36th annual tournament of the American Bowling congress. The ten pin game's biggest event will get under way tomorrow with Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana throwing the first ball.

From then on and until April 13 thousands of bowlers, good, fair, and not so good, will march into Indianapolis in quest of big scores that will enable them to share in the record prize list of $108,590 derived from entry fees in the five man, doubles, and individual events.

When Indianapolis was awarded the 1936 event the Hoosier city tournament officials promised to establish a new entry record. That they succeeded is proved by the total of 2,853 five man teams.

During the early days of the tournament booster or low average teams will initiate the drives. And then will come the strong teams from such large bowling centers as Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, New York, and Cleveland. Even Honolulu is sending a five man team at an expense of $3,000.

Equipment and installation has cost an estimated $40,000 and operating expenses are around $30,000. However, the large bowling army will pour thousands of dollars into Indianapolis for hotel accommodations, food, and incidentals necessary for the observance of bowling's biggest spectacle.

North End Traveling League.

The Samuelson Arcades and the Murray Idle Hours scored upsets in the North End Traveling league. With Eddie Holcer getting 692, the Samuelson team totaled 3,030 while trimming the Schambergers, and the Idle Hours won three from the Milfords with the help of 661 by Harry Ledene. Individual honors went to Joe Traubenick with 731 and Roy Achenback and Larry Dunn with 705s. Tomorrow night's schedule:

Michelobs at Milford, 9 o'clock; Fox vs. Roosevelts at Gold Coast, 9 o'clock; Birks at Samuelsons, 7 o'clock; Idle Hours vs. Westers at Bryn Mawr, 7 o'clock; Reeds vs. Schambergers at H. B. Kaad's, 7 o'clock.

Windy City League.

The O'Keefe Coals virtually removed the Blazek Tailors as contenders for the Windy City Major league title by sweeping their series with the former second placers. In so doing the O'Keefes rolled high league series of 3,116. At the same time the Mineralites totaled 3,112, second high, and swept a series from Vogel Brothers to take second place, four games behind the leading O'Keefes. High individual series of the year went to Marinello of McKesson's Old Crow who shot 697. Burke of the Mineralites collected 675 for second high.

Randolph League.

Led by Bud Wright with 706, the Mineralites blasted out a 3,293 series, but won only two of three games from Nonebetter Ice Creams in the Randolph league. The first two Mineralite games were 1,126 and 1,163. The tie for third place was broken when the Budweisers won two out of three from Boyle Motor Products while the Birks, third team in the deadlock, were dropping two to Cyrilla Cigars. After two easy victories on games of 1,061 and 1,059, the Budweisers put forth their best effort, a 1,074, but the Boyles beat that by three pins to avert a shutout. Hoar of Beich Candy topped the individuals with 754 and Wernicke of the Whitecaps was second with 722.

About the Women.

Bess Fender, leader on games won, also now has the top average in the Crocombe All-Star league which will shoot again tonight at the Woodlawn alleys. She has 189 and 71 pins over to pass Edith Kirg, who has slipped to 189 and 20 pins over. Tonight's pairings:

Agnes Pitelka vs. Dorothy Burmeister; Mabel Cummings vs. Carrie Enders; Tess Morris vs. Edith Kirg; Nellie Rynberk vs. Mae Stone; Dorothy Morross vs. Fritzi Trettin; Cecelia Leary vs. Alberta Burton; Agnes Crocombe vs. Bess Fender; May Davison vs. Ann Burke.

Sis Mac Stevens topped the West Ridge with 547, two more pins than Katherine Wienert collected. . . . Signe Walz fell just six pins short of 600 in leading the Lorel Rug-Monte Cristo league. Next were Marie Regelin, 551, and Martha Bendick, 546. . . . Bernice Kemph knocked the pins dizzy with a 604 series in the Bruck Major league. Other leaders were Nettie Kolb, 575; Tessie Townsend, 567; Marge Roethel, 547, and Bee Hochstadter, 539. . . . Parkside Tavern, captained by Pepper Banash, shot second high series of 2,487 in the Stevenson league. Mrs. Lee Sawyer led the individuals with 581 while Ethel Kelly had 522.

Honors in the Crocombe league went to Helen Cullen with 582. Next were Ann Burke, 571, and Sara Evans, 534. . . . In the Bruck-Wiesner league Ida Hasner piled up 571, Kitty Gebler totaled 516, and Gladys Weissensel 510. . . . Elsie Carlson posted a 603 to beat out Wilma Wright by two pins for best series of the week in the Samuelson Major league.

On North Side Alleys.

As a result of the double-header last week Fuller Press leads the Budweisers by two games in the Gold Coast Major league. The session was marked by the Roosevelt Brewing's 3,117 series and Pete Petersen's 707. Another double set of matches will be rolled Tuesday. . . . Nine 600 series were shot in the Chicago Junior Traveling league with Charles Nachman getting 639; George Dawson, 636; Joe Aubert, 612; Sol Marino, 609; Frenchy Barles, 606; John Kania, Andy Vlasiti, and Albert Sharkey, 603, and Bob Schranz, 600.

On South Side Alleys.

Because of the city team championship eliminations White City is postponing today's scheduled matches in its All-Star Individual league. . . . INDIANA THREAT TO MICHIGAN'S REIGN IN TRACK

Wisconsin Rated Indoor Dark Horse.

Masters of the Big Ten in indoor track for the last two years, Michigan's defending champions will face embattled competition from Indiana and Wisconsin at the University of Chicago fieldhouse Friday and Saturday when conference stars convene for the twenty-sixth annual meet.

Despite a defeat at the hands of the Wolverines in a dual meet this winter, Indiana, on its record to date, is actually the favorite over Michigan, and Wisconsin appears as a dark horse. These three teams apparently will fight it out among themselves.

Ellinwood Breaks 440 Mark.

This advance estimate is based on the balanced strength of the Wolverines, Hoosiers, and Badgers. Each of the three may score in from six to nine of the ten events. Individual record breaking performances will probably be made by outstanding men from other schools.

Michigan is strong in all of the running events, but may be blanked in the three field events unless John Townsend, basketball star, can get into shape to pick up a point or two in the shot put. Indiana may take place points in every event, but will be exceptionally powerful in the longer races.

Indiana Has Lash and Hobbs.

Victory is likely to be fought out between Michigan and Indiana in the longer runs. The Hoosiers will nominate two veterans, Don Lash and Marmaduke Hobbs, and two flashy sophomores, Jim Smith and Tom Deckard. Michigan will nominate nine men for various of these races, Capt. Frank Aikens, Howard Davidson, Paul Gorman, Ben Starr, Clayton Brelsford, Ray Fink, Harry O'Connell, Walter Stone, and William Staehle.

Lash of Indiana is the defending champion in the two mile but might win the mile if he entered it. Brelsford of Michigan is the defending champion in the mile but has been beaten by Smith of Indiana this season.

Michigan Counts on Stoller, Osgood.

The Wolverines can expect a first or second in the 60 yard dash by Sam Stoller and a first or second in the 70 yard high hurdles by Bob Osgood, a point or two in the 440 by Stan Birleson and a first or second in the relay, in addition to points in the longer runs. Indiana can counter this with possible places by Collier in the dash, Hicks and Collier in the 440, Caldemeyer in the hurdles and high jump, Schneiderman in the shot put, Shoemaker in the pole vault, and a place in the relay in addition to the longer runs.

"In appearance and performance my late-model Chrysler coupe is like a new automobile."

"I am certainly glad I bought."

"My line of business takes me to different parts of the city every day, regardless of weather. The car I was driving was a 1928 model. After a good deal of old-car driving trouble I decided that what I needed was a good late-model car.

Looks in Tribune

"I looked in the Tribune want ad section to see what I could find. I noticed an ad run by the Chrysler Factory Branch, in which they listed several 'winter-proofed used cars.'

"The ad stated that 'winter-proofing' consisted of seeing that there was good tread on the tires, a good, oversize battery, good lights, proper carburetor, ignition, and brake adjustments for safe driving and easy starting, proper winter lubricants in the right places, a good heater, defroster, windshield wiper, and a dependable anti-freeze mixture in the radiator.

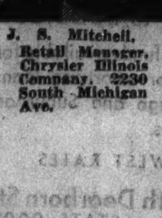
Inspects Car

"That same afternoon I called at the showrooms of the Chrysler Illinois Company, 2230 S. Michigan avenue, and saw one of the cars advertised. It was a 1934 Chrysler Sport Coupe, Six.

"C. E. Paulin, the used car manager, demonstrated the car. I was amazed at the ease with which it could be driven through the snowbound streets. The car was in excellent shape and I decided then and there to buy it.

"I'm Glad I Bought!"

"In appearance and performance my late-model Chrysler Coupe is like a new automobile. I'm certainly glad I bought."



J. S. Mitchell, Retail Manager, Chrysler Illinois Company, 2230 South Michigan Ave.

"THE BEST MONTH'S SALES SINCE EARLY FALL"

"As you know, we were in the Tribune automobile classified columns a little stronger than usual in January, and we feel we can give due credit to this for our having enjoyed the best month's sales in both units and dollar volume since early last fall.

"Kindly express our thanks to the men in the classified department who have given us such splendid co-operation and assistance."

$8,717,000 STATE ROAD PROGRAM IN COOK COUNTY

6,300 Expected to Get Jobs in Spring.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Illinois highway department is launching a 1936 construction program that will include the expenditure of $8,717,000 in Cook county. Kendrick Harger, district engineer for the department, estimated that 6,300 men will be employed directly on this work by late spring.

This is in addition to $5,750,000 the Cook county highway department will spend in this area this year, employing 4,000 men as soon as the frost has left the ground.

The state's program includes 14 railroad grade separations to cost $3,172,000.

Greatest Step Forward.

It is the most extensive schedule for this type of improvement since Chicago forced the steam carriers to elevate their routes more than a generation ago. The sites of these jobs are:

AUGUSTA BOULEVARD—Under the Milwaukee railroad near Grand avenue.

ROOSEVELT ROAD—Under Belt line in Westchester.

$640,000 Project Largest.

The largest of these projects is the viaduct for Ogden avenue, estimated to cost $640,000. When completed, late this year, Ogden avenue trafic will go over the Burlington while Cicero trafic will go under the railroad, using the present subway.

One of the most important of the grade separations is the one for Roosevelt road in Westchester where the Indiana Harbor Belt line, switching freight trains, inconveniences and menaces a heavy motor trafic.

1936 Program Outlined.

Paving on the 1936 state program includes the following:

ARCHER AVENUE—47th street to 35th street.

ASHLAND AVENUE—Warren avenue to Lake street; in Northwestern railroad subway at Kinzie street.

HIGGINS ROAD—Relocation at Barrington road.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY—Chicago Heights to Indiana line; Dixie highway to Cicero avenue.

159TH STREET—For one mile west starting one mile west of 96th avenue.

PERSHING ROAD—Halsted street to South Parkway.

RAND ROAD—Euclid avenue, Arlington Heights, to Lake county line.

ROUTE 54—Approaches to viaduct over Des Plaines river valley.

Trees Will Be Planted.

In addition to this pavement and bridge and railroad construction, the state will spend $30,000 this year in landscaping in Cook county. The work will include the first tree and shrub planting ever undertaken by the Illinois highway department within Chicago aside from replacement of a few trees destroyed by street widening. The sites:

ASHLAND AVENUE—119th street to 175th street.

HALSTED STREET—87th street to 127th street.

96TH AVENUE—At 111th street.

PETERSON AVENUE—Caldwell avenue to Ridge avenue.

The Illinois highway department is also spending $42,800 on machinery to swing two Illinois waterway bridges.

FACES LIFE TERM

CLAUDE CARRIER.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 7.—(AP)—Life sentences, officials said tonight, probably would be the penalties for the two surviving principals of yesterday's attempted prison break. The attempt cost the lives of three persons.

Claude Carrier, 18, of Burlingame, Kas., whose effort to free his brother, Harold, started the break, was guarded in a prison hospital. He is recovering from wounds in an arm and shoulder. Harold, serving six years for auto theft, was in solitary confinement.

Berlan Meisel also was killed. His car was taken from him for the flight. He was shot by the convicts.

George Collins, a deputy sherif credited with killing Ray, was wounded and may die. Police admit the possibility Reiley might have been struck by their bullets. The posse was unaware the warden was prisoner of the escaping felons. Freda Rausch, fiancée of Maisel, was wounded.

MIDWEST FARM PROGRAM SENT TO WASHINGTON

Parley Here O. K.'s Plans and Adjourns.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

The central west regional conference, one of four called by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace to aid in formulating a program for administering the new $500,000,000 soil conservation and domestic allotment act, closed at the Stevens hotel yesterday after adopting without change all reports submitted by its seven official committees.

All these reports have been sent to Washington, where recommendations from the four regional conferences will be brought together and used in drafting a nation-wide program and regulations for administering the new law.

Question of Fair Treatment.

The general conference discussed the report of a committee headed by Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, which made recommendations on payments to be made to farmers who coöperate in the soil improvement program.

There was some opposition to the recommendation for using the productivity of the soil as one of the bases of payment because it would result in the farmer with rich soil receiving more than the farmer with poor soil.

A. J. Glover, editor of Hoard's Dairyman, vigorously objected to this feature, contending that the payments should be made to encourage the building up of poor lands. The committee had no alternative, since it is written into the law that the productivity of the land must be taken into consideration in paying coöperating farmers.

Farmers to Be Rewarded.

The Smith committee recommended that only two classes of crops be recognized—soil depleting and soil conserving crops. Farmers would be paid for adopting soil conservation practices in line with recommendations that are to be made by the federal government under the law. Producers who already follow systems of farming which prevent erosion, and which conserve and maintain soil fertility, would be rewarded for continuing thus.

The amount to be received by the individual farmer will be left to local committees of farmers.

Preliminary discussions indicated that payments might average about $11 an acre, varying according to the productivity of the soil. Figures used for illustration by Chairman Smith indicated that the bonus to farmers might run from $7 to $15 an acre.

On Payments to Tenants.

The committee on landlord and tenant payments recommended that all payments on land rented for cash go to the tenant. Where the farm is rented on a crop sharing basis the payments would be shared as crops are shared.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace spoke at the morning session and indicated that the committees' recommendations would be closely followed by Washington officials in drafting regulations for carrying out provisions of the soil conservation law. He implied that the task of operating the law would be shifted to the shoulders of the state and county units as soon as possible.

In praising the work and harmonious spirit of the 100 or more men who served on the committees at the regional meeting, Secretary Wallace said: "If you weren't real idealists, I'd say you were suckers."

The secretary of agriculture indicated that farmers in this country have a slim chance of restoring foreign markets to the point where they will take agricultural products from more than 10,000,000 acres.

MANY NOVELTIES ANNOUNCED FOR BIG EXHIBITION

Active Support of FHA Is Promised.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

For the seventh time the Chicago Real Estate board will sponsor a home show. From Saturday, May 16, to Sunday, May 24, inclusive, a national exposition of building materials, equipment, and home furnishings will be open to the public at the Coliseum from 11 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. It will be known as the Chicago National Home show.

According to Leo G. Varty, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, that organization's home exhibit will have the active support of the Federal Housing administration and also the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Haynie to Head Committee.

President Varty will head the executive committee in direct charge of the show. Others on the committee are Howard E. Haynie, first vice president of the Chicago Real Estate board; Howard H. Haylett, business manager of that organization; Louis B. Beardslee, treasurer, and Fred N. Lorish, secretary.

Haynie, a member of the realty firm of Wirtz, Haynie & Ehrat, will be general chairman of the show committee, and will appoint his group within a few days. Special subcommittees representing various organizations and trade groups will be named shortly.

Mayor Kelly last night accepted the position of honorary chairman of the Chicago Real Estate board's show committee, of which Haynie is head.

Other Groups to Coöperate.

"The support and coöperation of every organization and agency interested in the work of improving and developing housing, home ownership, and living conditions throughout Chicagoland will be enlisted," said Varty.

"Active work on the show already is under way," said Chairman Haynie. "Every type of material that goes into a modern home and every kind of home equipment and home accessory will be featured in educational displays.

"An outstanding feature of the show will be a completely built and furnished model two story house with garden and landscape features. Designed to be within reach of the pocketbook of the average Chicago family, this modern home will be open for public inspection.

"As a contrast on either side will be fronts of an expensive home and a cottage type of residence, both with garden settings. These features, we believe, will dominate the show."

A series of "talking towers," pylons 16 feet high placed along the exhibition thoroughfares, also is planned. Each tower will have enclosed in glass, at eye height, a model of a small home. From each "talking tower" a loud speaker gauged to reach only the immediate neighborhood of that pylon, will broadcast home ownership facts.

These towers, ingeniously lighted, and other equipment reminiscent of A Century of Progress, have been designed by the Federal Housing administration and will be furnished by it for the home show.

Home Ownership Encouraged.

The Chicago Real Estate board sponsored "Own Your Home Expositions" annually in March during the years 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, and 1927. In 1930 a similar exposition was held on Chicago avenue, east of Michigan avenue, under sponsorship of eastern interests. Last year two home shows were put on in Chicago, one by FHA interests in the Straus building and the other in the Coliseum by a private group.

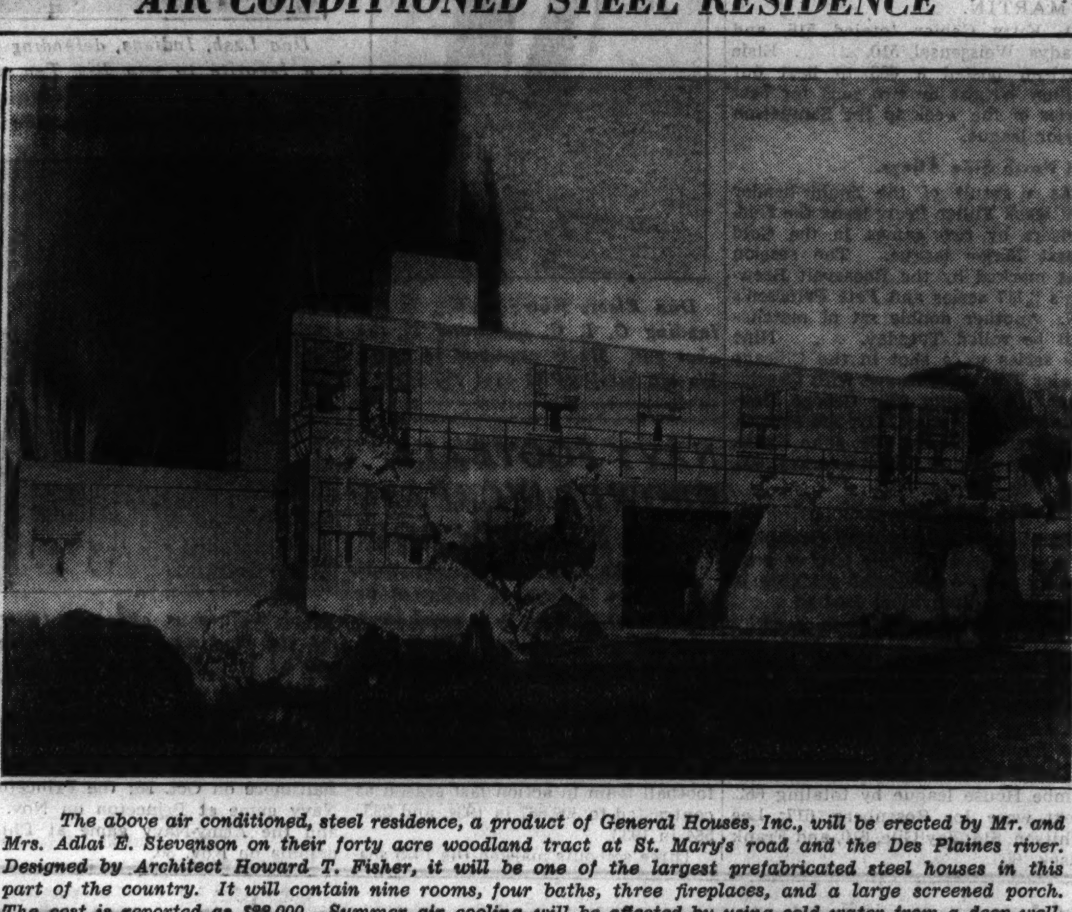
UNDER CONSTRUCTION IN HIGHLAND PARK

The above English manor type residence is now under construction for Mrs. Rodney B. Swift, widow of a former state senator, on Pine Point drive, near Oak Knoll terrace, Highland Park, from plans by the architectural office of Ames Ross and Carl Rabig. The Schless Construction company is general contractor. Of Wisconsin Lannon stone, face brick, and half timbers, the house will be fully air conditioned. It will be heated by oil and all cooking will be by electricity. It will have four bedrooms, three baths, sewing room, and sleeping porch on the second floor. A living room, solarium, powder room, library, dining room, breakfast nook, kitchen, pantry, and double garage will occupy the first floor, with a large recreation room in the basement. The cost is placed at $25,000. The above perspective is by M. M. Orr.

AIR CONDITIONED STEEL RESIDENCE



The above air conditioned, steel residence, a product of General Houses, Inc., will be erected by Mr. and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson on their forty acre woodland tract at St. Mary's road and the Des Plaines river. Designed by Architect Howard T. Fisher, it will be one of the largest prefabricated steel houses in this part of the country. It will contain nine rooms, four baths, three fireplaces, and a large screened porch. The cost is reported as $22,000. Summer air cooling will be effected by using cold water from a deep well. Stevenson is a grandson of Adlai E. Stevenson, Vice President under Cleveland. He is an associate member of the law firm of Cutting, Moore & Sidley. David William Klibanow made the above sketch.

FINISH REMODELING ANOTHER FLOOR OF FLATS AT STEVENS

Remodeling of another floor of hotel rooms into apartments has been completed at the Stevens hotel, and the new suites are now open for inspection, according to Managing Director Otto K. Eitel. With the addition of the twentieth floor, the third floor to be rebuilt into suites—the hotel now has approximately 400 apartments for permanent guests.

Last year 265 apartments were built on the seventeenth and eighteenth floors and are now reported to be entirely occupied. On the twentieth floor 135 modern suites have been rebuilt from the former hotel rooms.

The apartments have been furnished and decorated under the supervision of John W. Root of Holabird & Root. Louis Sudler of Sudler & Co. is in charge of the rentals.

February Air Control Installations at Record

Three La Salle street firms contracted for air control systems: Stein, Brennan & Co., Sutro Brothers, and Paul H. Davis & Co.

HEAVY BUYING OF FARM LAND IS REPORTED

Steel Man Purchases 330 Acres.

Farm lands totaling approximately half a million dollars were sold during January and February by his firm according to Grover C. Elmore, president of the Elmore Real Estate Improvement company. An even more active farm and acreage market is expected by Elmore as soon as weather and road conditions permit city buyers to go out and inspect land.

"The present active market for farms is due to the fact that investors are becoming more and more 'farm conscious,'" said C. H. Beals, in charge of the Elmore farm department. "The desire to get in early on a rising market and the growing conviction that land is the soundest of all investments are major reasons for many farm purchases."

Steel Man Buys Farm.

One of the largest sales recently made by the Elmore company was the 330 acre Empire stock farm, northwest of St. Charles, purchased by E. J. Block, vice president of the Inland Steel company. This property, formerly owned by Bernard Giertz, is known as one of the finest dairy farms in Kane county, Elmore said.

Block also purchased a herd of Holsteins with the farm and will continue to operate it as a dairy farm. He contemplates building a summer home in the wooded hills overlooking Ferson's creek, which flows through the property.

In Cook county the sale of three farms at Lincoln highway and Cicero avenue was made to an undisclosed buyer. It is understood that these properties will be developed into smaller farms in the near future.

Other Farms Are Sold.

Several other sales were made in Cook county and a number of large farms were sold in Kendall and Will counties during the last two months.

The Robert Bartlett Realty company recently purchased several farms, through the Elmore company, the latest acquisition being 60 acres on Harlem avenue, near Palos park, which will be improved with modern homes this spring.

A 102 acre tract on Crawford avenue, adjoining the Will county line, near Matteson, on the Illinois Central, was sold to Ben Goldberg. Austin R. Lord purchased 124 acres on Western avenue and Crete road.

Phoenix Mutual Leases Space in Conway Bldg.

Increasing business has caused the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company, which has had an agency in Chicago for 45 years, to open a second general branch office. Space in the Conway building has been leased for a long term of years, according to H. O. Bailey, manager of that property.

Hitler Strikes.

Adolf Hitler yesterday struck off another of the shackles placed on Germany as the result of its defeat in the world war.

The Nazi realm leader announced to the ambassadors of Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium in Berlin that Nazi soldiers would reoccupy Germany's western frontier, the Rhineland. Simultaneously troops moved into this zone on the French border.

This action violates the Versailles treaty, settling the world war, and the pact of Locarno, a peace treaty signed in 1925 by Germany and the four powers named. Both treaties guaranteed that German troops would not occupy the Rhineland. The Locarno treaty additionally guaranteed the peace of western Europe and also provided for arbitration of any differences arising from it.

Hitler then spoke before the German reichstag [parliament]. He ordered that it be dissolved March 28 and a general election held the next day so the people could express their opinion of his policy.

Hitler justified his action by claiming the new French-Russian mutual assistance pact was directed against Germany and thus violated the Locarno pact. As a result, he said, Germany need no longer obey it.

He declared his readiness to sign a new nonaggression agreement with the Locarno participants to last 25 years. He suggested a pact against air attacks. He also said Germany's loss of colonies should be readjusted "within a reasonable time." When new treaties are signed, declared Hitler, Germany will be ready to rejoin the league of nations.

France called Hitler's march of troops a hostile act. British diplomats said the situation was far from desperate if France remained calm. Italy appeared indifferent. Like France, Belgium prepared for troop concentration on the German frontier. [See main news section.]

Peace Plan.

Last week Capt. Anthony Eden and Pierre-Etienne Flandin carried on the British-French teamwork to end the Italian-Ethiopian war.

The league of nations committee of thirteen [the council without Italy] met in Geneva on Monday. It was expected to stall on the question of an oil embargo against Italy. But Flandin popped up and proposed the league try to draw Mussolini and Haile Selassie into a peace parley before considering the oil ban.

Then Eden popped up and seconded the motion—except that if the conciliation effort failed Britain was ready to join the league members in voting an oil embargo.

Before either could reply Giuseppe Motta, Swiss foreign minister, unofficially warned several league delegates that Switzerland might withdraw from the league if Mussolini rejected the peace offer and the league voted an oil embargo. Motta said action against Italy would endanger his country's traditional neutrality.

On Friday Emperor Selassie accepted the peace proposal with the provision that conciliation remain within the laws of the league.

Yesterday Mussolini accepted the proposal "in principle." He was said to have based his willingness to enter a peace conference on two concessions: [1] recognition of Italy's right not only to Ethiopian territory already occupied but to much of the zone of influence offered under the unsuccessful Hoare-Laval plan, and [2] the termination of the league's trade penalties against Italy before final negotiations. Italian observers regarded halting of warfare during the conference as "ludicrous." [See main news section.] The committee of thirteen will meet again on Tuesday.

Britain Arms.

Great Britain last week prepared for war on a scale unequaled since the world war. On Tuesday the government explained its rearmament program. It will cost at least 1½ billion dollars over a three year period.

To justify its gigantic defense plan the government pointed to [1] Italian hostility in the Mediterranean, [2] the unknown expanse of Germany's new war machine, [3] France's projected two year conscription of soldiers, [4] the 1,200,000 Italians under arms, and [5] Japan's expenditure of 46 per cent of its budget on armament.

The program provided for: Navy, two new battleships, 20 more cruisers, a new aircraft carrier, and 6,000 more sailors; air, 250 new war planes to make a total of 1,750 for home defense, twelve new air squadrons for empire defense, and more pilots; army, four new battalions of infantry and reëquipment and mechanization of all ground defenses; industry, reorganization of machinery and man power to permit war speed-up. Parliament will discuss the program this week.

In addition to this extraordinary expense, about one billion dollars will be spent for ordinary peace time defenses during 1936. This is about $155,000,000 more than in 1935.

Tokio Crisis.

Worried Japanese saw only half of the Tokio crisis settled last week. The young, politician-hating officers and their 1,400 troops had surrendered after assassinating three elder statesmen and others. But Emperor Hirohito, "Son of Heaven," found it difficult to bring peace and order in government.

The rebels desired to wipe out liberal government by civilians and restore the army's old time control. No commentator could say last week whether their "blood purge" was a failure or success.

A round of suicides indicated failure. Lieut. Kenkichi Aoshima, one of the revolt plotters, disemboweled himself and cut his throat. His wife fell on a sword in keeping with the "death before dishonor" tradition among feudal swordsmen who have met defeat. Capt. Shiro Nonaka and Capt. Teruzo Anda, rebel leaders, chose modern methods. Each shot himself, but Anda did not die. Maj. Busuke Amano shot himself to death taking the responsibility for the release of arms to the assassins. Capt. Hisashi Kono, one of those who led "firing squads" into cabinet ministers' homes, also was a suicide. That left twenty-two other officers to face a Tokio court martial for treason.

The overthrow of Premier Keisuke Okada's duly elected government indicated success. Those liberal leaders who were not killed resigned. But who could succeed in forming a cabinet was a problem. With Emperor Hirohito's voice as his authority, Prince Jimmochi Saionji, 87 years old, who like Okada escaped the war on old men, sought a premier. He wanted one whose politics would satisfy both the militarist faction and the industrialist faction. Meanwhile ten generals resigned from the war council. Prince Fumimaro Konoye, 42, house of peers president, was offered the premiership but begged off.

Koki Hirota, able foreign minister since 1933, then agreed to form a cabinet. Hirota had been an ally of the militarists but his "friendly policy" toward foreign powers had pleased Japanese business men.

Political observers regarded Hirota's chances as hopeless after the army objected to most of his cabinet choices. The army was apparently making it impossible for the formation of anything but a militaristic cabinet. Its leaders want Okada's policy of moderation reversed. Meanwhile, marines were called in to guard against any further violence. [See main news section.]

While Japanese ambassadors were busy reassuring the foreign powers that Tokio trouble didn't mean world trouble, Josef Stalin, dictator of soviet Russia, spoke up. He said Japanese military aggression in Outer Mongolia, a ward of Russia, would find the Red army ready for war.

War.

The drain of war on Italy's finances led Mussolini to seize control last week of all Italian banks and their credits. Chicago financial experts explained that the private banks were loaded with government bonds floated to pay for war in Ethiopia. These bonds, they said, represent frozen assets since the banks cannot unload them without driving down their value. Foreigners won't buy them. The experts said the threatened collapse traces to the depression. Mussolini then attempted to liquidate private banks by giving them bonds for frozen credits. They could see no credit improvement in the Italian government assuming control of its own bonds.

In Ethiopia Marshal Pietro Bodaglio's army was busy "mopping up" the northern area won in the drive begun Feb. 10. The 80,000 Ethiopian soldiers of Ras Mulugheta, the 30,000 of Ras Kassa, and the 25,000 of Ras Imeru were said to have been broken up and driven out of the Tembien mountain region.

Texas Shrine.

The little town of Washington-on-the-Brazos in southeastern Texas had never seen so many people as visited it Monday. Its normal population is 250; on Monday this increased to 10,000. The occasion was the opening of celebrations marking the 100th anniversary of Texas' independence from Mexico. On March 2, 1836, 58 Texas leaders gathered at Washington-on-the-Brazos and there signed a declaration that "the people of Texas do now constitute a free, sovereign, and independent republic." Among those attending the anniversary celebration were Gov. James Allred of Texas and Gov. Philip La Follette of Wisconsin. The Dallas contennial, opening on June 6, will be the big feature of the celebrations.

Black Inquisition.

The American Bill of Rights declares that "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated." But this, it was charged last week, doesn't seem to mean much to Senator Hugo L. Black's lobby investigating committee.

Senator Black is conducting a terroristic inquiry into the activities last year of certain corporations and individuals, most of them New Deal foes, against the administration utilities bill. To that end he has demanded or seized millions of telegrams.

His efforts to subpena telegrams sent out of the Western Union office in Washington by the Chicago law firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw were temporarily balked. Attorney Silas Strawn on Monday procured a temporary injunction from Justice Jesse C. Adkins. Black later angrily said he would have introduced a bill to deprive a judge of that power if he had thought any judge would have issued an injunction. Strawn argued that Black's demand violated the Bill of Rights guarantee against searches and seizures.

Just how far Black's committee has gone to grab telegrams and other papers was disclosed on Wednesday. It was shown that the federal communications commission, which controls telegraph companies, had used its power extralegally to make wholesale seizures of telegrams from Western Union and Postal Telegraph. A. G. Patterson, a member of the commission, is a relative of Senator Black's wife. The commission, it was said, had seized 15,000 telegrams from the Washington office of the Western Union alone. This and other seizures, either by the commission or by committee subpena, have put more than 5,000,000 telegrams in Black's hands.

Black denied that the commission had worked with him and in the senate Thursday defended his committee and attacked THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. He accused THE TRIBUNE of maliciously campaigning against the committee. Meanwhile he questioned various witnesses, proving nothing that was not known before. On Friday one witness, George Brobeck, questioned about lobbying, accused Black himself of lobbying. He charged that Black had "worked day and night rounding up influence" to defeat the appointment of Maj. Gen. John H. Russell as commandant of the marines.

Taxes.

The breathing spell promised to business by President Roosevelt last fall came to an end on Tuesday when the President sent his $1,137,000,000 tax bill message to congress.

He listed the government's special needs as a $120,000,000 temporary tax for the bonus, a $500,000,000 permanent tax for his new soil conservation scheme, and a $517,000,000 temporary tax to make up for income lost by the wrecking of the AAA.

He proposed that the $120,000,000 bonus and the $500,000,000 soil conservation funds be raised from a tax on the undistributed profits of corporations. He proposed that the $517,000,000 temporary funds necessitated by the death of the AAA be raised from new processing taxes and from a special "windfall" tax against processors who have received refunds of AAA taxes. [See Business Review.]

In proposing a tax on undistributed corporation profits, the President recommended that certain corporate taxes now in effect be repealed. It was predicted that the proposed new tax would bring in $620,000,000 more a year than the combined taxes to be repealed.

Many Republican and Democratic congressmen attacked the President's tax plan. So did business men everywhere. Col. Leonard P. Ayres, nationally known economist, said it might cause a national disaster. Both Wall street and La Salle street withheld official opinion at this time. A house subcommittee spent the rest of the week trying to figure out how to meet the President's demands. Dozens of tax boosts from 1 cent more on gasoline to a 90 per cent tax on AAA refunds were suggested.

Treasury.

A treasury statement issued on Tuesday revealed that the New Deal has spent $2,410,040,680 more than it collected in revenues during the first eight months of the current fiscal year. The fiscal year ends on June 30. The expenditures totaled $4,758,686,380; the receipts, $2,348,281,700. This boosted the public debt to $30,519,660,949.

During the week the treasury offered $1,250,000,000 in bonds and notes. On Friday Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau announced that the offering had been oversubscribed seven times. It was admitted, however, that many subscriptions were padded. A subscription is said to be padded when a buyer offers to buy more than he really can afford to buy or more than he is allowed to buy. [See Business Review.]

On Thursday Morgenthau indicated that the New Deal is trying to gain control of 75 per cent of the world's silver production. On the same day Secretary of State Cordell Hull, in Baltimore, pleaded for international money stabilization. A day earlier the federal reserve board announced it would end the services of six regional bank chairmen on April 30. They are Eugene M. Stevens, Chicago; F. H. Curtiss, Boston; J. H. Cafe, New York; R. L. Austin, Philadelphia; J. S. Wood, St. Louis, and C. C. Walsh, Dallas.

Works.

The senate military affairs committee on Friday upheld the right of the New Deal to crack down on one of its critics, Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood. The general recently was relieved of his army command in Texas for calling WPA funds stage money and liberally condemning New Deal spending.

When his removal was revealed two weeks ago, Senator Jesse Metcalf, Rhode Island Republican, offered a resolution demanding a senate investigation. On Friday the military affairs committee quashed this resolution by voting, 12 to 2, for "no investigation." The committee held that Gen. Hagood had violated army rules by criticizing congress and that his removal was within the province of the President, the commander in chief of the army.

Just who was directly behind Gen. Hagood's removal is problematical. President Roosevelt says he didn't order it, but many senators think he did. A possible clew was given Thursday by Works Progress Administrator Harry Hopkins when he admitted he had written to Secretary of War George Dern demanding a public apology from Hagood. This was before Hagood's removal.

The ways of the WPA were revealed two days ago as mysterious, indeed, when a survey showed that the WPA had approved 1,568 airport projects throughout the country. But it had not approved Chicago's request for a lake front airport. The approved projects call for an outlay of $108,199,669, with New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Camden, N. J., Newark, N. J., and West Palm Beach, Fla., among the favored cities. The Chicago lake front project had been approved by the President, but was turned down by the WPA in favor of boondoggling jobs.

AAA.

President Roosevelt on Monday signed the farm bill substitute for the defunct AAA, saying that it was the first step in a long time program to help farmers. On the same day the house unanimously approved a resolution demanding that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace produce an honest report of the New Deal's old AAA program, compiled by the bureau of agricultural economics.

This report was made last September and stated, among other things, that estimated cotton returns were less with AAA than they would have been without it. This paragraph was cut out; the report was allegedly doctored up so as not to hurt the New Deal.

A report on AAA activities in 1935, as drawn up by the AAA itself, revealed Tuesday that 6 cents out of every tax dollar collected by the AAA for farm relief went for pay rolls and other administrative costs. The total expenditures of AAA in 1935 were $701,830,501, with $42,013,484 going for administration. Incidentally, Illinois farmers got $56,886,049 from May 12 to Dec. 31. [See Business Review.]

President.

The President conferred Thursday night with treasury and relief officials on the unemployment situation. The works program ends on July 1. Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins told the President that 3,300,000 unemployed would be dependent on the government after that date. This was not cheering. Nor was the report of the American Federation of Labor Sunday that the unemployed in January numbered 12,626,000 and that 1,229,000 of them had lost their jobs in December. [See main news section.]

Wednesday marked Mr. Roosevelt's third anniversary as President. He celebrated the day by pressing a button and opening operations at the Norris dam in Tennessee. That night he and Mrs. Roosevelt were guests at a cabinet dinner. Later in the week he announced plans to have the post-office issue stamps honoring naval and military heroes. He also announced he would go on a fishing cruise March 19 on the yacht Potomac.

The City

City Hall Week.

Mayor Kelly returned last Monday from a three weeks' vacation in Florida. The same day the city council voted to submit the utility home rule bill to referendum in the general primary election April 14. Public approval is needed to make it law.

The bill, passed by the legislature last summer, is the keystone in the mayor's campaign for a unified transportation system. It would give the city the right [1] to decide what kinds of service it will have, [2] to discontinue a traction company's operation without a franchise, [3] to establish a universal transfer system, and [4] to permit competing transportation systems to use the same or parallel routes. Authority over rates and financial structure is left to the Illinois commerce commission. The Chicago Surface Lines have had no franchise since 1930. The Chicago Motor Coach company likewise has none.

Said Mayor Kelly, "I do not want to drive any one out of business nor injure security holders of direct companies, but I do want to force the companies to come to terms with the city."

Guy A. Richardson, co-receiver of the surface lines, said that "to permit competing bus companies to operate on street car lines . . . without any showing of convenience or necessity" would result "in financial loss by both carriers . . . to the detriment of the public."

Mayor Kelly's committee of engineers investigating proposals to develop Congress street met for the first time. The committee decided it will have to consider all alternate proposals before recommending any plan. "To have a true picture of the merits and demerits of the scheme to open and widen Congress street," said City Engineer Loran D. Gayton, "we agree that we must compare its estimated costs and its anticipated benefits with the costs and benefits of elevated highways."

The city council approved changes in the names of 12 Chicago streets in which conflicts and duplications existed. These were the first named changes to go into effect since the council committee on streets and alleys began work last fall on a list of 310 streets which need renaming.

Ald. Arthur G. Lindell introduced two trafic law violation measures. He proposed that copies of tickets for serious offenses be sent to the controler's office, which would see that the tickets weren't "fixed." Policemen would be empowered to paste stickers on the windshields of motorists for their first trafic law violation, instead of arresting them.

Time.

Sunlight, not dusk, greeted Chicagoans last week as they started home from the day's work. This demonstration of winter daylight saving time evoked widely expressed satisfaction with permanent eastern standard time.

The change became effective last Sunday under the city ordinance passed in November. The measure abolished central standard time for eastern standard. Under the previous system Chicago daylight time [the same as eastern standard] was effective every year for five months, beginning the last of April.

During the week trafic policemen and motorists reported added light had reduced hazards during the evening rush. Playground attendance increased.

The change was accomplished with no more confusion than was encountered during the semi-annual time changes of the last 17 years. The greatest difficulties were encountered at the stockyards, where central time was still effective, and in Chicago suburbs which had not followed Chicago's suit. Most of the outlying communities have turned their clocks to eastern time.

The change was made after a week's hearing before Clyde B. Aitchison, member of the interstate commerce commission. Aitchison heard pro and con arguments on the city's petition to place the railroads on eastern time schedules in accord with city time. Three plans were offered to extend the eastern standard time boundary west from Toledo to Chicago to include Michigan and most of Indiana. The commission's decision will be delayed two months.

Meanwhile the Chicago Federation of Labor circulated petitions for a time referendum next November. The federation announced it would seek legislation forbidding anything but central time in Illinois.

City Notes.

An opinion handed down by the Illinois Appellate court criticized Judge Joseph B. David of Superior court for failing to conduct a fair trial. The case was a damage suit brought by the family of Anton Bobkus, a tenant who was slain mistakenly as a burglar by Steve Kanape, owner of a building at 31st street and Emerald avenue. The Appellate court reversed the $5,000 judgment against Kanape and ordered a retrial. The opinion pointed out that of the 285 questions asked witnesses Judge David advanced 128 while the attorney for the defendant succeeded in asking but ten. He was also reprimanded for discourtesy. The opinion quoted from the testimony such incidents as:

PLAINTIF'S ATTORNEY [to woman witness]—Do you recall anything being said . . . by Mr. Kanape that before he went to bed he had a few drinks?

JUDGE DAVID—Maybe he drank Coca-Cola.

County Judge Edmund Jarecki found six election judges guilty of ballot fraud in contempt of court. Edward J. Ludwig, John Garbarino, and Joseph Michelotti will remain on bond during their appeal. The three Democrats served in the November, 1934, election in the 40th precinct, 42d ward. The other three were Steve Burns, Republican; Frank J. Kirgis and James E. Sheehan, Democrats, who served in the 5th precinct of Chicago Heights in April, 1935. Sentences were deferred.

News-Names

Within a few days David Wark Griffith, famous motion picture director, divorced a wife in La Grange, Ky., and married another in New York City. He divorced his first wife, Linda, from whom he had been separated 25 years, a week ago Friday. Last Monday he married Evelyn M. Baldwin. Griffith is 56 years old, his bride 26.

Army tradition says cavalrymen are very tough. Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the A. E. F.—and a former cavalry officer—recalled this on Sunday when friends at Tucson, Ariz., complimented him on his splendid health. He is 75 years old. "The only way to get rid of a cavalry officer is to shoot him," he chuckled.

Hollywood hailed Grant Withers, stage and screen actor, as a real hero last week. He and Mike Leones, a workman, were several hundred feet off shore in preparation for a film shot when a breaker overturned their boat. Leones sank, but Withers, a strong swimmer, saved him.

Mary Pickford, interviewed in New York Wednesday about insistent reports that she would soon become the wife of Buddy Rogers, actor and orchestra leader, said she had nothing to say. She added, however, that she had not yet given up romance, since she is "free, white, and 21." She will be 43 on April 8. Yesterday her ex-husband, Douglas Fairbanks, and Lady Ashley were married in Paris.

Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the President, flew down New York bay Friday to meet the liner Carinthia, returning from a West Indies cruise. Aboard were Mrs. Eugene du Pont and her daughter Ethel. Young Roosevelt and Miss du Pont have been seen together a great deal.

Friends of Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow—the former Barbara Hutton—rejoiced Monday on news from London that she was out of danger. Her life had been despaired of following the birth of a baby and a resultant operation.

Strange

Relief officials of Hernando county, Fla., were advised that A. H. Douglas, 87 years old, a Negro, is the father of thirty-seven children and that the thirty-eighth is approaching.

Five years ago Maurice Walker of Morris, Ill., lost his left hand in a corn sheller. Last week he lost two fingers of his right hand in the same machine.

Sentenced at St. Joseph, Mo., to two years in the Missouri prison for attempted burglary, John Nave looked forward to a family reunion. In the prison are his father, Jim, serving twelve years for robbery; his brother, Ellis, serving life for murder, and another brother, William, serving several years for burglary.

Barney Flemming, Negro slayer sentenced to death by a jury, will be hanged in Seattle, Wash., on April 3. The date was fixed early at his own request so that his spiritual adviser would not be delayed on a trip to Europe.

Julius Dworman was ordered by a court in Providence, R. I., to pay a judgment of $116,590.21 to a New York bank at the rate of $10 a month. It would take 971 years at that rate.

A young man was fined $2 in Los Angeles court on a charge of violating the automobile trafic laws. His name was Safety First.

Freda Asay filed suit for divorce in Los Angeles from Russell Asay. They are trapeze performers. "It made me very nervous when I thought we were not getting along well together and he had to catch me at just the right time 130 feet in the air," she said.

FINANCE-SPORTS
Reviews of the week in finance and general business and also of sports are to be found in the finance and sports sections.

Politics

Gov. Alfred M. Landon's stock as a candidate for the Republican nomination for President soared last week. Kansas Republicans pledged the state's 18 delegates to him. Oklahoma Republicans pledged two of their incompleted list of candidates. New Mexico Republicans, while not pledging their six delegates, unanimously indorsed Landon.

The Kansas Republicans came out for their governor at Wichita on Wednesday. They adopted a resolution stating that they believed Gov. Landon to be the "one man, above all others, who is best fitted for the position of standard bearer of the Republican party in the next campaign." They instructed the 18 delegates to vote for Landon at the Cleveland convention in June "until he is nominated or until he releases them."

Other cheerful news for Landon came out of the east following his Founders' day speech in Lincoln, Neb., a week ago last night. Critics generally agreed that this was his best talk to date, meeting national issues squarely and clarifying his own opinions of them. Several important New York papers, heretofore silent on Landon's suitability for the nomination, praised his speech.

The eastern trend toward Landon was further indicated several days ago when H. S. Moore of Trenton, New Jersey Republican state leader, said a Landon for President movement in the state was being considered. An informal poll of the state's 21 Republican county chairmen showed 19 for him.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, another leading candidate, also moved forward last week. His supporters in New York named 10 candidates for the Republican convention delegation in preparation for the state primary on April 2. William Ziegler Jr., chairman of the Borah committee, predicted that Borah would win half the state delegates. On Thursday it was announced that Borah would enter the Nebraska primary on April 14.

Former President Herbert Hoover, the big question mark, likewise remained in the spotlight. Nobody knows whether he will be a candidate. He hasn't said yes or no. The belief is that he will not be. Yet his recent attacks on the New Deal have won him increasing favor. He delivered a sizzling attack at Colorado Springs, Colo., last night. He warned liberty would end if the nation is "to be goosestepped from Washington." [See main news section.]

The week was replete with attacks on the New Deal, but more significant, in some ways, than attacks was the election in Maine on Tuesday. Republicans captured three cities. Saco went Republican for the first time in five years.

Among those who assailed the New Deal were Col. Henry Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet; Senator Lester J. Dickinson of Iowa; Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald of Michigan, and G. W. Dalton, Missouri state G. O. P. chairman.

Col. Breckinridge, speaking in Baltimore on Wednesday, said that the New Deal had destroyed millions of jobs with its program of scarcity. He asserted the depression would have been over but for Roosevelt's "second string professors." Breckenridge has entered the Ohio primaries against Roosevelt and is planning to enter the Maryland primaries.

Senator Dickinson in a debate in Washington on the same day accused the New Deal of "muddled thinking." He invited Democrats, tired of their leader, to join the Republican ranks. Gov. Fitzgerald in New York Thursday said the most charitable verdict on Roosevelt's efforts to whip the depression was that "it was the work of a well intentioned failure." Dalton, speaking before G. O. P. leaders of 15 central west states in Chicago Thursday, declared that the President alone was responsible for New Deal measures. The leaders agreed with him.

The Republican national committee has purchased 200,000 copies of James P. Warburg's book, "Hell Bent for Election," one of the most vigorous attacks written against the New Deal.

Wayland Brooks, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, opened his downstate campaign with a rally at Ottawa Thursday. He told 4,000 listeners that he was opposed to the Horner sales tax. On Friday he spoke to 3,500 Chicago precinct workers at the Hotel Sherman. His campaign managers began working during the week to get a membership of 500,000 in the Brooks for Governor club.

Foreign Notes

Seven nationalists were arrested in San Juan, Porto Rico, after police uncovered what they declared to be a plot to overthrow the United States government in Porto Rico. Pedro Albizu Campos, leader of agitation for Porto Rican independence, and six of his followers were released on $10,000 bonds after pleading not guilty. They were charged with conspiracy against the government, inciting an insurrection, and recruiting soldiers. The police found a loaded rifle, a bomb, fifty wooden drilling guns, and recruiting cards headed "Army of Liberation, General Headquarters." Campos, a Harvard graduate, surrendered when he learned there was a warant for him. National Guard units were mobilized as a safeguard against riots, but on Friday the troops were dismissed and the revolt considered nipped. A grand jury investigation into the alleged conspiracy will be held this week. The assassination on Feb. 23 of Col. E. Francis Riggs, head of the insular police, will be included in the inquiry.

Adolf Hitler last week asked the French government to drop the criminal suit filed against a Paris newspaper for publishing his "secret loves." It was said that Hitler desired to spare Le Journal the "humiliation."

"Whoever thought national socialism's enlightenment campaign had gone to sleep cruelly deceived himself," said the Berlin newspaper of Julius Streicher, Nazi Jew baiter No. 1. This announcement marked the beginning of new persecution of Jews, following a diplomatic pause during the winter Olympics. An announcement was made of the ousting of 763 notaries under the Nuremberg law which stripped Jews of political rights. Four editors of foreign minority newspapers were forbidden to continue work under penalty of imprisonment. This was part of the campaign for complete Nazification of the press. In keeping with the league of nations' return of control of the Saar coal basin to Germany, the supreme plebiscite tribunal was dissolved. The court was established as a protection to Saar Jews. The Nazi governor had predicted "the Saar will become the most Jewless part of Germany." Raids were begun on foreign born gypsies in Germany. They were charged with smuggling jewels and German money out of the country. Two hundred Jewish refugees from Germany arrived in New York to become permanent residents. The Vatican at Rome sent a note to the Berlin foreign office threatening to break off relations if the rights of Catholics are respected.

The council of Polish rabbis at Warsaw called for complete observation on Thursday of the fast of Esther, a race heroine, in protest of the Polish anti-Jew sentiment and the bill to abolish kosher methods of slaughtering meat. The next day the parliamentary committee passed the bill over the protest of three members, 1,200 rabbis, and thousands from other countries. Warsaw university was closed down indefinitely after an anti-Jewish boycott and riot in which fifty Polish and Jewish students were injured. A new weapon, consisting of a cane in which safety razor blades were imbedded, was used in the riots. Brass knuckles were popular on both sides.

Dr. Herman Grotz went on trial in London as a German spy. He was charged with violating the British officials secrets act by making sketches of the Manston Royal Air force station for the German army. Marianne Emig, 19, who supposedly fled to Germany, was said to have posed as his neice and aided him. She said Grotz took her to draw the sketches to use in the novel he was writing. Testimony showed that Grotz was regarded as a "dangerous intelligence officer" for Germany during the world war. He said that it was his duty to question American aviators in France about the organization of the American air force. Grotz declared Friday that he could not defend himself if questioned about Germany. He feared the Nazis would try him for treason. . . . The admiralty revealed two more cases of malicious destruction aboard British warships. These cases, aboard the cruiser Repulse and the submarine H-28, both at Portland, brought the incidences of suspected sabotage to six.

Hundreds of millions of British subjects heard King Edward VIII. broadcast his first message as a sovereign. The king said he was "still the same man" they had known as the prince of Wales. The king's English brought much comment. It was observed that he spoke with less of an Oxford accent and more that of the average Englishman who has been around.

Premier Milan Stoyadinovich of Jugo-Slavia was speaking Friday before the chamber of deputies in Belgrade. Deputy Damian Arnantovich of Macedonia and other opposition members had refused to take their places, choosing the gallery. Arnantovich tried to shout the premier down and then accepted the latter's invitation to sit near the rostrum. Arnantovich then drew a pistol and fired four shots at the premier. They went wild as other deputies overpowered him. No one was hit. The police charged a political conspiracy and found that Arnantovich had been drinking constantly. The chamber has been the scene of much disorder recently, the 100 opposition deputies often throwing ink wells and starting fist fights.

Flying

American Air Lines, Transcontinental and Western Air and United Air Lines are planning the finest air transportation service ever offered by commercial operators between Chicago and New York this summer. Two way nonstop schedules will be a major feature, it was learned Monday. It is understood that American and United will each make three nonstop two-way trips daily, and TWA one east bound nonstop flight.

Dr. Adolf Lorenz, world famous Viennese bloodless surgeon, made his first airplane flight on Thursday. He flew from New York to Miami. He is 82 years old. "An old man like me hasn't any time to waste in slow travel," he said. "I've been wanting to fly for years, but somehow I've never had the opportunity." Dr. Lorenz first became prominent in the United States in 1910 by curing the former Lolita Armour of the Chicago packing family of a hip disease without resort to surgery. Where possible Dr. Lorenz employs external manipulation in place of the knife.

Harley E. Woodward, young millionaire cattleman of Houston, Tex., and Edward Martin of Daisetta, Tex., his cousin, were killed Thursday when their private plane crashed in flames on Rich Mountain, Ark. Woodward was a son of E. F. Woodward, multimillionaire oil man.

LEGISLATURE.

Honest elections were denied Chicago and eight other large cities in Illinois Wednesday when the senate in Springfield failed to pass the Schnackenberg-Hubbard-Brandt permanent registration bills. Twenty-two senators, thirteen Republicans and eight Democrats, voted for the bills. Twenty-six were needed, though. Twenty-three senators voted against them. Twenty-one were Democrats, and two—Daniel Serritella and James Leonardo—were Republicans.

How War Alters Frontiers

Medicine

Wide-eyed Sleep.

Maxine Yarrington, 2½ years old, last week began her seventh month of uninterrupted sleep with her eyes open. The baby has lain unconscious in an Erie, Pa., hospital crib since she was taken there in convulsions last September. Dr. H. B. Emerson diagnosed the case as sleeping sickness, the cure of which is unknown. Maxine was first fed by injection, but now takes soft food from a spoon. Her skin is pink and she appears to be healthy. Her weight has increased from 15 to 30 pounds during the six months' coma. Said Dr. Emerson, "Because of her long confinement, Maxine will be a lifelong invalid when and if she awakens."

Laughter.

When pretty Teresa Hawkins, 18 years old, started laughing during an apparently serious movie in Weston, W. Va., her two girl friends asked what was so funny. Teresa replied: "Nothing; I just can't help laughing." For 10 days Teresa laughed at regular intervals. After each laughing seizure she lapsed into unconsciousness. Finally, on Wednesday, her periods of laughter and coma became less frequent. On Friday Dr. J. E. Offner operated upon her. Yesterday Teresa stopped laughing and was reported recovering.

Dr. H. O. Vantromp, who placed her in a Weston hospital after an examination in Baltimore, Md., said he had heard of similar cases, but that they were rare. He did not know the cause, but awaited blood tests to aid his diagnosis. Teresa's aunt said she had been working hard in business college.

Meanwhile Mrs. Harold McKee of Morrison, Ill., recovered from eight days of constant yawning. Mrs. McKee yawned nine consecutive days in 1934 and 11 days last December. Her doctor blamed worry and nervous strain.

Award.

Dr. Eugene Markley Landis, 32 year old Philadelphia physician, received the John Phillips Memorial award last week at the annual meeting of the American College of Physicians at Detroit.

Dr. Landis measured the passage of fluid through blood capillaries, the threadlike tubes which extend through the flesh between arteries and veins. To accomplish this he made fine glass rods, measuring from five to ten thousandths of a millimeter in diameter, and inserted them in the capillaries of the finger tips under a microscope. His measurements showed the rapidity of changes in blood concentration was affected by disease.

Dr. William B. Kountz of St. Louis reported that he had restored the beating of 63 hearts removed from the bodies of dead persons. He said this had enabled him to determine accurately the effect of drugs used in heart diseases. Forty-eight of the hearts beat anew for more than an hour, although some had been stopped for six hours. He found the hearts of children far more responsive than those of adults, and those of persons who died of chronic illness easier to revive than those of acute infection victims.

FAIR QUESTION.

Mrs. Hazel Hawraney of Detroit became interested last week when she heard that her former husband, Albert H. Hawraney, had offered to lend $50,000 to the city of Columbus, O. She immediately asked why, if he had so much money, he was $21.50 in arrears in his $2.50 weekly support money for their son, Roger, 2 years old. Hawraney said he had given his wife an alimony settlement of $1,000, and is ready to accept custody of Roger.

WEATHER GUESS.

Weather experts in Washington, after scanning reports of the prolonged cold in January and February, expressed the opinion Sunday that maybe the United States is entering an era of hard winters. They said the next few winters may be wet and cold in contrast to recent winters which were dry and mild.

FIRE TRAGEDIES.

Six children and their mother were burned to death Sunday when fire swept their farmhouse eight miles south of Canandaigua, N. Y. The mother was Mrs. Edgar Arris, 30 years old. . . . Fire in the Warren hotel in Warren, O., next day caused three deaths. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Owen Canole and John McBane.

Great Britain's government last week announced the details of a billion and a half dollar program to rearm. [See Foreign.] This is its greatest expenditure for war since the world war. It demonstrated more forcefully than words that a new war imperils Europe.

The huge British defense plan reflects the action of other European powers to prepare for war. Germany has been openly building a new war machine. Russia has built up the world's largest army, 3,000,000. Italy has turned all its national wealth into war equipment to fight Ethiopia—and prepare for any European eventuality. France is building up its army.

The talk of war is endless. David Lloyd George, British wartime prime minister and co-author of the Versailles treaty settling the last war, not long ago rose to tell England that war was imminent. Two weeks ago Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, deplored the march toward war. He said the problems of Europe today are "dreadfully similar in character and portent to those before 1914."

"Before 1914" Europe was a crisscross of alliances aimed to maintain the balance of power and to prevent Germany and southwestern European powers from bursting their boundaries. The alliances which diplomats are now trying to knit resemble the entanglements leading up to the world war.

A French-Russian pact frightens war-shrunken Germany. British pacts in the Mediterranean frighten Italy. France recently angled to make the small powers of southern Europe her allies and frightened Germany and Italy. A subsequent discussion of a new triple entente between Germany, Italy, and Austria in turn frightened France. Italian conferences last week with Austrian diplomats hinted at an alliance in that direction.

In any direction the fear is always war. The map above shows how the world war changed the geography of Europe. The following list shows the difference in number and rank of nations in 1914 and in 1936:

What happened to the old Austria-Hungarian empire is a graphic example of how war destroys old boundaries. [See Map.] That nation occupied all of central Europe and ranked third in population. Now Austria and Hungary are separate countries. The remainder of the territory is split between Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Rumania, all of which rank above them in size. The world war recarved the face of Europe and another European war would hack it up in similar fashion.

Education

When famous Heidelberg university celebrates its 550th anniversary in the near future, representatives of universities from all over the world will be present. But not the English. The Nazi government doesn't want them—and they don't want to attend.

The university recently asked delegates from colleges everywhere to the celebration. Most universities accepted promptly. Harvard, an avowed critic of Nazi influence on education, accepted on Monday. English institutions hesitated. Public opinion, as expressed in the press and on the lecture platform, hinted that Heidelberg had suffered under Hitler, that perhaps the Nazis would use the celebration to spread propaganda. Oxford and several other leading schools finally refused the invitation.

On Tuesday, the Nazis struck back. Prof. William Grog, rector of Heidelberg, withdrew all invitations to English universities. He said that the British had confused the Heidelberg celebration with political views, that public opinion had been influenced in a manner "making it difficult for an Englishman to accept the invitation in a friendly spirit."

Monday marked the 68th anniversary of the founding of the University of Illinois. Only one student, J. M. Mathews, enrolled the first day. Forty-six others registered before the week ended. The 1935 enrollment, as revealed on Tuesday, was 14,036—969 more than the 1934 attendance.

Nearly 150 Oxford university undergraduates went on a hunger strike early in the week in protest against what they described as poor food and higher prices. They refused to enter Pembroke dining hall.

Court action was begun in Milwaukee to break the will of Mrs. Agnes Wahl Nieman which leaves the bulk of her $8,000,000 estate to Harvard university for the promotion of journalism. She was the widow of L. W. Nieman, founder and editor of the Milwaukee Journal. The plaintiffs are Fred Wahl, of Washington, D. C., and Robert Wahl, of Chicago, uncles of Mrs. Nieman, and Paula Wahl Pierce, of Chicago, an aunt.

Religion

Mrs. Anna H. Wheeler, widow of Arthur D. Wheeler, president of the old Chicago Telephone company, signed a pledge in 1919 to leave $25,000 to the permanent endowment fund of the Fourth Presbyterian church. She gave $500 of this amount before dying in 1930. But her will, disposing of a $400,000 estate, left nothing more on the pledge. The church sued for the remaining $24,500. Judge Daniel P. Trude last May denied the claim. He pointed out that she had been very liberal to the church, having donated $45,000 to specific funds. The church appealed. The Illinois Appellate court last week reversed Judge Trude, and granted the $24,500 to the church.

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch last week asked Catholics in the Milwaukee archdiocese for $300,000 in special collections. He said $175,000 is needed for charities, and $125,000 to restore St. John's cathedral, virtually destroyed by fire more than a year ago.

Claimants to the Bible reading championship are referred to Mark J. Goodger, 33 years old, and John S. Fiddler, 70, both of Chicago. Goodger thought he had won the honors when he completed his 35th reading of the Bible Thursday. But Fiddler yesterday challenged him with 84 readings. He read the Bible 11 times in one year alone, and 22 times while kneeling. [See main news section.] Goodger, however, varied his readings by making tabulations. He found that the St. James version contains 788,767 words and 3,586,489 letters, that the word "Lord" is mentioned 1,855 times, the word "girl" once, the word "flea" twice, the word "dog" 40 times, and the word "dove" 50 times. He also found that Jesus spoke 39,272 words.

The will of C. W. Williams of Aurora revealed last week, bequeaths a large part of his estate to the Moody Bible institute of Chicago. Williams was a leading figure in the racing of trotting horses. The estate is estimated at $500,000. Williams' widow, Jennie, is to get $50,000. Four children are to get $75,000 each. The institute probably will receive more than $100,000.

Science

Einstein's Reality.

Prof. Albert Einstein of Princeton university last week, in an 11,000 word article, posed a theory to explain matter. The great mathematician, an exile from Germany, reasoned that gravitation and electricity combine to form matter. Prof. Einstein said that only by observation of reality, plus daring imagination, could physicists find the long sought truths of the composition of matter. He used the cooling of a hot iron to explain his belief that matter is made of electricity and gravitation bridging through space. He said the heat was given off in particles, or steps. Between these steps he visualized shells of space. The electricity-gravity particles bridged them. Prof. Einstein said the mathematical equation was correct for one bridge, but not yet for several bridges, representing the complexity of matter. He said the several bridge mathematical solutions had to be found before the theory would be useful. The theory, however, was "the first attempt toward the consistent elaboration" of a possible explanation of matter.

Geniuses of Genes.

Geneticists have proved to their satisfaction that as a race horse inherits the speed, or a prize bull the brawn, of its parents, so all animals, including man, inherit the characteristics of their predecessors. They have discovered that invisible units called genes [meaning things of the same kind] are responsible for heredity. But until last week there were no reports of what these genes looked like or how they worked.

Dr. Calvin B. Bridges of the Carnegie institution at Washington told fellow geneticists at Riverside, Cal., that he may have seen genes. Under a high power microscope he had examined and photographed the chromosomes in the germ cells of a fruit fly. These chromosomes contained a chain of dots, alternating in dark and light bands. These bands differed in number and arrangement between flies bred with dwarf eyes and those whose breeding remained normal. Dr. Bridges said the dot bands may be the actual genes, and that they seemed to be fibrous crystals.

Dr. J. Van Overbeek of the Kerckhoff laboratories, California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, Cal., apparently found how a gene worked to cause dwarf corn. Dr. F. W. Went, a colleague, furnished a clew when he showed that corn, as well as many other plants, grows only when a plant hormone, auxin, is present in the leaves. Dr. Van Overbeek found that the dwarf corn consumed more oxygen than normal plants. The increased use of oxygen diminished the auxin supply. This led to the conclusion that the gene for dwarfism increased the oxidizing agents in the corn and destroyed the growth hormones.

Hauptmann

Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, who saved Bruno Richard Hauptmann from the electric chair once, does not intend to do so again. So he said in New York on Thursday.

However, the governor left himself a loophole. If new evidence should be found giving doubt to Hauptmann's guilt, a reprieve might not be impossible, he indicated. Anything to that end, he added, would have to be with the agreement of Attorney General David T. Wilentz, who prosecuted Hauptmann. Wilentz has already said he would neither oppose nor agree to a second reprieve.

Earlier in the week Prosecutor Anthony J. Hauck Jr. of Hunterdon county, where Hauptmann was tried for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, announced that if Hoffman grants another stay he will take the matter to court. Gov. Hoffman referred to this challenge of Hauck's as "barking at the moon."

Meanwhile, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were reported to have found a new home, Long Barn, at Weald, near Seven Oaks, Kent, into which they will move soon. The owner is Harold Nicolson, member of parliament, and husband of Victoria Sackville West. . . . It was learned that Mrs. Elsie Whately, one of the three servants in the Lindbergh home the night of the kidnaping, had died in Birmingham, England, on Jan. 8. She was the widow of Ollie Whately, the Lindbergh butler.

Crime

England's most sensational murder trial in many years got under way in Manchester Monday. The defendant is Dr. Buck Ruxton, a physician of East Indian blood. It is charged that he butchered his wife, Isabella, and their nursemaid, Mary Jane Rogerson, last September, then threw their mutilated remains into a lonely vale, known as the "Devil's Beef Tub," near the Scottish border. From Monday to Friday, crown prosecutors built up one circumstance after another in an effort to hang Dr. Ruxton. Eliza Hunter, a maid, said that she once saw Dr. Ruxton holding a knife to Mrs. Ruxton's throat. Chief Constable Thompson quoted Dr. Ruxton as once saying he'd kill Mrs. Ruxton if she "continued" being unfaithful. Mrs. Agnes Oxley and Mrs. Mary Hampshire, charwoman, told of finding bloodstains "all over the Ruxton home" one day in September. Mrs. Mabel Smith, a scrubwoman, noticed "a strange odor" in the house. Mrs. Jessie Rogerson, stepmother of the slain nursemaid, quoted Dr. Ruxton as once saying he felt "as though he could choke them both." The trial is expected to last many more days.

Anthony Gebardi, 24 years old, a half brother of Machine Gun Jack McGurn, was shot and killed by two men in a poolroom at 1003 Polk street Monday night. McGurn, once a gunman for Al Capone, was slain in similar fashion in a Milwaukee avenue bowling alley on Feb. 15. His real name was Vincent Gebardi. The pair formerly had been associated in several enterprises, one a night club. Anthony Gebardi's killers threw their guns away. Police later discovered that the weapons were bought from a Gary, Ind., store which also had sold a gun used last Dec. 29 in the murder of State Representative Albert J. Prignano. Police believe that the murders of Prignano and the two Gebardis have a common origin. They blamed remnants of the Capone gang.

More than 1,400 prisoners went on a hunger strike Tuesday in the Minnesota reformatory at St. Cloud. They demanded better food, longer visiting hours, and quicker paroles. They were locked in their cells and put on a diet of bread and water. A dozen ring leaders were placed in solitary confinement. . . . A five day hunger strike of ten convicts in Eastern penitentiary in Pennsylvania ended on Friday when guards placed sizzling steaks in their sight, but not in reach. "We'll be good," they promised. "Give us food." They got the regular fare—not the steaks. . . . Warden Eugene Reiley of South Dakota prison at Sioux Falls; Phil Ray, a convict, and Berlan Meisel, a bystander, were killed, and Claude Carrier, 18 years old; Deputy George Collins, and Miss Freda Rausch, a bystander, were wounded Friday in a break at the prison. Young Carrier armed and released his convict brother, Harold, and Convict Ray and kidnaped Warden Reiley. They apparently killed Reiley while being chased by a posse. Ray and Meisel were killed during the chase, and Carrier, Collins, and Miss Rausch were wounded. Convict Carrier was recaptured.

A Criminal court jury was listening to testimony Tuesday in the trial of Manny Schreiberg and Gus Stoyas, charged with arson, when Peter F. Londergan walked into court, put an arm about Schreiberg and glanced at the jury. Judge Joseph Burke ordered Londergan's arrest. He accused him of trying to influence the jury. Londergan finally admitted one of the jurors, William Rooney, was his brother-in-law, that he put his arm about Schreiberg to indicate to Rooney that he and Schreiberg were friends. Londergan said he was paid $10 for this act and was promised $70 more and a WPA job. Police arrested Daniel Rafferty and Benjamin Jacobson for questioning in the plot. The trial progressed meanwhile, and Schreiberg and Stoyas were found not guilty Thursday night.

Mrs. Mabel Borrell, mother of three children, confessed on Friday that she started several fires in the building in which she lives at 4716 Sheridan road.

Police called to the home of Frank G. Raynor, in Quogue, N. Y., Sunday, found his mother, Annie, 74 years old, dead in bed. Her head had been crushed in with a hammer. Raynor said he killed her. On Tuesday, in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Mrs. Clara Houser, 35 years old, confessed beating her daughter, Ruth, 4, to death with a hammer.

Mayor Harry Barber, of Decatur, Ill., under indictment for embezzlement and malfeasance, resigned on Monday. Walter Rugh became acting mayor. Barber, Chief Police Jack Cooper and State's Attorney Arthur C. Frazier were indicted recently in a grand jury quiz into gambling and vice in Decatur. Chief Cooper resigned soon afterward. The indictment against him was dropped.

George Hayes, 21 years old, isn't afraid of the electric chair now. He has been cleared of a murder charge by the murderer himself—his double. Hayes was arrested Jan. 8 by New York police on a charge of killing James Fitzpatrick, a store clerk. Witnesses positively identified Hayes. Various circumstances seemed to involve him. So Hayes was locked up in Tombs prison to await indictment and trial. But last week John Farley—that's not his real name, incidentally—who had been arrested in a robbery, confessed that he had killed Fitzpatrick. Witnesses promptly identified him, and said they were mistaken about Hayes.

Lucille Underwood, 18 years old, the cigaret girl in the recent murder trial of Daisy Alexander Root in Memphis, was married last week at Marion, Ark., to J. C. Tyler, 24, of Dearborn, Mich. Mrs. Root killed her husband, Brenton Root, last December, in a fit of jealousy over his attentions to Miss Underwood. Mrs. Root's conviction and 10 year sentence were upheld yesterday when the Criminal court at Memphis denied her a new trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Toole, parents of four young children, were sentenced at Pittsburgh Monday to three years in jail for accepting relief checks for two and a half years when they had $11,000 in the bank and owned a $4,000 home. They also accepted free medicine and free dental care and sent their children to public summer camps.

Labor

Skyscrapers that reach toward the clouds may be monuments to man's engineering genius, but New Yorkers learned last week that they're not very practical without elevators and operators to carry man up and down.

A strike for shorter hours, higher pay, and a closed shop by building service employés furnished the lesson. The strike began on Monday after the real estate board had refused the demands, and James J. Bambrick, union chief, had declined Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's offer for a conference.

Nearly 1,000 buildings, mostly apartments, were tied up the first day. Elevator, heat, and telephone services were cut off. Mayor La Guardia immediately proclaimed a state of emergency, giving city health authorities greater power to help building occupants. He finally got Bambrick and realty board representatives together in conference as violence began. One result was a concession from Bambrick to supply limited elevator service above the sixth floor in some buildings.

The strike spread to 1,309 buildings on Tuesday, mostly in the Riverside, Central Park, and Park avenue districts. Strikers paraded in Park avenue and smashed windows. Two hundred more buildings were tied up on Wednesday. Bambrick reputedly warned that if the realty people didn't give in he'd give orders to tear up the town.

Threats of a nation-wide strike emanated from Chicago headquarters of the union Wednesday, but faded by night. Over Wednesday night the number of New York buildings tied up increased by several hundred as Bambrick, realty agents, and La Guardia ended a 14 hour conference without success. Bambrick offered to arbitrate; the agents refused. Bambrick, meanwhile, was questioned by District Attorney William Dodge about his threats to tear up the town. He denied them. Yesterday the strike spread to hotels. The total number of buildings affected was 5,000. [See main news section.]

Chicago had a touch of the New York type of strike Thursday when elevator men walked out of the Engineering building. Forty-five minutes was enough; they got a raise.

Other cities were affected by strikes. In Boston, 4,000 members of the garment workers' union walked out. Some violence was reported. Among the pickets were several college girls, educators, clergymen, and society people, among the latter Miss Zara du Pont. . . . More than 3,000 miners went on strike at Harrisburg, Ill. . . . Truck drivers for packing plants and match company workers in Akron, O., went out Thursday. . . . About 135 men in the Wilson packing plant in Cedar Rapids, Ia., went out over seniority rights. . . . The liner California was docked at San Pedro by a strike of 404 members of the crew for west coast pay.

BUSINESS MEN ASSAIL NEW TAX ON COMPANIES

Believe 'Breathing Spell' Is Ended.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Business men anxiously watching the progress of President Roosevelt's proposal to tax corporations heavily on the amount of their earnings not paid out in dividends have come to the conclusion that the new tax scheme definitly ends the "breathing spell" for business announced by the President last spring about the time congress adjourned. The "breathing spell" lasted, they point out, only slightly longer than the period during which congress was not in session.

For days company heads have been conferring long hours with their auditors exploring the possible effects of the suggested drastic changes in the method of federal taxation. Although handicapped by the lack of a definite bill to study leading Chicago business men have concluded that one of two things will happen if the President's proposal is carried into law—either it will penalize thrift in corporate finance, or it will fail to produce the expected 620 millions of adidtional federal tax revenues.

Cause of Unemployment.

"The promotion of unsound, impractical, and thoroughly alarming legislation of this type is the principal reason why unemployment persists on such a large scale," says James L. Donnelly, executive secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers association.

"A practical example is the manner in which surplus accumulation by corporations has operated to benefit workers, stockholders, and the corporations for several years.

"In the period from 1930 through 1934 it is estimated that the manufacturing industries in the United States paid out over six billion dollars in wages to workers over and above the actual requirements for the operation of such industry. In other words, manufacturing industries in this country paid out this large sum of money in wages to workers whose services were not necessary to the conduct of the business of these firms. We estimate that over 500 million dollars of this amount was expended by Illinois manufacturing corporations.

Many Would Lose Jobs.

"Such payments were, of course, paid out of surplus earnings which had been set aside by these manufacturing firms for a rainy day. If the program now advocated by our treasury department had been in effect prior to that period, the reserves out of which these payments were made would not have been accumulated and the millions of workers whose wages were paid from such reserves would have been thrown out of work and placed on relief rolls.

"Moreover, these surplus accumulations have enabled thousands of firms to continue to pay dividends to millions of stockholders, notwithstanding the fact that a substantial portion of such manufacturing firms have been operating at a loss."

The Iron Age, reflecting the attitude of the steel industry, says:

"The appetite of an extravagant administration for new tax sources is as blind and unreasoning as is the hog's appetite for corn. Having exhausted the possibilities of taxation on income and earnings to the limit of present preëlection expediency, the tax gatherer is now turning his covetous eyes toward the 'corn cribs' in which American business keeps its savings.

"Hitherto we have kept savings both corporate and personal, immune from the tax hog. He has been permitted to gobble up more than his share of replaceable current income, but not to eat into the rainy day savings."

Earnings and Dividends.

The following table shows how leading American corporations during the years of reduced income have been able to pay dividends to stockholders out of accumulations from previous years, thereby providing a cushion for investors:

M'Kinsey Likes Informal Talk; She Said 'Yes'

James O. McKinsey, recently elected chairman of Marshall Field & Co., is a former university professor and head of a prominent business advisory concern but he says he has never made a formal, memorized speech — except once.

"On that occasion," he said at a recent investment bankers' luncheon, "I carefully wrote a speech, memorized it and rehersed it many times. When I started to deliver it, however, I became flustered, forgot my painstaking rehersals, and plunged headlong into a highly informal discourse. But it didn't make any difference. She accepted me and we have been happy togther for many years."

An attorney for Home Owners' Loan corporation was prosecuting one of the many foreclosure suits now being pushed by the corporation in the courtroom of a well known Chicago judge.

"What's the amount of the mortgage?" the judge asked.

"Nine thousand dollars, your honor," the attorney said.

"What's the property worth?"

"The property is worth about $8,000," said the attorney.

"Sh, not so loud," the judge remarked. "There might be a Republican in the room."

A stag hog that sold at the Chicago stockyards recently for $72.80, weighing 980 pounds, has an exceptional record. In the panic week of 1933, when all the banks in the country were closed by order of the President, this animal was sold as a 400 pound boar to Eddie Bell, Cedar county, Ia., for only $9 cash, or $2.25 per hundred pounds.

Up to the present time Bell has sold more than $5,000 worth of pigs sired by this animal, and still has 100 fall pigs at home which he expects to sell for $2,500 when they are full grown.

The pin ball "nickel-in-the-slot" games are going overseas in record numbers, with England, South Africa, and Australia the best customers, in the order named. The National Association of Coin-Operated Machine Manufacturers, 120 South La Salle street, says department of commerce reports a record export business in 1935 of 39,696 machines with a value of $1,099,000. The place these games have taken in the United States is represented by sales of 450,000 for $35,000,000 in the past two years.

Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, in a recent address in Chicago, said the latest headache of the New Deal is to find sufficient alphabetical combinations for new bureaus without duplicating existing agencies. He cited the two CCC's—Citizens Conservation corps and Commodity Credit corporation.

"It is unreliably reported," he said, "that a lad in the country recently filed an application for a job with the Citizens Conservation corps, addressing it CCC, Washington, D. C. The letter was sent to the Commodity Credit corporation by mistake and the applicant was mailed a check for $10,000."

A CHEAP STOCK FOR LARGE PROFIT

A little over a year ago we advised the purchase of HOUDAILLE-HERSHEY "B," pronouncing it "one of the most attractive low-priced speculations in the entire list." It was then selling at 6¼. In less than a year it sold above thirty. This demonstrates the unusual profit possibilities in some of the low-priced stocks.

We have selected another issue which may duplicate the performance of HOUDAILLE-HERSHEY. It is a stock in which you might, in the months ahead, secure greater-than-normal profit. It is a well-known issue listed on the New York Stock Exchange. It is a stock in which we have great confidence. Still it sells for less than $7 a share.

TVA DEMANDS RAIL ABANDON LINE TO BE FLOODED BY NEW DAM

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Contending that the Southern Railway apparently was planning to recover compensation because part of its Vasper-La Follette branch would be under water as a result of the construction of Norris dam, the Tennessee Valley authority today filed a petition with the interstate commerce commission asking that the Southern be required to abandon the branch line.

According to the unusual petition, the TVA has been unable to induce the Southern to file such an application for scrapping the eleven-mile branch.

"This inaction," said the TVA, in its petition. "May have been induced by the apparent intention of the Southern Railway to attempt to recover compensation for the flooding of said line, from the petitioner before the obtaining of the certificate of public convenience and necessity to abandon the line, required by law. It is clear that unless said company appears in this proceeding and obtains the required certificate, it will be in position of abandoning the line in question in violation of the provision of the interstate commerce act."

Reclamation of the part of the line that will be affected, the TVA contended, would not be in the best interests of interstate commerce and should not be authorized by the ICC.

CHECK TURNOVER IN NATION GAINS 9 PCT. OVER 1935

Business activity last week based on the volume of check transactions, gained 23 per cent over the preceding week and 9 per cent over last year, banking statistics disclosed yesterday. A part of the upturn resulted from the fact that the preceding week contained only five business days, because of the Washington's birthday holiday.

Debits to individual deposit account totaled $9,452,479,000, compared with $7,677,402,000 a week earlier and $8,602,397,000 in the 1935 period. In the Chicago district the total was $1,286,717,000, an increase of 28.5 per cent over the preceding week's total of $1,001,127,000 and a rise of 24.3 per cent over last year's aggregate of $1,035,162,000.

Franc Leads Dip in Rates of Exchange

New York, March, 7.—[Special.]—Led by the franc, European currencies plunged downward today on news of Germany's denunciation of the treaty of Locarno and invasion of the demilitarized Rhineland zone. The French currency fell to 6.64½ cents, the lowest price since Jan. 29, and closed at 6.64⅝ cents, off 2⅝ points net. The dollar jumped to 99.77 cents against franc from 99.41 cents yesterday.

At this price, however, the franc was still above its parity of 6.6335 cent, and, considering the gravity of the questions raised by Germany's action, bankers here regarded the action of the French currency as remarkably mild.

Short Covering Is Factor.

This was explained in part, however, by the circumstance that the news fell on a Saturday when little business is done in foreign exchange and in part by the fact that there has been a substantial short interest in the foreign currencies, particularly in sterling, which broke the force of the decline by covering operations.

Sterling fell ⅜ cent to $4.98¾. The guilder, which earlier in the week had risen above its gold-export point, fell 17 points to 68.56 cents. The Swiss franc dropped to 32.90 cents and closed at 32.93 cents, off 10 points. Belgas were down 1 point to 17.04 cents. German marks lost 7 points to 40.60 cents. All other important exchanges also were lower.

Franc Loses Elsewhere.

Advices from abroad said that francs had fallen in relation to other European gold exchanges. The Netherlands guilder was at a level permitting gold to be exported from Paris to Amsterdam, while Swiss francs and Belgian belgas were almost strong enough to draw gold from France to those countries. Weakness of the franc in terms of sterling, it was reported, had been mitigated by operations of the British exchanges equalization account.

No transactions in gold were reported by the Federal Reserve bank of New York, but it was announced that 2,850,000 ounces of silver were on the way here from London on the steamship President Roosevelt.

SCHOOL BOARD SELLS $5,000,000 OF TAX WARANTS

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, yesterday announced the sale of $5,000,000 of 1936 educational fund tax anticipation warrants, bearing 2.5 per cent interest, to five Chicago banks.

The sale brings the total sale of 1936 warrants to $15,000,000, McCahey said. Delivery will be made next week and the money will be used to meet pay rolls.

The board also began redemption of $1,832,375 of 1933 and 1934 tax anticipation warrants yesterday. The warrants, bearing a total of $121,601 interest, were issued against the building, playground, and educational funds.

GRAINS RALLY; CRISIS ABROAD CAUSES BUYING

May Wheat Rises to Dollar Level.

A wave of short covering swept over the grain markets yesterday after scattered liquidation had caused a small dip in the early trading. Prices advanced as rapidly as they had declined the previous day.

Uneasiness over the European political situation became more pronounced as the session progressed and resulted in a broad buying movement toward the close, with final sales at the best prices of the day.

Wheat gained 1⅝ to 1¾ cents with the May option leading and closing at $1 per bushel. This delivery led the decline on Friday. Corn and oats finished fractionally higher, while rye was up about 1 cent per bushel.

Exporters Buy Canadian Grain.

Free buying of wheat futures by exporters was reported in the Winnipeg market with prices up about 1½ cents. Export sales of 500,000 bushels or more were reported.

The marked strength in the Canadian market attracted considerable attention from the trade, as it has been relatively weak lately. Canada has the largest supply of cash wheat available for export and in the event of untoward developments in Europe importing countries would be forced to buy heavily.

The rally in July wheat, representing the crop to be harvested next summer, was not a surprise to many operators. Trading in that delivery started on Oct. 1, and barring a brief period during the early part of that month the price has held within a narrow range, meeting with aggressive support around 88 cents and running into selling orders above 91 cents.

July Wheat Range Narrow.

Pit brokers assert the bulk of trading in July wheat in the last four months has been between 88½ and 91½ cents. Only once in more than five months has the close been below 88 cents. Yesterday's final price was 90 cents.

Increasing complaints of dry weather are being received from parts of the southwestern winter wheat belt, and unless additional moisture is received shortly drouth is expected to become a market factor.

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.00	$ .98¼	$1.00⅛
Corn	.61	.60⅝	.61⅛
Oats	.28⅛	.27⅝	.29
Rye	.56⅜	.55⅛	.56½

Corn and other grains yesterday were dominated to a considerable extent by the action of wheat. May oats at the low figure were in new low ground since late in December, while May rye dropped to the lowest level since late in January. The turnover was not large.

OUTPUT OF CARS SHOWS GAIN OF 25 PCT. IN WEEK

Production of passenger automobiles and trucks in the United States and Canada last week increased to 88,217 units, compared with 70,516 the week previous, according to Ward's Reports, Inc. This was a gain of approximately 25 per cent.

Much of the upturn was accounted for by the return of Ford, Chevrolet, and Plymouth to 5 day schedules, the agency said, although other plants uniformly held their pace or increased it.

"March operations will result in 400,000 assemblies and first quarter output will be close to last year's total, despite the poor February showing," Ward's says. "In 1935 1,108,941 units were produced during the first quarter.

"The potential truck market was the subject of favorable comment and a new sales record is expected this year. Growing activity in construction, agriculture, retailing, transportation, and other fields will reflect itself in increased truck sales."

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Business Gains Overshadowed by New Tax Scheme—Roosevelt Plan Draws Strong Protests—Federal Deficit Grows—Stocks Advance—Treasury to Buy Canadian Silver.

The beneficial effect of the emergence of business last week from the grip of freezing temperatures was wholly overshadowed by a proposal of President Roosevelt to revise corporate income tax procedure in an effort to obtain more of the taxpayers' dollar to pay for New Deal spending. [See Washington: Review section.]

Chief source of the new income would be an average levy of 33 1-3 per cent against undistributed corporation profits—the surplus set aside in good years to build up the business and to carry the companies through periods of lean earnings.

Stocks spurted ahead sharply in the wake of the announcement as traders leaped to the conclusion that dividend distributions would be liberal. But business men, and Democrats and Republicans alike, attacked the plan.

Although described as another "soak the rich" taxing scheme, financial men pointed out that such a program would hit the "little fellow" as well as the wealthy stockholder because it would reduce the equity of a ten share stock holding as much per share as it would reduce the equity of a big stockholder.

Boomerang.

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, nationally known banker and economist, asserted that the plan may be a national disaster.

"Boomerang effects would ride its trail," he said. "Dividends, instead of flowing in endless streams, would probably be shockingly decreased. In place of enhancement there would occur a serious impairment in the value of equities. Bear markets in stocks would ensue.

"Corporations would not stampede themselves along the dividend route. Rather, they would probably pay the surplus tax, and if there is anything left that remnant would contain the slender pickings of the stockholder. Corporations that have been provident would probably keep that remnant for surplus. The shareholder would be out on the end of a limb."

As the tax would not be retroactive, large corporations with huge surpluses would be able to retain these funds as insulation against emergencies, but thousands of little concerns, who have flirted with bankruptcy and kept solvent through the depression by only a slim margin, would be endangered. With comfortable earnings appearing only recently, they would be kept from replenishing surpluses.

Protest.

Part of the President's tax proposal, contemplating levies of $517,000,000 in processing taxes on live stock, grain, and other farm products to help finance the farm program to replace that thrown out by the Supreme court's invalidation of the agricultural adjustment act [See Washington: Review section] was heartily protested by "dirt farmers" meeting in Chicago. Most serious opposition came from live stock and dairy men who declared no especial or permanent help would result for their industry.

Silver.

Moving toward control of 75 per cent of the world's silver production the treasury launched a program for buying newly mined Canadian silver. The metal will be bought through the Bank of Canada. A similar agreement exists with Mexico. The agreement for purchase from these two countries gives this country control of 62 per cent of the world silver output, while the addition of South American output, largest producer of which is Peru, would boost the total to 75 per cent. Secretary Morgenthau affirmed reports that negotiations are under way with Latin American nations.

Padding.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced that the government's offering of $1,250,000,000 in securities [See Washington: Review section] early in the week was oversubscribed nearly seven times, and expressed concern that applications were "padded." Padding is a term applied to applications which seek a larger amount of bonds than the applicants wish, or often times can pay for, in the hope of getting an allotment approximating his needs. He mentioned specifically a middle west manufacturer who offered what was termed "a terrific subscription."

The attack on padding perplexed bankers and financial men, for the practice has existed for some time. While banks are restricted by law from bidding for an amount equal to more than 50 per cent of their combined capital and surplus, the restriction is not sufficient to prevent the banks' subscribing for more bonds than they want. The treasury has winked at the practice because resultant oversubscriptions have made it appear the demand was tremendous. Bankers commented wryly that the treasury said nothing about "padding" until the financing was completed.

Business.

Business showed signs of awakening during the week as milder weather prevailed in nearly all sections of the country. Sales and construction activity increased perceptibly. With Easter less than six weeks away spring apparel merchants were looking for a decided spurt in their lines.

Steel production pushed ahead a half point to 55½ per cent of plant capacity, electric power output dipped slightly with warmer weather, and freight car loadings rebounded from the winter slump to set a new high since last November. Bank clearings were the highest in eight weeks.

Motor car manufacturers moved ahead with spring business as a scattered pickup in sales of both used and new cars was reported. Output of new cars increased to 88,210 units from 70,516 in the preceding week. Manufacturers were predicting combined production of 400,000 cars in March.

Steel operations are expected to be swelled by increased motor car production. Agricultural equipment, road machinery, machine tool, refrigerator, and tin plate makers stepped up activity as spring approached. Railroads last week ordered 63,000 tons of steel, largest of which was an award by the Milwaukee road for 28,000 tons of rail.

Earnings.

Despite the steady encroachment of taxes on corporate income several large corporations reported sharply improved profits for 1935. Chief interest centered in the statement of Walter Gifford, president of American Telephone and Telegraph company, who informed 657,000 stockholders that income applicable to their stock totaled $132,794,782, equal to $7.11 a share. In 1934 share earnings amount-

EUROPE'S WAR THREAT SHAKES STOCK MARKET

But Losses Are Not Large at Close.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 7.—Uncertainty over the latest European war cloud unsettled the stock market today and the brief week-end session brought slightly lower prices in most departments. The selling dried up in the last hour and considerable support appeared, especially for the chief victims of the early liquidation. Recoveries in many instances amounted to a point or more so that the net losses in the main were held within a point or less.

Sales volume was 1,472,130, or almost double that of last Saturday's two hour session. At one time when the selling orders were flowing heaviest, the ticker fell two or three minutes behind operations on the floor.

"War Group" Advances.

A feature of the dealings was a smart upturn in a few industrial shares popularly classified as "war babies." Aviation issues were particularly prominent near the close. Wright Aero jumped 9 points, Curtiss-Wright rose nearly 2, and substantial gains were made by Boeing and Douglas Aircraft.

Automobile and steel stocks found the going rough. U. S. Steel gave up more than a point and Bethlehem did not fare much better. In the motors division, Chrysler was 2 points below its previous close at one time and was able to make only a fractional recovery in the last half hour's rebound.

Some of the metals improved appreciably toward the end, U. S. Smelting closing at a net gain of more than $2 a share.

Merchandise Shares Rise.

Merchandise shares were buoyed up by optimistic forecasts of spring buying. One week-end review predicted that with Easter coming early in April, the next six weeks should see the best spurt in spring buying since 1931. The McCrory issues rose 1 to more than 2 points and fractional gains were registered by Macy and other stocks of the division.

Losses in the railroad group were mainly fractional. Amerada was a feature in the oil sector, jumping 7 points. Sugars and some of the other food stocks fared better.

Some selling was reported from foreign sources, but this was not expected to attain serious proportions in view of the fact that European speculators and investors may realize that the United States will be a safer place for their funds if an upheaval occurs abroad.

Cables today from Paris reported prices on the bourse sagged on the news of Hitler's denunciation of the Locarno treaty. Losses, however, were reduced slightly on Mussolini's acceptance of the league's Ethiopian peace proposal. The London security market is closed on Saturdays.

AM. EXPRESS NET PROFIT RISES TO $6.81 PER SHARE

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—The American Express company today reported 1935 net income of $1,225,994, including $633,163 profits on sales of securities. The earnings equal $6.81 a share and compare with $1,136,121 or $6.31 a share in 1934.

The combined net income of the American Express company and the American Express company, Inc., amounted to $1,498,464 for the year, equal to $8.32 a share on the capital stock of American Express company. Combined net income was $1,232,042 or $6.84 a share in the previous year.

HUGE TAX LEVY BY U. S. RUINOUS, UTILITY WARNS

Collection Would Strip Company of Assets.

Collection by the federal government of the $51,000,000 in taxes and penalties assessed against the Associated Gas and Electric company would strip the company of its assets and destroy the equity of its security holders, the company warns in a letter sent to its 300,000 security holders.

Liens against the company's property for the taxes claimed for the years 1929-'33 were filed by the government in New York last December. Earlier the government conducted a criminal investigation of the company under the mail fraud statutes, but after three months of hearing evidence a federal grand jury failed to return indictments.

Assessment Unexpected.

The company told its security holders that the assessment by the internal revenue department came out of a clear sky at a time when the company was coöperating with the government to settle a dispute over taxes paid in the earlier years of 1927-'28.

"With the filing of these huge assessments demands were served for immediate payment in cash under the menace of seizure and sale of the company's assets to satisfy the claims," the company said. "Thus far there has been no levy on the company's property, but the assessments are in the hands of the tax collector and constitute a continuing threat of such action. If taken, it would obviously strip the company of its assets and result in the virtual confiscation of all present and future value of Associated Gas and Electric company securities."

Levies Grossly Excessive.

The company described the assessments as grossly excessive. They are based, the company said, on the "absurd and utterly unfounded assumption of a taxable net income during the period 1929-'33 of nearly $300,000,000."

The government assumed that the company realized a profit of 100 per cent on intercompany sale of securities and at the same time disallowed full offsets claimed for bond discount and expense, security holders were told.

The big liens filed against the company, it was asserted, have prevented the carrying out of profitable refunding operations at a time when the market is favorable and interest rates are low.

The company warned security holders that all efforts will be made to oppose the government's claim, but that the management cannot be responsible for the outcome. The company expressed confidence that it can prove it has met all taxes which accrued.

BUSINESS GAINS OVERSHADOWED BY TAX SCHEME

Roosevelt's Plan Draws Strong Protests.

Profit of the Crane company amounted to $1,442,637, or 18 cents a common share, after extraordinary charge offs of $1,147,651. In 1934 net was $1,071,042. Earnings of the Pure Oil company were the best in six years. General Electric company reported the largest profit since 1931. United States Rubber company's net failed to cover preferred dividend requirements, but the showing was favorable when compared with the loss in 1934. Taxes were four times profits. Elgin National Watch company's net income rose on a better demand for jewelry and semi-luxury items. Schenley Distillers corporation earned $7.65 per share on common, against $6.63 in 1934.

The Associated Press estimated that net income of 466 domestic corporations in 1935 was 33.9 per cent above the preceding year. The aggregate was placed at $1,454,408,000.

In Hollywood ranking movie actors announced their decision to make fewer pictures, earn less and pay smaller taxes, reasoning that their net incomes would be about the same as at present because of smaller taxes paid for less work.

Securities.

Wall street's interpretation of the tax proposal lifted many stocks. Gains ranged to as much as 25 points in Allied Chemical. The manner in which some issues were pushed up suggested that only small amounts were available for market consumption.

The trend, however, was not one sided. While some favorites rose to new high marks, selling pressure was exerted elsewhere. Chief losses were shown in the tobacco list where selling was based on fears that additions to cigaret taxes might be adopted. Some of the movie and liquor stocks lost ground and coppers receded.

Numerous issues were carried to new highs for many years. Chrysler and General Motors made new tops since 1929. U. S. Steel touched its best level since 1931. Other steels and motors strengthened, mercantile shares advanced, chemicals improved, farm equipments were carried to new highs, and rails and aviations were strong. The general market weakened slightly yesterday due to the new war "scare."

Oversubscription of the treasury offering exerted a beneficial influence on the bond market, especially government issues. Advances were general and trading heavier.

Windfall.

Chicago bankers on Friday purchased from the Reconstruction Finance corporation $41,469,000 of 4 per cent Sanitary District of Chicago bonds, which they had an opportunity to buy direct nearly two years ago. The bankers paid the RFC a premium of $414,690 and accrued interest. The deal marked the second big windfall for the government in its dealings with Chicago municipalities. An issue of $22,300,000 of Board of Education bonds, purchased in June, 1934, were sold subsequently to Chicago banks at a premium of $223,000.

Shakeup.

In a drastic shakeup the federal reserve board announced it would terminate the services of six regional bank chairmen, effective April 30. An accompanying statement said the move was made to avoid dual executive responsibility and to place the chairmanship on an honorary basis. Eugene M. Stevens of Chicago was one of those dropped.

Trains.

The Illinois Central railway announced it would soon place in service between Chicago and St. Louis a Diesel-electric streamlined, lightweight train which will make the 294 mile run in 5 hours or less. The Pennsylvania revealed it had completed construction of a powerful passenger streamlined steam locomotive which cuts wind resistance sharply.

ARGUE RFC BANK LOAN SOUGHT TO AID DEPOSITORS

Federal Lawyers Defend 90 Million Deal.

The original purpose in agreeing to lend $90,000,000 to the Central Republic Bank and Trust company—to protect depositors—was fully carried out in the final advance of $50,000,000 which went to the City National Bank and Trust company, O. J. Rogge, leading counsel for the Reconstruction Finance corporation, asserted yesterday as he launched final arguments in the RFC suit to collect $14,000,000 liability from stockholders.

The argument was punctuated by frequent interruptions by defense attorneys and questions by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who is hearing the case without a jury.

Explains Reason for Loan.

"Of course, we knew of the agreement made with the City National bank," said Rogge. "This was done as the only means of saving deposits. Deposits and loans shrank sharply during the summer of 1932. The bank did not have a single favorable index. Suppose the old bank had borrowed the money. It would have been only a short time until it was forced to liquidate, with the heavy interest burden and rental charges.

"You would have been better off had you stopped before the advance of Oct. 6, wouldn't you?" inquired the court. "All that must be considered in determining whether the final loan was a different arrangement. But we have to go a step further: Was there a banking institution when the money was advanced?"

Status of Bank Argued.

Rogge said the bank did exist, that the transaction was made between 7 and 8 a. m. on Oct. 6, and that the bank did not cease to take deposits until it did not open at 9 a. m. Defense counsel interrupted to say that the bank ceased to be a banking institution the previous afternoon when it accepted its last deposits.

Referring to Attorney Franklin J. Stransky's charges of a "conspiracy of silence" in the failure to call key men in the bank as witnesses, Rogge said "they could have added nothing to the case."

"I don't know who should have been called," remarked the court, "but it seems to me the president and chairman of the bank could have testified as to facts and their intentions and all the features of the transaction. They could have thrown some light on the situation."

Court Calls for Facts.

"I can't get it out of my head that this is a case of facts, primarily, and not of law," said Judge Wilkerson. "The matters of law seem well settled."

The court repeatedly brought arguments back to two questions of fact.

The first question emphasized by the court is whether alleged liability arises from the original RFC commitment of June 27, 1932, to lend up to $90,000,000 or whether liability for the final advance of $50,000,000 on Oct. 6 arises from the note given that morning. The second question is whether or not the Central Republic was, in fact, a banking institution when the final loan was made and whether the loan was legal.

Referring to defense argument that the primary condition imposed in the original commitment was assurance that funds would be used to keep the bank open, Rogge said the RFC dictated the provision and, therefore, could change it. Likewise, directors had the power to change the contract as much as they had the power to make one in the first place. He also said the divisibility of the contract into various notes did not alter validity of the original agreement.

Iowa Electric Light Files $3,600,000 Refunding Loan

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Iowa Electric Light and Power company of Cedar Rapids, Ia., has filed a registration statement under the securities act of 1933 covering $3,600,000 of first mortgage bonds series E, 4 per cent, due Dec. 1, 1955, and $1,250,000 of 3 per cent coupon notes to mature serially from Oct. 1, 1936, to April 1, 1941. Proceeds will be applied to the redemption on June 1 of $3,600,000 of the company's first and refunding mortgage bonds, series B, 5 per cent, due 1946, at 102 per cent and accrued interest. The balance will be applied to payment of $1,175,000 of bank loans.

Court Upholds Legality of Labor Relations Act

Rochester, N. Y., March 7.—[U. P.]—Federal Judge Harlan W. Rippey today upheld the constitutionality of the national labor relations act. He denied applications for injunctions against the national labor board and dismissed complaints in three cases involving constitutionality of the act. The court held the companies had failed to set forth that the board or its agents were acting outside the scope of their authority under the act.

Cooper Bessemer Awarded Big Gas Compressor Order

The Cooper Bessemer corporation has been awarded a contract by the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company for twelve 1,300 horse power and two 1,000 horse power twin tandem gas compressor units to pump natural gas from the Texas Panhandle to Detroit, Mich. The order is the largest of its kind placed since 1930, according to B. B. Williams, president of the engine company.

Transit Revenues Rise; Big Gains Made in East

New York, March 7.—(AP)—The Transit Journal's indicator of transit revenues for the week ended Feb. 29, figured from reports of a representative group of companies, stood 5.84 per cent above a year ago. Large gains on the Atlantic seaboard were reported.

CATTLE, LAMBS RALLY; FARMERS CUT SHIPMENTS

Prices Recover Sharply from Recent Lows.

Cattle and lamb prices have rallied sharply from the 1936 lows of late last month, due largely to the fact that farmers refused to sell on the decline and cut receipts below the average volume received during the period when the live stock country was tied up by snow and a record cold wave.

Last week's total arrivals were reduced to 2,463 carloads of all stock, including trucked-in stock in terms of rail carloads, a reduction of 159 carloads from the preceding week. With the exception of one week during the storm and a holiday period, it was the lightest run since September.

The "comeback" in cattle values began about the middle of the preceding week and the rise continued most of last week, with some classes reaching a peak of $1 to $1.50 above the low spot before demand lightened.

Better Steers Slip Back.

Activity died down near the close and in spots some of the better grades of steers slipped back, final bids indicating declines of 15 to 25 cents, compared with the high point of the week. Cheapest grades escaped this weakness, common steers and most hefers finishing at the high point.

Since much of the gain was scored late in the preceding week, last week's final quotations for steers showed advances of only 15 to 25 cents compared with a week earlier. Hefers were scarce and led the rise in butcher stock, closing 50 to 75 cents higher than a week ago. Calves declined 50 to 75 cents.

The six day steer average at $8.70 indicated a rise of 80 cents and was highest in four weeks. However, it still shows a loss of $2.05 compared with 1935. Last week's top steers at $12 were highest since Feb. 17.

Lambs Rise; Hogs Irregular.

Lambs rose 40 to 60 cents during the week, closing 75 to 85 cents above the 1936 lows. Aged and yearling sheep advanced mostly 25 cents. Top fed western lambs sold at $10.15, yearlings at $9, and old ewes at $5.60.

Hog prices were erratic during the week, rising 15 to 25 cents in midweek, but gains were rubbed out later. Final quotations were unevenly 5 to 25 cents under the close of the preceding week, the average for the six days at $10.05 equaling the lowest week's average since Jan. 18.

Adolf Gobel Noteholders Agree to Exchange Offer

Adolf Gobel, Inc., meat packing firm, announced yesterday that nearly all holders of its $2,250,000 6½ per cent notes, due May 1, 1935, have applied for new convertible 4½ per cent debentures of 1941, offered in exchange for old notes under the company's plan of reorganization. The offer was limited to $1,125,000 of the new debentures and holders of each $1,000 note will receive a $500 debenture and $524.13 in cash, plus $86.31 accrued interest on the old note.

COMMODITY PRICES LOWER LAST WEEK; LOSSES ARE SMALL

Commodity markets generally were on the downgrade last week, but with few exceptions losses were confined to small fractions of a cent. May wheat sold during the week at the lowest level since Feb. 19 and May oats were lowest since the middle of December, while May lard dropped to a new low for the season.

October egg futures and the May delivery of sugar went against the trend of the general market and advanced to new high levels for the season to date.

EGGS SAG ANEW; MILD WEATHER LIFTS RECEIPTS

Fresh egg prices declined 1 to 2 cents per dozen in the Chicago market yesterday as the result of heavier receipts and favorable weather throughout producing areas. Extra first grade eggs in car lots sold at 24 cents per dozen and fresh graded firsts were quoted at 23½ cents.

Weakness in the fresh egg market was reflected in a decline of ¼ cent in the October delivery on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, which closed at 21¾ cents per dozen with sales of 12 cars.

Firmness prevailed in the spot butter market and the March delivery gained ¼ cent, closing at 30¾ cents.

Holland butter was reported offered at New York for future shipment at the equivalent of 18 cents per pound delivered, while offers from Latvia were as low as 16¾ cents. The buyer pays the duty of 14 cents per pound. Imports of foreign butter at New York last week were 565,000 pounds, largely from New Zealand. Closing prices on butter and egg futures follow:

COMMISSION HOUSE BUYING BRINGS SHARP RISE IN LARD

Commission house buying, said to have been based on uncertainty regarding political developments in Europe, and short covering lifted lard futures sharply yesterday. Final trades were about the top with net gains of 12½ to 25 cents.

No improvement in the European demand for cash lard was indicated, although there have been inquiries recently for moderate quantities. A rally in cotton seed oil had some effect on lard during the day. Clear bellies closed nominally unchanged.

Cash lard was quoted at $10.55, loose $10.10, leaf $10.12 and clear bellies $14.75 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

TRUST FUND CASE MAY LIFT PAYOFF OF CLOSED BANKS

Decree Puts All Deposits on Common Ground.

Depositors of closed banks in Illinois may benefit to the extent of several millions of dollars, it was learned yesterday, as a result of the ruling by Circuit Judge Harry B. Fisher on Friday that the state trust company act is unconstitutional.

The far reaching significance of the decision, if upheld in the higher courts, was pointed out yesterday by Dudley F. Jessopp, attorney for William L. O'Connell, general receiver of closed state banks in Illinois.

The ruling would take away a preference previously attached to trust claims and reduce them to the same common creditor status as depositors, he said, and depositors would share in funds previously held for trust claims.

May Release Trust Funds.

Under the trust act banks are required to make certain deposits with the state auditor in Springfield as security for trust accounts. Judge Fisher's ruling would release these funds for application against all claims. He held that the trust company act is limited to corporations other than banks. Second, he ruled that if it could apply to banks it was unconstitutional because it was passed as an amendment to the banking law of the state and not submitted to referendum as required.

The case at issue was one in which O'Connell and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett sued to foreclose on a $60,000 mortgage held by the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank against Henry and Louis Reuter, who operate Reuter Brothers Iron Works, 5814 South Wood street.

Test Case Is Explained.

The Reuters had $60,000 on deposit in the bank when it closed in June, 1931, prior to which they had obtained the mortgage and put up their plant as security. The bank deposited the mortgage in Springfield along with other items as security for trust claims.

The Reuters contested the suit for benefit of trust claims, contending the bank had no right to deposit the mortgage, and asked that it be returned to the bank and be canceled against their $60,000 claim arising from deposits in the bank when it closed.

LAKE SHIPPING MAY START LATE, DUE TO HEAVY ICE

Cleveland, O., March 7.—(AP)—Ice reports received at the Lake Carrier association's office indicate the spring interlake movement of vessels may not get under way until about May 1, although the ore and coal exchange announced plans to begin the movement of coal from western Lake Erie ports to the Detroit river late in March.

Reports from Sault Ste. Marie said: "Impossible to make any prediction as to when vessels can get through. Everything frozen tight. No spring weather as yet."

Chicago reported southern Lake Michigan free of ice and said Standard Oil company tankers, bound for Muskegon, Mich., would probably inaugurate the 1936 shipping season in those waters during the last week of March.

The Buffalo, N. Y., harbor, frozen solidly, may not be open to lake trafic until mid-May. All other major Lake Erie harbors east of Cleveland remained frozen. At Sandusky, west of here, lake men predicted movement of fishing tugs around March 20.

The 50 cents will apply on past due dividends, amounting to $15 a share. The two are payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 14.

1,000 RAILROAD OFFICIALS MEET HERE THIS WEEK

Conventions, Equipment Show Open Tomorrow.

Two national conventions and an exhibition of railroad supplies will bring to Chicago during the coming week more than 1,000 construction and maintenance engineers and railway officials for an interchange of ideas and to conduct the business affairs of their respective organizations.

Activities will begin tomorrow when the signal section engineers for the various lines which are members of the Association of American Railroads will convene at the Hotel Stevens for a two day session.

Equipment Exhibit at Coliseum.

An exhibit of track, maintenance, and construction supplies also will open tomorrow at the Coliseum under the auspices of the National Railway Appliances association. This exhibit is held annually in conjunction with the conventions—it was discontinued during several depression years—and is regarded an index to the condition of the railroad industry. In view of the fact that railroads purchased approximately $600,000,000 in supplies during 1935 considerable interest will be evinced in the buying power reflected at the exhibition.

The American Railway Engineering association will open its 37th annual convention on Tuesday at the Palmer house. This group consists of track, bridge, building, maintenance and construction engineers and is considered one of the rail industry's most important conventions. The members will discuss technical problems and will pass upon reports drafted throughout the year by various committees and subcommittees.

Budd to Address Engineers.

Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, will address the engineers at a luncheon meeting on Wednesday at the Palmer house. His address is the only non-technical feature scheduled for the convention. His topic has not yet been announced.

All delegates to the conventions have been invited to a meeting of the Western Railway club at the Hotel Sherman on Wednesday evening. The engineers will bring their business to a close on Thursday, on which day the officers for the coming year will be elected.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 7.—Prices of bonds moved irregularly lower as stocks weakened on European political news. Treasury obligations, which had been vulnerable because of their advance during the week, yielded small fractions, but not before two issues, the treasury 3⅜s of 1941-1943 and the 3¼s of 1943-1945, had sold at new highs.

Sales for the short session amounted to $7,437,000 compared with $7,805,000 on the preceding Saturday.

High Grades Dip Slightly.

High grade rails, utilities, and industrials dipped small fractions, while speculative groups registered larger losses. There were sharp price declines in Studebaker 6s and Union Pacific refunding 5s of 2008. A number of railroad issues lost a point or more.

A number of foreign bonds weakened. Among those selling at concessions up to a point included Italian 7s at 67¼, Milan 6½s at 56¾, Rome 6½s at 58¼; French 7s at 182, the 7½s at 182½, and German Agricultural bank 6s at 31½.

New Issues Sell Well.

The week just closed will be recalled for the two satisfactory tests that were made of the public appetite for high grade corporation bonds. Two issues of railroad bonds, totaling $104,000,000, went quickly into the hands of investors and immediately sold at substantial premiums. In the week before a large utility issue met a similar reception. In all three cases the bonds were manifestly priced below the general market appraisal.

Stockholders and Social Security.

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

In the near future corporations will be faced with two entirely new types of taxes under the federal social security law, the unemployment insurance tax, and the pension tax. The first payment on the unemployment tax will be on Jan. 1, 1937, covering 1936 pay rolls, and will amount to 1 per cent of this year's pay checks. The tax on 1937 pay rolls will be 2 per cent and on 1938 and succeeding years' pay rolls 3 per cent.

Under the pension plan a 1 per cent annual tax will be levied on wages paid up to $3,000 as a pension tax, beginning in 1937, rising to 1½ per cent in 1940; 2 per cent in 1943, 2½ per cent in 1946, and 3 per cent in 1949.

The railroads, in a special class, will have to pay a 4½ per cent tax on 1936 pay rolls, 5½ per cent in 1937, and 6½ per cent in 1938 and thereafter.

There is little question that the bulk of the taxes paid will have to come out of earnings. Many corporations will probably adjust wages downward to compensate for the tax paid and many will probably be able to pass part of the increased cost of doing business on to their customers. Some corporations that already have pension plans may scrap them, offsetting part of the expense of the new taxes.

COTTON TRADE BROADENS; SHORTS COVER; PRICES RISE

Trade in cotton broadened somewhat yesterday. While Liverpool cables reflected little apprehension over the unexpected political developments on the continent, American traders were disposed to reduce commitments on the short side of the new crop months and covered rather freely. The close was at the top. Chicago gained 6 to 14 points while other markets were 8 to 15 points higher on the active months. [A point is equal to 1-100 cent.]

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 15 points higher, with New Orleans, 11.35 cents; Houston, 11.25 cents, Galveston, 11.20 cents, and New York at 11.30 cents per pound. Prices follow:

CHICAGO STOCKS DIP SLIGHTLY; HIGHER IN WEEK

Chicago stocks reacted slightly yesterday to close a week of generally higher prices and more active trading, which reversed the trend of the preceding week. The week's volume was 495,000 shares, compared with 407,000 in the preceding week and 113,000 a year ago.

The brewing shares, Marshall Field, Bliss & Laughlin, Butler Brothers, Cord and other automotive shares, and a few of the utilities featured activity during the week.

Kingsbury, with yesterday's best turnover of 4,050 shares, was the only one of the brewers to continue its advance. It gained ½ to close at 3⅝ and recorded one of the day's four highs. Prima and Heileman were unchanged at or near 1936 tops, while Berkhoff eased ¼ from its Friday top ceiling.

Field and Bliss & Laughlin, which had two of the sharpest rises in the last ten days, reacted a point or so yesterday. Motors were slightly lower. Cord was most active and steady.

New high records for the season were established in the futures market on an active buying movement by Wall street and commission houses. OPEN CONGRESSIONAL VOTE CAMPAIGN

DRIVE FOR NEW ARMORY GAINS ADDED IMPETUS

Committee to Seek Aid in Capital.

BY ELBERT FAUST.

The northwest side campaign for a National Guard armory received new stimulus recently following announcement of the citizens' committee for a northwest side armory that action is being taken in Washington to interest congress in earmarking $80,000,000 remaining PWA funds for a country-wide armory construction program.

REPRESENTATIVE PIERCE SHANNON.

The proposed northwest side unit is one of a number of similar projects in the state supported by Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keen, president of the National Guard association and commanding officer of the 33d division of the Illinois National Guard, and State Representative Pierce Shannon of the Illinois armory board.

Plans propose an expenditure of $1,180,000 for a new home for motorized and medical units and special troops of the northwest area.

Princess of Indian Nations Recalls Lost Tribal Domain

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Out where the city ends, about a mile east of the Des Plaines river, where Lawrence avenue meets the East River road, live the granddaughters of an Indian chief, Che-chu-pinqua, and of Cateche, his wife.

Not far from the weather beaten home of the Indian princess in the forest preserve property are the graves of the chief and several of his family. Alexander Robinson was the English name of this chief of the Potawatami, the Chippewa, and Ottawa nations of Indians.

The Indian princess doesn't wear the regal eagle feather. High cheek bones and black-brown eyes only reveal her inheritance. Hers is a German name, Mrs. Herman Boettcher. Her life is secluded in a frame house that was battered in the hail storm of three years ago.

Now Raise Turkeys.

The quail and the prairie chicken that were plentiful in the day of the old chief have disappeared. The Boettchers raise turkeys. They feed them cottage cheese and the turkeys and pigeons are fat enough to keep to the ground. But the boys who picnic in the forest preserves try to shoot them. "The Indian child never destroyed birds nor acted as savage as the white boy," says Mrs. Boettcher in disgust.

While attention is focused on the northwest side and suburban history by the Portage Park and the Jefferson Park recreation commissions who are verifying and checking the background of the territory, interest falls on Mrs. Boettcher and Mrs. Fred Winters, her sister. These women are reputedly the only descendants of the old chief who saved the lives of the Kinzie family and Capt. Heald at the time of the Fort Dearborn massacre.

Her Life Is Hardy.

Mrs. Boettcher doesn't like to talk to strangers. The interior of her home, with beds, tables, and stoves, in no way resembles the home of the city.

Stories have come to her by way of her mother, Mrs. Frank Ragor, the daughter of the chief. She heard her tell of the old peddler, Meyer, who came to sell from the pack which he carried on his back.

Then there is the story of Johnny Appleseed. Protected by the Indians because they thought him insane, he was able to rove about the country side planting apple seeds.

Princess Mary, Mrs. Boettcher's mother, remembered the trading post across the river, then called Aux Plaines, when the West River road was an Indian trail.

Alexander Robinson in the treaty of Prairie du Chien in 1829 was given about 250 acres of land some distance northwest from the village of Checau-gua. A clause in that treaty assured that the territory would pass from heir to heir and always belong to the Indian.

Lost Among the Whites.

Mrs. Boettcher's home in the forest preserve, however, is all she can claim. Her two sons, Frank and John, live somewhere in the city.

Mrs. Boettcher and Mrs. Winters belong to a club, the Grand Council Fire of American Indians. Chi-bi-abois, the Indian singer, comes sometimes to their homes. But members of the Potawatami, the Chippewa, and the Ottawa tribes do not know of the sisters. The people of the nations have been lost among the whites.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

EVANSTON proudly hung forty portraits and landscape paintings by a lifelong resident last Thursday in the Art Center's gallery at the public library. The artist herself, Edna Rogerson Cooper, who is Mrs. William Kent in private life, will give the monthly community program at 8 o'clock next Thursday night. She has promised to tell some of the amusing stories that portraits in the exhibit recall to her while she is at work on a demonstration painting.

Evarts Taylor is the eighth grade's table tennis champion at the Central school in Glencoe. The scores that told the story in the recent tournament finals were 21-16, 21-7, and 21-19. It was no easy victory, but Evarts' overspin drive, coming from 5 to 10 feet back of the table, worked the trick against Wallace Peterson's threatening forehand chop.

Seek to Gain Seat Lost in 1934.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A Republican battle to recapture the Ninth congressional district, traditional G. O. P. territory, from the Democrats who grabbed it in 1934 is shaping up as a chief contest for seats in congress from the north side. From the Michigan avenue bridge to Irving Park boulevard, the Republicans are beginning to raise the shout, "Drive the rubber stamp congress out."

Mrs. Bertha Baur, national committee woman from Illinois, has entered the Republican primaries. Four other candidates are pitted against her, but the ward committeemen in the district have indorsed her and so has the Illinois Republican Citizens' organization. Party leaders hold that she may have little trouble in winning the Republican nomination.

Other G. O. P. Aspirants.

The other Republican entrants are Albert Daggitt Confeit, M. Thomas Hartford, Frederick Bolton Woodcock, and Michael H. Wolf. Some of them have run at various times for various other offices.

In the Democratic primaries Congressman James McAndrews is opposed by Henry J. Busch. McAndrews is the man who in 1934 snatched from the veteran Fred A. Britten the congressional seat which the latter had been warming for some 22 years. Busch is a former Republican who has done a high dive into the Democratic party with a view of helping Gov. Henry Horner, whose campaign he is running in the Forty-second ward.

Four years ago Mr. Busch was a candidate for Republican ward committeeman against the veteran Charles Peace [42d]. He has been an assistant state's attorney, under John Swanson. In explaining how come he somersaulted into the Democratic primaries, Mr. Busch says, "I've been an admirer of Gov. Horner and think he has done a fine job. I am working for him earnestly."

Machine Supports Him.

McAndrews has the backing of the Democratic machine, which scoffs at any idea the apple cart might be tipped, but along the north side in the Forty-second, Forty-third, Forty-fourth, and Forty-sixth wards, which form the Ninth district, recent reports have been that Gov. Horner is showing strength since he put on his fighting clothes, which might aid Busch.

Signs of rising discord among the Democrats are heralded by the Republicans as tidings of political joy. The Ninth for more than 30 years was normal Republican ground on congress. From the time the district was established in 1901 until the 1934 election, it elected a Democrat only once—Lynden Evans in 1910. Two years ago the Democrats went out to elect their own man instead of slipping aid elsewher and McAndrews defeated Britten by 8,200.

Mrs. Baur has long been a figure in the business, political, and social world. She is the widow of Jacob Baur, founder of the Liquid Carbonic company, from whom she inherited a fortune.

Former Postoffice Aid.

As Bertha Duppler she came to Chicago from Indiana to be secretary to Postmaster Charles U. Gordon. She held her place under three succeeding postmasters, and was regarded as one of the most valuable assistants in the service—practically ran the postoffice. She studied law, was married to Mr. Baur and after his death in 1912 carried on much of the business.

In 1926 Mrs. Baur ran for congress in the Republican primaries and was beaten by Mr. Britten. At the Kansas City Republican national convention in 1928 she was elected national commiteewoman from Illinois.

SEVENTH DISTRICT

This huge district has 889,000 population, more than one-fourth of Chicago's inhabitants, and this year it has a plethora of candidates for congress in both parties.

James C. Moreland has been indorsed by the Republican party organization and the Republican citizens' group for nomination in the Republican primaries. Moreland got into politics in 1930, running on an anti-prohibition platform and defeating M. A. Michaelson, then Republican congressman, in the primaries. In the subsequent election, however, Moreland was defeated by Leonard W. Schuetz, Democrat, who was swept in by the landslide that year in Illinois. Moreland was then elected alderman of the Forty-first ward, went to the Republican national convention in 1932 as a delegate, and was elected Republican committeeman of his ward.

12 Enter G. O. P. Contest.

All told, 12 candidates have entered the Republican primaries. Ex-Congressman Michaelson is at the top of the list.

Last man to enter was George F. Scheck, a lawyer, born in Chicago in 1891. He is a graduate of Webster College of Law and Chicago-Kent College of Law, and since his admission to the bar in 1924 he has practiced in Chicago. He is married and has

He was trust officer at the Reliance State bank from 1926 to 1928, and during the war was a member of the intelligence service of the department of justice.

Meyer Fink, another candidate, is a lawyer, and made his first campaign for congress in 1932. He ran again in 1934 and says, "I intend to keep running for the same office until I get it." For several years Fink has delivered radio talks on public questions, and his law firm is one of the attorneys for the Chicago Federation of Labor. Mr. Fink is also general counsel to the Public Ownership league.

Other Candidates Listed.

Borger O. Borgerson is among the entrants. He was a candidate in the primaries in 1930. In 1922 he was a Republican candidate for county commissioner with the backing of the Norwegian-American club. Other Republican candidates are Henry G. Hansen, Herbert T. Yuenger, William H. Brown, John J. Sweeney, Edward J. Frankland, George W. Lloyd, and Luman A. Lobdell.

In the Democratic primaries Congressman Schuetz has five opponents. They are George D. Zielinski, J. Turner Barton, Edward J. Green, Louis Kutner, and Austin J. Mangan. The Democratic machine has indorsed Schuetz and declares it will be an easy ride at the primaries. The Republicans hold that the district, which Fred Lundin once represented in congress, is ripe for recapture in November.

EIGHTH DISTRICT

The Eighth is the smallest district in Cook county, only 138,000 population, and it is a Democratic stronghold. Congressman Leo Kocialkowski has four adversaries in the Democratic primaries, chief of them being the veteran Stanley K. Kunz, ex-alderman and ex-congressman. Mr. Kunz has been a figure in Democratic politics in Chicago for nearly fifty years, dating back to 1888, when he was elected to the legislature.

Kocialkowski has the backing of the party organization, and headquarters declares it is tied down. But Kunz in the past has often displayed great political recuperative powers in this region.

Two are entered in the Republican primaries. Edward Richard Piszatowski carries the indorsement of the Republican citizens' group and of La Salle hotel headquarters. His opponent is Edwin C. Gordon.

Mr. Piszatowski is an attorney, age 43, a resident of the district for 36 years, a world war veteran, and a reserve officer. He was assistant city prosecutor, 1930-1932. He was Republican nominee for congress in 1934, when he was beaten by 18,000 votes by Congressman Kocialkowski.

ELEVENTH DISTRICT

Du Page, Kane, McHenry, and Will counties comprise the Eleventh district which since its establishment by the apportionment of 1901 has never elected a Democrat to congress. The Republicans see prospects of keeping this record unbroken this year.

Congressman Chauncey W. Reed of West Chicago, who was elected in 1934 as successor to Frank R. Reid of Aurora, has three opponents in the Republican primaries, George B. Gelakoski of Aurora, Frank J. Kohout of Hinsdale, and John J. Lookabaugh of Elmhurst.

Two candidates in the Democratic primaries are Carl P. Lies of Aurora and John R. Barber of Joliet. Two years ago there were five Democratic entrants.

Congressman Reed, a war veteran, was elected state's attorney of Du Page county in 1920 and reëlected three times. He was president of the Illinois State's Attorneys' association two terms and for eight years was chairman of the Du Page Republican county committee.

In 1934 he won in the Republican primaries by a 2,500 plurality and in the election that year he was one of the six Republicans elected to congress from Illinois, the Democrats carrying 19 districts and also electing the two congressmen-at-large. He won by 721 votes over James A. Howell. Reed carried Du Page and McHenry counties, Howell carried Kane and Will counties.

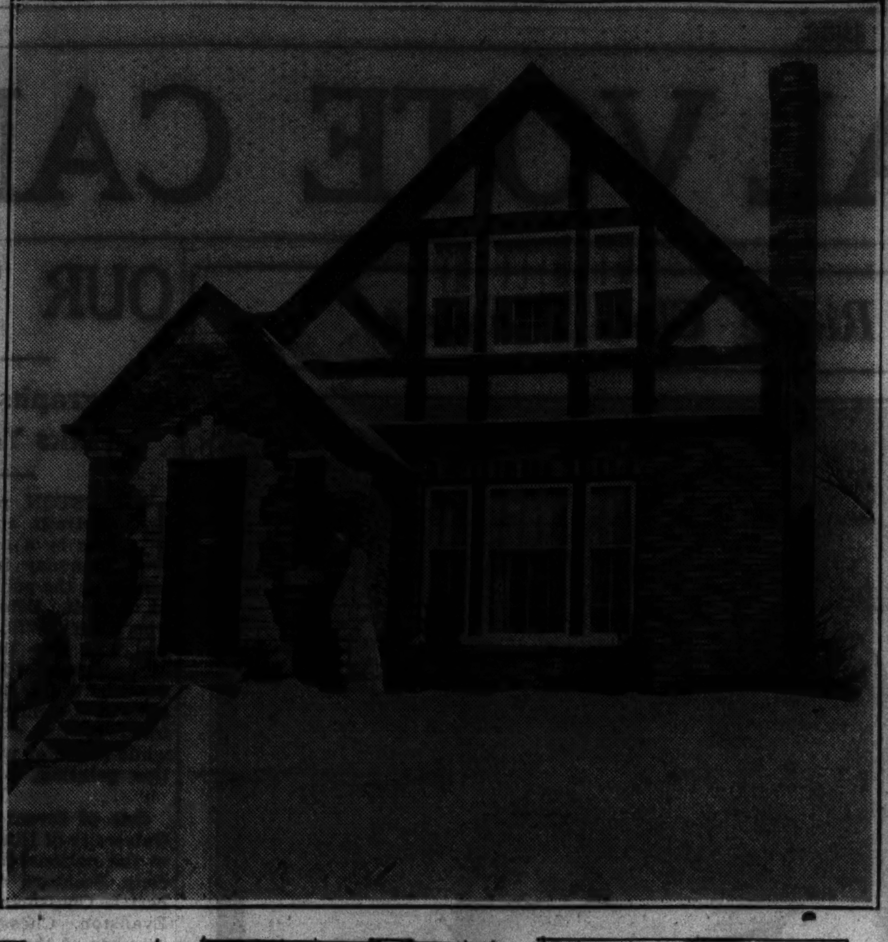
SEA ADVENTURER TO TALK TUESDAY AT NORTH PARK

A vicarious trip to the South Seas will be afforded the audience at the next lecture in a series of cultural programs at North Park college, 3225 West Foster avenue, to be given Tuesday evening by Capt. Irving Johnson, adventurer and lecturer, who will illustrate his talk, "Circling the Globe in the Yankee," with motion pictures.

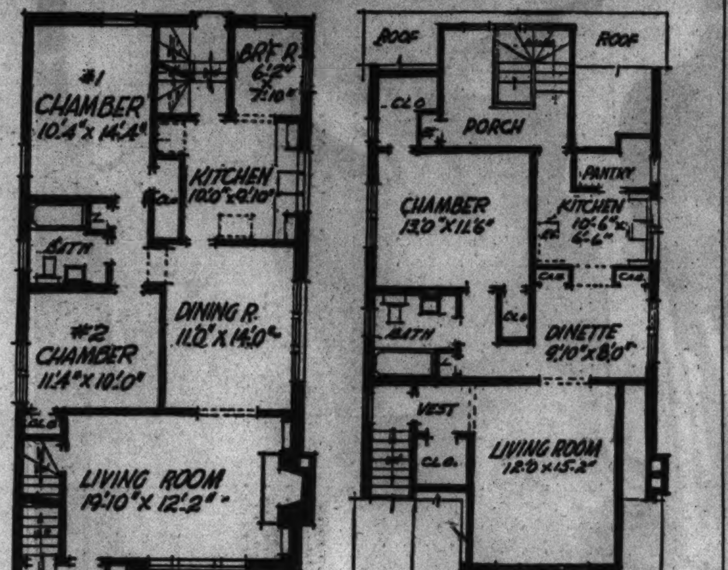
The captain, his wife and their crew, sailing out of Gloucester, made a year and a half trip in their ninety-two foot schooner "Yankee." They went over the Caribbean sea, then on through the Panama canal to the Galapagos islands made famous by Darwin and Beebe. From there they went to lonely Pitcairn island, home of descendants of the mutineers of the "Bounty," famous English sailing vessel of the 18th century, and thence to other South Sea islands.

Their many unique experiences will be told by Capt. Johnson. He had sea experience before the "Yankee" trip. He was at one time second in command of Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V.

A MODERN TWO FAMILY RESIDENCE



A dwelling with a dual personality, this, since it creates the impression of a single home, and yet in reality harbors two apartments. The architect of this recently built, handsome two family residence is Charles Christen, 3 Madison street, Oak Park.



Here are seen the floor plans of the two apartments, contained in an apparently old English cottage type home, with stone trim, half timber work and stucco. The owners are William O. Brown and Joseph R. Forrest. The dwelling stands at 1819 Normandy avenue, Chicago. Homes in the English spirit are still in favor!

COLONIAL DESIGN WILL DOMINATE HOMES FOR 1936

New 2 Family Dwelling in $10,000 Class.

Mrs. Bargelt will be glad to answer questions on home building and remodeling.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

This new two family home, which has been completed recently, has a distinct charm and a practical appeal. It is a small dwelling, as its floor plans show, but with considerable presence, partly derived from its structural materials, half timber and stone work and stucco, and partly from its English cottage ancestry.

The problem in this home was to plan a small structure which should have the appearance of a single family home and yet contain two separate apartments, one of five rooms and one of four rooms. It was also necessary to keep it in the $10,000 class.

In connection with the styling of the building shown here, those who are planning to build or to remodel extensively this year will be interested in some home building polls which show the building trend for the next eleven months, according to present market indications.

It has been estimated that some 35 per cent of the houses built in 1936 will be of the colonial type. [This is good news for those who incline to the Cape Cod, the Georgian, the Dutch, or mild modifications of any of these styles]. Next comes the English type with 25 per cent of the building public signing their names on the dotted line for homes in this spirit. [Good news again for those who cherish an abiding fondness for half timber and stone, brick and stucco].

Another 25 per cent of people, it is estimated, will build the typical American cottage, or western type house. The remaining 15 per cent will be divided as follows: 5 per cent for the French Norman, 5 per cent for the Spanish, and 5 per cent for the moderne.

So whatever preference a home builder may have, for a traditional type or a modern one, he can indulge this preference; providing that the site of land he has purchased harmonizes with the proposed style, and his pocketbook permits its realization.

Share Recreation Room.

Both of these apartments have tiled baths and kitchens with tiled walls. The first floor has one more bedroom than the second floor, and also quite a spacious little breakfast nook adjoining the kitchen.

Both apartments have separate, inclosed rear porches, and in the large finished basement which both families will share there is a sizable recreation room, laundry room, heater room, and storage room.

The heating plant is a hot water and the radiators in the home are of the cabinet type.

A new type of window unit has been used in this building. It is neat and practical. All ropes and pulleys are concealed by a removable panel. Since the panel can be lifted there is easy access to the weights without removing the trim.

No Strain on Joints.

There are no holes or grooves in the side walls, and the sash chain or rope is fastened directly to the lower rails of the sashes, thereby supporting the entire weight of the glass and eliminating any strain on the lower joints of the sashes. This proves an economy in the long run, since it is the lower joints which often need first repairs. These units are obtainable with or without weatherstrips and at a cost comparable to the ordinary types of double hung windows.

Speaking of what's new: The increased use of aluminum in home building and remodeling is of interest to all homeowners and prospective builders of homes. A hundred years ago there was not enough metallic aluminum in the world to make a single window frame. Now we see roofs of aluminum and find awnings and Venetian blinds made of this metal. Awnings and blinds of this material reduce fire hazards. They may be painted or left in nature's shades.

New Trend in Color.

Aluminum paint has been used for many years and is valuable not only because of its durability, but also because it reflects light well and rates high in moisture resistance. If it is true as claimed by some that we are about to enter one of the greatest color-using periods in our history, then aluminum will continue to be in vogue, for it can be easily dyed any desired shade and is easy to wash and keep clean.

Besides making such details as screens, weatherstrips, windows, fireplaces, shower and bath partitions, lighting fixtures, and many miscellaneous articles from door hinges and escutcheon plates to house numbers and hand wrought handicraft, we find aluminum also used as insulation. In one form it is crumpled, its foils tucked into the walls of a house for added weather resistance.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N next Wednesday at 2:15 p. m.

YOUTH PROGRAM OF EPISCOPAL CHURCH DRAFTED

Stress Spiritual Side in Activities.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Greater emphasis on the spiritual side of young people's work in the Episcopal church will be the keynote of the program for the coming year, the details of which have just been announced by Leigh H. Hunt, president of the middle west group.

LEIGH H. HUNT.

The plan is an outgrowth of a recent conference of representatives from five states, comprising 13 Episcopal dioceses. Among those on the advisory board are the Rev. John B. Hubbard of St. Mary's Episcopal church, Park Ridge; the Rt. Rev. Campbell Gray, bishop of northern Indiana, and the Very Rev. Victor Hoag of Christ church cathedral, Eau Claire, Wis.

The program as developed in this section of the country is part of a nation-wide campaign of the Episcopal church to interest youth more definitly in the church, and to provide them with an objective which will fit into the interests and activities of young people generally.

"The principal projects scheduled for the season," said Mr. Hunt, "are a special day for corporate communion for young people, specific programs connected with the forward movement now under way throughout the church at large, a provincial conference on young people's work, and greater activity in participating in and taking charge of church services."

Coinciding with the United Church Loyalty campaign, the Rev. C. H. Duvall, pastor of Portage Park Methodist Episcopal church, Irving Park boulevard and North Lawler avenue, will preach this morning on "Christ as a Pioneer." Glenn Moore, president of the Men's club, will address the Epworth league on "The Ministry of Christ," in the third of its series of lenten religious topics, at 7 o'clock, and at the evening service following, the guest speaker will be Dr. A. T. Stephenson, superintendent of the Chicago northern district.

Dr. John L. Elliott of New York City will address the Chicago Ethical society on "The Warfare of Ideals in Germany," this morning at the Studebaker theater.

Lionel Calls Them Bane of Broadcasters.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Lionel Barrymore recently revealed his pet peeve—except that in his case it amounts to a violent aversion. His particular hatred is reserved for the studio audience, which he describes as "the very bane of a broadcaster's existence."

"I don't see any sense in people wanting to peep behind the scenes during a broadcast," he declared. "There is no more point to it than in the public witnessing the rehersals of a play or a motion picture. To me it is like watching a suit being made.

"Admitting visitors to the studio is unfair to the radio audience, the listeners and the actors. It destroys all sense of illusion for the spectators; creates the impression with the unseen audience that it is being cheated by not being 'let in' on everything and it is particularly exasperating to the actor to be spied upon and caught in the act of reading his lines from a script."

[Eddie Cantor, of course swings to the other extreme. He insists on an audience—nowadays even at his dress rehersal when he tests his jokes.]

A Trend Against Audiences?

There seems to be some evidence that there is a trend away from studio audiences. The Lux Radio theater, in which Mr. Barrymore recently appeared, allows no visitors at all.

That tire sponsored series with Nelson Eddy, Margaret Speaks and William Daly's music won't have any one around. That is said to be partly due to the crush the ladies have on Mr. Eddy this winter.

Lawrence Tibbett is another who says that he cannot give his best to his unseen listeners when there is a studio audience.

Why Crosby Bars Audience.

The Bing Crosby variety hour goes on the air from a blind studio, too. And there's an interesting story behind that. Other programs handled by J. Walter Thompson agency—Rudy Vallee, Maj. Bowes, Ozzie Nelson, and Harriet Hilliard—all go for big studios with lots of looker-onners But not Crosby.

Crosby, it seems, gets tired of wearing a wig all day at the movie studios and likes to relax on the day he puts on his radio show. So he appears at the studios sans toupe, sometimes wearing an old cap and turtleneck sweater. And the sponsor doesn't want him to be seen that way and Bing doesn't care particularly to be viewed by several hundred fans in this getup, either—so there just isn't any audience.

Peeves and Perfume.

So far as the letter writers are concerned it seems to be unanimous against studio applause:

I as well as Flora Lowell am sick and disgustetd at all this handclapping over the radio. Little children can be excused for handclapping—patty cake—but when grown-ups menace radio programs they should be led by the ear to a padded cell.
MRS. A. BAKER, Chicago.

APPLAUSE MACHINES?

Do any of the studios have clapping machines? I have heard clapping so rhythmical that I'll swear no human being could produce it. . . . What really gives me a pain is the male singers who end their songs on a note a fifth higher than the composer wrote it. EARL G. ALDEN, Waukegan.

Editor's note—I have not heard of an applause machine, but many a sponsor reherses his audience in handclapping before the show goes on the air.

ANOTHER ONE.

I agree with Flora Lowell as to applause. It gives a bad ending to a good number.
LILLIAN ROSE, Chicago.

Many a Pratt and McNeill admirer has come to their defense. Here are a few excerpts from a flood of letters:

According to your column Pratt and McNeill are looking for boosters. Well, here's my vote. For years I followed the Three Doctors, then the Two Doctors, and now Pratt and McNeill and their brand of humor are a joy to my heart. Bouquets also to Fred Allen and Portland, Al Pearce and gang, Horace Heidt's orchestra, Vic, Sade and Rush, and Lum and Abner.
MARIAN METTEL, Aurora.

FROM SPRINGFIELD.

They asked for it [meaning Pratt and McNeill] and here it is. . . . Thank the powers that be for their Chuckle Chronicle. . . . More power to Dr. Pratt and his new sidekick, McNeill. We really think they are swell. MARIE HELLHAKE, Springfield.

* *

Note what N. E. Roggensack of Waukon, Ia., says about Al Jolson and Eddie Cantor. I will say they are my favorite radio comedians. But as far as those so-called amateurs are concerned I do not approve. Every one knows they are not all amateurs. Two-thirds of them are professionals. Why try and fool the radio public? Wish they would take amateur programs off the air.
AL TINT, Chicago.

FROM PAT FLANAGAN.

Thank you for your writeup in the Sunday Tribune.

Radio listening here with a small set is far from the pleasure wet get out of the loud speaker at home. If we want to hear a Chicago local show we go out and turn on the radio in the car. Sometimes we get a shot at a chain show on the small radio, but outside of that all we get is a jabbering noise that turns out to be a Mexican station. Every one down there must be born with a guitar in his lap. The trouble is that none of them have ever spent very much time trying to learn how to play it.

It's fun to listen to the Breakfast Club and hear some local announcer break in every 15 minutes and tell how good Ozwald's sausage is for fallen arches. Even in the middle of a symphony concert some fellow is liable to say, "AND NOW you will hear the Jones Washing company's Hill Billies in a 15 minute variety program," after which the hill billies come on with about as much variety as a load of sand and yodel their heads off—singing songs of the plains. Radio down here seems to be purely for entertainment, and it is a laugh!

Two double piano selections, featuring Maestro Harold Stokes and Leon Benditzky, will be presented on the Mardi Gras of Melody program at 9:30 Wednesday in studio 1. The team will play "Miss Simplicity" and "Gayety." The former selection was written by Harry Sosnik, popular young Chicago dance orchestra leader and composer. Bob Hanon will be the vocal soloist on this program, which also features Dudley Crafts Watson.

Charles P. Hughes, producer of the popular W-G-N Behind the Camera Lines program, heard every Friday evening at 9 o'clock, has prepared a gripping drama of the world war for this week. The program is entitled "The Hills Beyond" and stars June Meredith and Glenn Hunter.

The questions and problems he answers in dramatized fashion over the air are thoroughly studied by him beforehand. Dr. Crane is assisted by S. L. Huntley.

FRIDAY THE 13TH COMING

Vic and Sade and Rush (top to bottom) don't seem to be much worried about such superstitions as opening umbrellas indoors, walking under a ladder and such as Friday, the 13th, jinx day, nears. In real life they are Art Van Harvey, Bernardine Flynn, and Billy Idelson.

While on the stage in New York, Miss Byron was heard on the air with Rudy Vallee, Al Jolson, and Joe Penner, and on the Show Boat, True Story, Roses and Drums, March of Time, and Walter O'Keefe programs. In her "spare" time she made a couple of movie shorts for Warner Brothers. Now she devotes herself exclusively to being "Molly of the Movies."

FROM FRED ALLEN

Dear Larry: With the quintuplets now thriving it looks like Canada is doing a lot better under the stork than we did under the Blue Eagle. . . . Miami vacationist amazes crowds by swimming in shark-infested waters. Why should he be afraid? He was a gigolo and the sharks were man-eaters. . . . Then there was the "Town Hall Tonight" actor who was so near-sighted he couldn't read a script unless it was behind him. . . . Most dial-twisters are beginning to say the music can go 'round and 'round but it can't come out here. . . . It is so cold this winter farmers are dressing their scarecrows in ski suits. Portland says: "Why couldn't the man who pokes red pimentoes in olives get a job stuffing shirts for communist politicians?" Cordially, FRED ALLEN.

TOSCANINI WILL OFFER 2 WORKS OF BEETHOVEN

Postpone Verdi's Requiem Because of Illness.

Arturo Toscanini will direct the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra in performances of Beethoven's Eighth and Ninth Symphonies over the nation-wide WBBM-Columbia network from 3 to 5 p. m. today. This program will replace the presentation of Verdi's "Manzoni" Requiem previously announced for this period. The change is necessitated because of the continued indisposition of Dusolina Giannini.

Rosa Tentoni, young American singer from Buhl, Minn., who was chosen by Toscanini two years ago for the Ninth Symphony, will again be the soprano soloist for Beethoven's crowning work. The remainder of the quartet consists of the artists previously announced for the Verdi Requiem: Rose Bampton, contralto; Charles Kullmann, tenor, and Ezio Pinza, baritone. The chorus will be that of the Schola Cantorum of New York, Hugh Ross, conductor.

This concert, broadcast over WMAQ-NBC from 10 to 11 p. m., also marks the return of Erno Rapee as conductor of the orchestra.

The popular young tenor will be heard in three operatic arias—"M'Appari" from Flotow's "Martha," "Vesti La Giubba" from "Pagliacci," and "Che Gelida Manina" from Puccini's "La Boheme." The latter and Cowen's "Border Ballad" will be sung by Kullmann in the second half of the program, the "Martha" and "Pagliacci" arias being programed after the orchestral prelude to "The Deluge" by Saint-Saëns which leads the list.

NEW NIGHT SKY PROGRAMS TO START TUESDAY

Dr. Oliver Justin Lee of the Dearborn observatory, Northwestern university, and Dr. Forrest Ray Moulton, formerly of the University of Chicago, will be heard in a series of talks on "Night Skies and Beyond" and "The Origin of the Solar System," over W-G-N beginning Tuesday March 11 at 10 p. m. The talks will be heard each Tuesday night through April.

Dr. F. W. Kerr Will Be Sunday Evening Speaker

Dr. F. W. Kerr, widely known Canadian savant and rector of St. Andrew's Church of Montreal, will be the guest speaker on the Chicago Sunday Evening club service tonight, and broadcast by W-G-N at 8:30. Dr. Kerr's subject will be "Right Thinking and Its Transforming Power."

"Your Lover" to Return to W-G-N Tomorrow Noon

Do as your dentist does—

when he cleans your teeth

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

Mothers:—Here's How Ovaltine Helps A Child To Build Up

Often Increasing Weight At A Surprisingly Rapid Rate

OVALTINE is a delicious pure food concentrate, approved by more than 20,000 physicians. It is highly valued because of the noticeable increases in weight, as well as appetite and nerve poise, which are so frequently reported when Ovaltine is added to a child's daily diet.

For example, Mrs. Mae Buzzard of Willard, Ohio, writes:—"My son, 9 years of age, was terribly thin, always cross, and didn't eat enough to keep a bird alive. Now, since he has been taking Ovaltine, he has gained 5 pounds in 6 weeks—and he has a healthy schoolboy's appetite—even likes spinach and carrots. In addition, his school grades have improved 75% ... We can't praise Ovaltine enough as it has done so much in such a short time."

Another mother, Mrs. M. Brady, 359 Columbia Blvd., Wood-Ridge, N. J., writes:—"I want to tell you how my little girl gained weight. When she was sent home from school saying she was underweight about 10 lbs., I thought I would try her on Ovaltine. So I did, and in exactly 1 month she gained 6 lbs. (I have the school card to prove it.) I wish all mothers who know their children are underweight would try it and see the marvelous work Ovaltine does."

These are only two of thousands of letters regularly received from great numbers of delighted mothers who have commenced giving Ovaltine regularly for the health benefits it fosters. Naturally, we do not claim or guarantee that similar results will occur in every case where Ovaltine is used. But these letters are so typical that we believe a thorough trial of Ovaltine is justified by every intelligent mother in similar cases.

In addition to the benefits Ovaltine offers the growing child, thousands of nervous people, men and women, use it to restore vitality when fatigued. It is also highly recommended as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents, and the aged—and for sleeplessness when taken as a hot drink just before getting into bed.

OH MOTHER... I'M SO HAPPY! BILL ASKED ME TO MARRY HIM!
I'VE BEEN EXPECTING IT, DARLING! YOU'VE BEEN THE SWEETEST GIRL IN THE WORLD—SINCE YOU SWITCHED TO POSTUM!
TAKE A TIP FROM ME.... IF YOU'VE GOT COFFEE-NERVES... SWITCH TO POSTUM!!
Of course, you know that children should never drink coffee. But do you realize that the caffein in coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too?
If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly . . . caffein may be to blame.
Isn't it worthwhile to try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove a real help. A product of General Foods.
FREE—Let us send you your first week's supply of Postum free! Simply mail the coupon.

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES KEEP YOU FROM LOOKING YOUR BEST

JUST when good looks make such a difference in good times—from about 13 to 25 years of age, or even longer—many young people become afflicted with ugly pimples.

During this time, after the beginning of adolescence, important glands develop and final growth takes place. This causes disturbances throughout the entire body. The skin, especially, becomes oversensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin, causing unsightly pimples to break out.

Fleischmann's fresh Yeast helps to give you back a good complexion by clearing these skin irritants out of the blood. Then—pimples go!

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast regularly—3 cakes a day, before meals, plain, or dissolved in a little water—until your skin is entirely clear. Start today!

AN OPPORTUNITY for Out of Town Salesmen.
WHO WE ARE:
A nationally known Chicago Corp., well rated, established 31 years. Business: Specialized advertising and sales promotion for Dairies, Laundries, Dry Cleaners, Bakeries, Ice Companies, and all other route selling organizations. Among our accounts, General Baking Co., Borden's Dairy, Carnation Co., National Dairy, and hundreds of other well known companies throughout the U. S. and Canada. A liberal commission, with fully protected territory. A substantial group of our men are consistently earning $1,000 a month and over. The years 1934 and 1935 have been the most successful ones in our history.
WHAT WE WANT:
Four above average salesmen with wide experience in the sale of advertising, sales promotion, or equipment that is sold on the idea of the profits it will return to the purchaser on his investment. In other words, men who can sell and have sold ideas are preferred to those who sell staples. The man must be between 30 and 45 years of age. They should have an automobile, be above average in intelligence, have selling ability and imagination. They must be looking for a permanent connection, not a short time, high pressure deal. A thorough field training is given.
Territories are Western Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Tennessee, and Connecticut and Rhode Island.
If you are interested and can meet our requirement, reply at once, giving age, past experience, previous earnings, territorial preference, and phone number. An interview will then be arranged.
ADDRESS X F 397, TRIBUNE.

WHAT DO YOU WANT IN LIFE AND where are you going? Take stock today. Are you tired of being under some one's thumb? Are you sick unto death of traveling? Are you raring to run your own business and to show the world what you can do? Have you really got the nerve to go it alone? If the answer is yes, then we've got the business for you. Our organization is over 50 years old. Six of our salesmen have been with us over twenty-five years, all making a substantial living. Ten more are twenty year men. Space prevents telling the whole story. What we are looking for today are just two good men who are willing to pay the price to be independent. It's a tough job and it requires plenty of nerve, but the commission returns and the satisfaction of owning your business without risking capital is worth the effort. If interested, write or call Mr. Holliday for appointment. Franklin 7300.

TO RENT—HOUSES.

Suburban—North.

ON THE LAKE SHORE IN EVANSTON.

It's rather nice to live in a house built high on a walled-in terrace, where every room is flooded with sunlight and where the views to the north and south are over lawns and into woods, and to the east out over the colorful waters of Lake Michigan. A beautiful secluded spot where you never feel lonesome or isolated, for it is right in the midst of Evanston, and only 25 minutes by motor or train from Chicago's business district. A real retreat for a busy business man who cannot afford to spend much time commuting. 12 rooms, large living quarters, and everything that goes to make up a marvelous home. $250 monthly. You may not believe it, but a pair of cardinal birds nest in the shrubbery and stay the year round. They like it.

BY BOB BECKER.

Although there are no hens in Chicagoland that can lay golden eggs, one can find not far from the loop plenty of cackling barnyard fowls that can bring in enough money to give a cash register considerable action. Chicagoans like their broiled chickens, their fresh eggs and that old combination of ham and eggs, so looking behind the scenes at these farm products in Chicago one finds another angle on how owners of small tracts of land can make them yield an income.

Here in Chicagoland some of these landowners who have invested in acreage have specialized on chickens, turkeys, ducks, and other fowl and are marketing their output in the metropolitan areas. These landowners did not have to invest in big farms with many buildings on them. On the contrary, they joined the "little farm" class.

Neither do they cultivate their acreage to any considerable extent. Taking small tracts of land, these poultrymen devote their time to their flocks and their equipment with but one idea—that of producing as many marketable chickens and eggs as possible.

16 Acres Will Do It.

A tract of land not larger than 16 acres can be made to produce chickens at a profit, according to V. E. Norris, of Arlington Heights, one of the poultrymen in Chicagoland.

In outlining some of the operations and the general setup of the poultry business Mr. Norris said: "The ordinary farmer who raises chickens as a sideline usually requires 11 or 12 weeks to raise a chick to the broiler stage, but with a three weeks brooding stage, with modern heating, lighting, ventilation, feeding, and sanitation, I can 'beat them to the draw' by a week or so.

"Naturally chickens require a lot of attention," he continued. "During the last winter, with the temperature between zero and 20 below zero, I had about 400 chicks getting started here. Needless to say I didn't get very much sleep, but all the chicks came through in fine shape."

Plans More Improvements.

Norris will specialize in the sale of broilers to the Chicago market. He will build two modern brooder houses and plans to build two more. He will build a laying house to accommodate 600 Plymouth Rock hens. This poultryman is figuring his main sources of income the sale of broilers and sale of eggs, the latter being the less important of the two. "I expect to sell more than 6,000 broilers on the Chicago market this year," he said. "I figure that the cost of production is between 25 and 30 cents per chick, and a 2¼ pound broiler sells on the wholesale market for about 60 cents. The eggs I have to sell I shall sell to individual customers in Chicago."

Until he gets his breeding flock built up, Norris is buying baby chicks from commercial hatcheries, culling closely to separate cockerels from pullets, then raises the cockerels and some of the pullets to the broiler stage. As stated before, it usually takes him about 10 weeks to raise a chick to the stage at which he sells them, which is roughly between 1¾ and 2¼ pounds.

Expert Advice Available.

Men who want to get started in enterprises on comparatively small tracts of land and have not much experience can secure expert advice from the various agricultural agencies which are operated for their benefit. This is true not only for the poultry business, but for many other farm activities.

Poultrymen, for example, can get literature from the United States department of agriculture, as well as from extension bureaus of the colleges and universities of the middle west. They can even attend schools for poultrymen in Chicago and other cities.

When they are baffled by some problem relating to their work they can write to one of several agencies for help, and always find them willing to counsel on a problem. Norris, for example, has built his brooder houses according to specifications sent to him by one of the universities, and the feed which he uses for his chicks contains ingredients prescribed by the department of agriculture.

NOW
A Low Cost Auto Financing Plan

Why make a good deal on a car, new or used, only to be penalized by high financing charges?

We have broken down the barriers of tradition and have ushered in a new era of sensible rates for cars bought on time payments. These new rates apply on used car sales, new car sales, or a loan on your present car.

No mystery charges, no extra fees. You simply make a reasonable down payment when you buy, and we finance the balance. Here are typical examples of the low cost under our plan:

Balance to be financed.	Total yearly charge.	Total amount of note.	12 monthly deposits.
$100	$12.08	$112.08	$ 9.34
$300	23.04	323.04	26.92
$400	29.00	429.00	35.75
$500	35.08	535.08	44.59

Only Fire and Theft Insurance Required.
Buy It Through Your Own Broker and Include the Premium in the Loan.

HOW DO THEY BORROW?

MANY PEOPLE BORROW ON THEIR AUTOMOBILES. MORE OF THEM PUT UP STOCKS AND BONDS. BUT MOST PEOPLE BORROW SIMPLY ON CHARACTER—THAT IS, THEIR OWN SIGNATURE PLUS THE SIGNATURES OF TWO FRIENDS. WHEN THE BORROWER RECEIVES HIS MONEY A BANK ACCOUNT IS OPENED IN THIS BANK. HE DEPOSITS A FIXED SUM EACH MONTH, SO THE MONEY IS ON HAND TO PAY OFF THE LOAN WHEN IT COMES DUE. THIS PLAN TURNS BORROWERS INTO SAVERS. HELPS PEOPLE TO GET AHEAD IN THE WORLD. THAT IS ONE REASON WHY THOUSANDS OF CHICAGOANS ENDORSE AND RECOMMEND THE LENDING POLICY OF THIS UNUSUAL BANK.

WHY DO THEY BORROW?

FOR EVERY GOOD REASON UNDER THE SUN.

HERE ARE JUST A FEW OF THEM:

To pay taxes	To pay tuition
To improve home	To pay union dues
To move family	To furnish home
To group debts	To pay church
To pay doctor bills	To buy trousseau
To assist parents	To buy clothes
To pay for insurance	To assist relatives
To buy a home	To modernize store
To buy a horse	To install plumbing
To pay undertaker	To buy out partner
To buy rooming house	To buy securities
To pay off mortgage	To repair automobile
To discount bills	To paint house
To pay attorneys	To visit relatives

HOW MUCH DO THEY BORROW?

ANY AMOUNT REQUIRED: $50.00, $250.00 $500.00, $1,000.00, $5,000.00 OR MORE

WHAT DOES IT COST TO BORROW?

Chicago Sunday Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER
MARCH 8, 1936.

These pretty little misses in sunbonnets are Ruth and Mary, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. George Lee of Astor street. The children wore these summery costumes to a recent hard times party given at Bournique's, where they are learning dancing and good manners along with many other very young ladies.

Mrs. Henry Neil (at right) will be among a large group of suburban young marrieds who will be driving in to town on the night of April 25 to attend a benefit party to be held at the Drake hotel by the Oak Park and River Forest junior group and junior auxiliary of the Infant Welfare society.

Mrs. Lee Shedd (at left) is a young Evanston matron who is an active worker for the north shore auxiliary of the Chicago Maternity center. She was chairman of the committee in charge of a Valentine benefit at the Casino club.

Every Kitchen Library Needs Systematizing

By Mary Meade.

HOW'S your kitchen library these days? As complete and orderly and usable as you'd like to have it? If so, our congratulations! And if not, how about an energetic checkup?

The number and kinds of cookbooks, along with odds and ends of auxiliary material, which your library boasts, depends on your personal choice and needs, naturally. We can't offer more than a few general suggestions, to be adapted or not, as you see fit. But perhaps our ideas will help in revising, rearranging, and adding to your present collection.

Good Standard Cookbook Is Necessity in Every Kitchen.

Whether you're an old hand at the cooking business or an excited beginner, we needn't remind you that a good, standard, inclusive cookbook is a "must have." Many kitchen libraries begin and end right there, because an ingenious cook, given good standard recipes, can add frills and fixin's of her own to turn out hundreds of distinctive and unusual dishes. Even without any inspired variations, however, the most experienced in the lot of us need dependable patterns to follow and a handy reference to correct baking and frying temperatures and the like.

Second on the list of standard "musts" is a dependable marketing guide. If years of food marketing have instilled in you the necessary information on how to pick the best, and how many servings to a pound of dried apricots, this may not be so important. For most of us, however, the hows of canny buying are learned in less costly fashion than experience teaches if we have our information parceled out in printed form.

Now the fun begins! With these two standards as a stem, our kitchen libraries blossom with all sorts of delightful aids to the art of creative cooking.

Perhaps not most important, but with the most strictly personal interest, is a collection of our friends' best recipes. Gathered in a sturdy notebook or file for quick reference and neat appearance [hit-and-miss scraps and jottings get lost and torn] these recipes—"Bess Campbell's Favorite Devil's Food," "Aunt Mary's Chicken Pot Pie," and the like—become a part of our cookery lore too precious to be skipped.

Personalized Volumes Contain Great Deal of Special Interest.

Sometimes these neighborly contributions are gathered together in printed form. Such a collection is the "Culinary Capers" of the Evanston Junior auxiliary of the Chicago Infant Welfare society. The second edition of this book is just appearing, full of the pet recipes of a great many well known Evanston hostesses.

Another such highly personalized volume is Mrs. Robert J. Dunham's "Palatable Patter." Although her name probably is more frequently mentioned in society news than among home economists, her interesting collection of recipes, sold for hospital benefit, typifies the charming aids we all find in these "personal collection" cookbooks.

A voluminous scrapbook, neatly indexed, is another something without which most of us couldn't keep house. For newspaper and magazine clippings, for an especially good recipe off the dairy's milk card, it's invaluable for keeping together hundreds of interesting suggestions that otherwise would be lost in the shuffle.

From the flood of commercial pamphlets and booklets, you probably have gathered together an unsightly stack of unmatched material. Corners become dogeared, the booklet you want always is at the bottom of the pile, and the whole affair usually is a hopeless mess. A big looseleaf scrapbook simplifies the matter here. Each booklet may be punched and arranged in indexed order in the big book, ready for hurried consultation when you need it.

Booklets Should Be Filed in Handy Loose-Leaf Volume.

The same goes for those of our booklets which we hope you cherish. Only by keeping them in orderly arrangement can you really take advantage of the cookery aids and suggestions we've tried so hard to make available.

Foreign cookbooks come in a class by themselves. Your choice here is so decidedly personal that we can't offer any general suggestions, except this: If you're looking for all the fun there is in cooking and want to establish a real reputation for yourself as a cook, you probably are intent on capturing other secrets than those American. Maybe your ancestry, or maybe just your particular food leanings, determine into what foreign magic you'll dip. If that doesn't decide the matter, it's fun to have a good big collection of recipes from the world around and go globe trotting as you cook.

Miss Meade contributes daily to the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune, guiding housewives to the best knowledge of cookery, hostessing, and budgeting.

INDIVIDUALITY FOR THE ALTAR PARADE

Bride of 1936 Must Dress to Type, Says Paris

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Bridal styles, like all the others of spring 1936, make a play for personality. The wedding march keeps time to a varied bouquet of wedding dresses worn by the smartest brides of the season. There is the tailored bride who goes to the altar in a shirtwaist frock of gleaming satin, complete with all the bride's trimmings of veil and flowers. The romantic bride, dressed like a picture out of a costume book, with ruff and moyen age sleeves, is a striking 1936 figure.

The classic bride, taking her cue from the last English royal wedding, says "I do" in white satin and orange blossoms and clouds of lace. The ultramodern bride wears a clipped veil and a streamline frock, and odd flowers are held in her hands. The symbolic bride stands up in a demure, virginal frock of chiffon with crossed fichu and vestal veil, perhaps the most beautiful in the world. All of these brides are completely and utterly "a la page" today. The girl who is looking ahead to an Easter or other spring wedding may follow her type and the circumstances of her wedding with all this leeway.

The smartest materials for the wedding dress this spring are satin, first, then soft silk crêpe, then taffeta, and finally white chiffon or lace. The classic and romantic bridal frocks are made of satin, and the tailored dress is made of satin or silk crêpe.

Where the wedding is a brilliant social event, the bride wears a long train, and even for quiet weddings, 1936 brides prefer at least a suggestion of a train. Long sleeves, some fitted, some exceedingly large, are the rule at this season's weddings. Veils that the most beautifully gowned brides have chosen have been tulle, lace, chiffon, and lace and chiffon combined.

Jewels Are Worn Sparingly.

Most brides wear no jewels at all, with the exception, on occasion, of a pearl necklace or jeweled headdress to hold the veil. Flower headdresses are chosen by more brides than are those made of jewels. If the wedding is quiet a simple veil is enough.

Satin slippers, usually pumps, are worn with white satin wedding gowns, and crêpe slippers with crêpe. White kid slippers with white soles are new and exquisite for the tailored bride. Pale beige hose are universally worn by the fashionable brides of the season. Gloves for the bride of 1936 are not necessary.

The bridal bouquet has become a matter of personal choice. Some of the smartest brides have carried no bouquet, though most brides cling to this beautiful accessory to the marriage. Orange blossoms are still the choice of most brides. Lilies, either lilies of the valley or a few stalks of Madonna lilies, are chic for the bride to carry. One bride of this season had a bouquet of white irises, and white irises were scattered over the skirt of her satin wedding dress. White violets and a bouquet of white daisies with white anemones have been the choice of two brides in the world of society.

Enormous Sleeves Flare Like Balloons.

No. 1 pictures a striking bridal dress and veil. The dress is made of white triple chiffon with a demure crossed bodice of plaited chiffon, and the entire back of the slim, trailing skirt is also plaited. Enormous sleeves flare like balloons and narrow to fit the wrists. A white chiffon veil is folded close around the head and flares into a floating circle at the back, trailing to the hem of the skirt. Stalks of Madonna lilies are carried as a bouquet.

No. 2 is a Paquin bride's dress made of white crêpe romaine, with a collarette of ropes of silver lamé set together with big pearls. The cap that holds the veil is made of the same lamé and pearls, and the veil is chiffon with sinets of fine white lace.

Worth Makes Tailored Wedding Gown of Satin.

No. 4 shows the tailored wedding gown in all its simplicity and beauty. Worth designed this model, with its simple blouse and long tight sleeves, its wide, set-in satin belt, and its skirt that flares with circular movement and trails slightly at the back. The blouse and girdle are fastened with ornaments made of orange blossoms. A tulle cap makes a halo around the head. It is finished by a wreath of orange blossoms. The tulle veil falls from the cap at the back.

Paris Pattern Provides Two Distinctive Frocks

No. 5127—The Paris pattern for this two-in-one frock is available in sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—This one Paris pattern, No. 5127, creates two distinctly different frocks, each of which is rich in French chic for spring. The version marked "A" in the sketch is illustrated by the large figure and the ones at the lower left. This edition of the smart seasonal frock displays fashionable "gay nineties" influence in the sleeves and a peplum effect at the waistline. It is especially smart created in wool or practical silks, in any shade you prefer. The belt, buttons, and tiny collar are attractive in one color to harmonize with that of the frock. Bright colors on dark fabrics appear to excellent advantage.

The second version has no peplum, and has flared, short sleeves. There are no buttons. Embellishment is obtained by the use of gay printed fabric trimming the bodice and continuing into a charming sash which winds around the waist and ends in a bow. If this dress is made of dark material the bright print dresses it up. If you would like this second version to be a sports dress choose sports fabric and color, and have the details in dotted or checked print.

THE KITCHEN FORUM

Mrs. H. J. P., Battle Creek, Mich.: "Do you have a recipe for fig pie? My husband says one used to get such delicious ones at Hanover, N. H., when he went there to school."

This may not be the fig pie of New Hampshire origin, but we can vouch for the fact that it's delicious.

FIG PIE.

½ pound dried figs
3 cups cold water
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
3 tablespoons lemon juice
Grated rind 1 lemon
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup pecan or other nut meats

Wash and chop figs. Combine with water, sugar, salt, and cinnamon, and simmer slowly until thick as jam. Add the other ingredients and pour into a baked pie shell.

Mrs. C. A. B., Chicago: "The cream puffs I bake are nice and puffed, but the interiors usually have some of the soft dough that I have to scrape out. Otherwise the puffs are delicious. What must I do to avoid this?"

Since you have no trouble in getting the cream puffs to "puff," your trouble with moist, doughy centers probably is due to one of these two causes: Perhaps you didn't beat the batter while adding the eggs until there were no suggestions of lumpy spots, or, perhaps, the cream puffs weren't sufficiently baked. The thorough beating is necessary for good expansion. Likewise, incomplete baking causes collapse or just plain doughiness. Cream puffs should be baked at 450 degrees F. until they are firm to the touch, which will take about 35 minutes. Then turn off the oven heat, leave the door slightly ajar, and let the puffs dry for 15 minutes longer, just to be on the safe side.

Three Stitches Combined in Gay Hand Knit Sweater

By Jean Macdonald.

YOKES have become such a fashionable feature of hand knits that it is difficult to pass a knitted garment without glancing at the shoulders and neck line for that touch of individuality before any notice is taken of the pattern of the model.

The blouse illustrated today is knitted of fine French zephyr with a deep band of purling to the waistline, a popcorn stitch throughout the body, and the final touch of chic is in the yoke done of moss stitch. Needles number three and five are used. Three for the purling and yoke and five for the body pattern, and we all know a lacy pattern on a five needle works up like a house afire. The bishop sleeves are most becoming in a sweater knitted with zephyr yarn because they may be full without being clumsy. For summer a blouse of pastel linen or cotton would make the ideal street ensemble with a skirt to match.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instruction for knitting the one-piece long sleeved blouse knitted in the popcorn stitch and moss stitch illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter. Be sure to include the following measurements:

Crochet Blouse Charming Companion for Spring Suit

By Ellen Bruce.

EVERY one with an ounce of style consciousness will be wearing a suit this spring. These same "every ones" will be giving much thought to the necessary accoutrements of a small tailleur. And the blouse is not the least important of these smart trappings. A simple model like the one illustrated today is ideal for one of the several changes all suits demand. The stitches for the blouse consist of a double crochet stitch and a couple of chain stitches, which, when combined, create a good looking mesh blouse, with the chain stitch doubling in brass and used for the contrasting stripes on the yoke and body of the blouse. A belt of the yarn may be made or a belt of the suit material may be used interchangeably. Blouses of this type may be laundered quite as simply and easily as the fabric ones and perhaps require less time but always as much attention.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instruction for crocheting the mesh blouse with contrasting stripes illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Miss Mary Alden Taber, who is to be married on March 28 to Emil W. Neukranz of London, Ont., is wearing here a lovely gown of dark green taffeta that is a copy of an old Viennese gown. It will be worn by her sister, Mrs. Lawrence Y. Crump (Starr Taber), on the 28th, when Mrs. Crump attends her sister as matron of honor. The portrait hanging on the wall behind Miss Taber is of her great-great-grandmother, Elizabeth Starr. Miss Taber and Mrs. Crump are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Taber of East Chestnut street. Mr. Neukranz and his bride will live in London. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By Eleanor Nangle

Cream Rouge in Delicate Rose Shade Flatters Any Type of Skin Coloring.

ONE of the new things under the cosmetic sun is a cream rouge in a delicate rose shade that is so palely pink that it stands way out in the rouge crowd. It's a boon to the woman who would shun the roughed look, whether she be blonde or brunette.

In the jar [and that, by the way, is a packaging feat that deserves most honorable mention] it has a salmon cast, but on the skin it's just about impossible to glimpse the orange tinge. When you apply it deftly you are, to all appearances, just a child of nature, with the glow of health and clean living and prettiness in your cheeks.

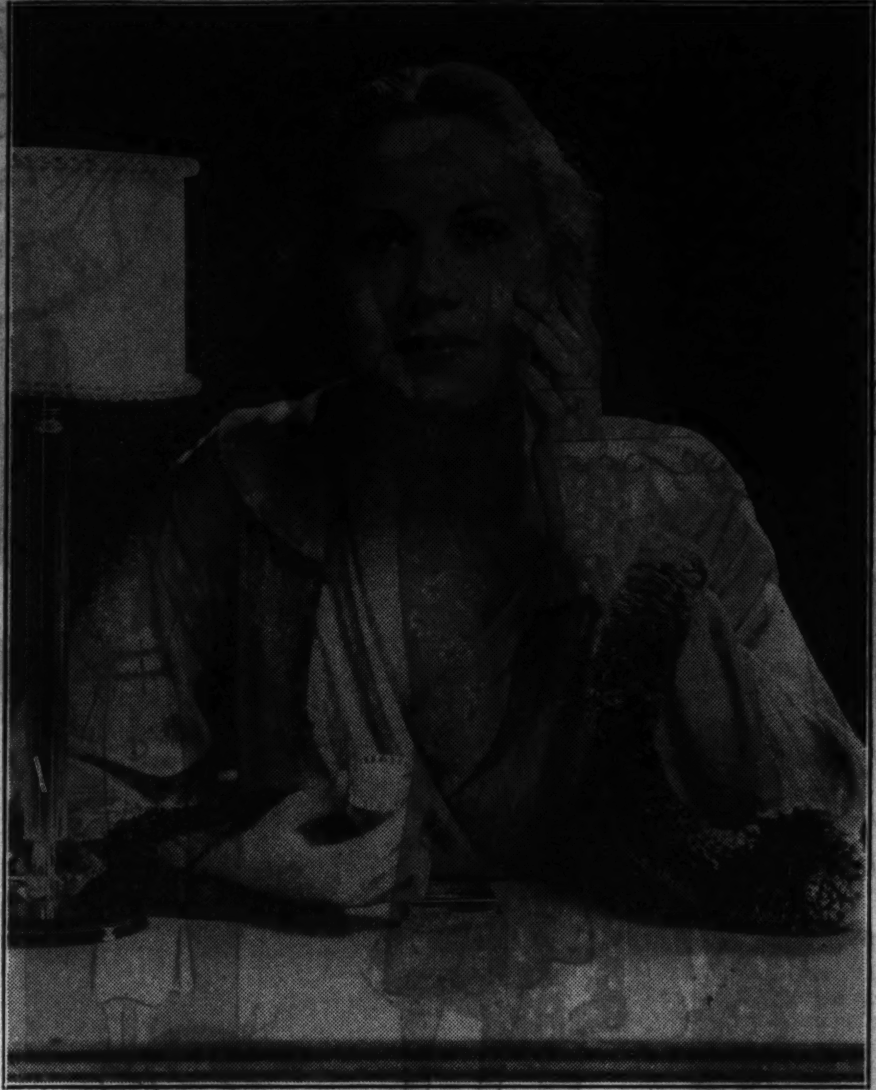
Rouge Is Attractive on Skin of Any Coloring.

Its makers contend that this rouge is one of those magic blends that show no favoritism to those of any coloring. The olive skinned, provided they want the merest suggestion of soft rose in their cheeks, can wear it as well as the pink and white sisterhood with fair hair. And this does seem to be the case.

We found, too, that it is grand for the woman with fair skin and snow white hair. The faintest breath of a pink such as this in her cheeks seems to brighten eyes, heighten the silvery effect of hair, and give the face an aura of youth.

Texture of Rouge Makes Application Simple.

The texture of this rouge, creamy without a trace of graininess, makes deft application quite simple. It may be blended in quickly and easily, and the only flat rule is that you will, of course, use it sparingly. The mere fact that it is your shade, that its delicate pinkness is what you need, is a warning against over-rouging, even with this.



A new cream rouge is in the most delicate rose shade, a boon to the woman of any coloring who dislikes the rouged appearance. This paste tint applies easily. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

The container is a beauty, a jar of fluted cut crystal that sparkles at you from your dressing table. The rouge is not inexpensive, we're sorry to say, but it's so much like a breath of spring that perhaps you won't mind too much.

Everyone Is Raving About This Thrilling New Shampoo!

RIGHT—Shampooed the old-style way
LEFT—Shampooed this amazing new way

Any Color Hair Shines Like Silk!

It's hard to believe—but true! This new Drene transforms the appearance of hair in one single application. Look at Evalyn Knapp, lovely and popular screen star, shown above—one Drene shampoo will make the magical difference you see. As Miss Knapp herself says: "I am so thrilled about Drene! It adds a silky lustre and shimmer to the hair!" So try Drene soon. Get ready for compliments then, too, for men can't resist a shining head of hair.

Just how this unusual shampoo works these miracles is a new scientific secret. It isn't oil, it isn't soap—it isn't anything you've heard of before. Scientists have brought us something brand-new; a shampoo so different they've patented the process by which it is made. You simply wet your hair, shake on a few drops and instantly get a glorious, billowy lather in any kind of water—5 times more than soap in the hardest water. Rub it briskly into the hair, rinse once—and you're through.

"What?" you say, "No second rinses, no vinegar or special after rinses?"

No—not one extra rinse! That's the marvelous part. This new shampoo, being neither oil nor soap, can't make that gummy, unrinsable film ordinary shampoos leave to cover up natural lustre. So your hair comes out radiant and glamorous, silky and smooth! No more like your former "mousey-looking" head than a diamond is like glass. Best of all, any loose dandruff disappears, leaving your scalp clean and alive.

Procter & Gamble make this marvel and you can buy it in various size bottles at all drug, department and ten cent stores. Remember—the name is Drene. And if you want your hair to look more beautiful, more alluring than ever before, you'd better try some right away!

Another thing—Drene gives bleached or dyed hair a wonderfully soft, undetectably natural look. And you'll be glad to find it's the most economical shampoo you ever used, too—only a few drops give a rich shampoo, so it goes a lot farther.

By Clotilde.

THERE is no smarter triumvirate in the fashion world than that which unites a gay spring print, simple lines, and gracefulness of design. Such a blend is this model, pattern No. 2719. If you are a junior, if you have a young daughter, or if you wear size 11 to 17, no matter what your age, you will agree that this frock is one for which you have been yerning.

There are at least four genuinely lovely features of this simple frock—the neckline, the waistline, the sleeves, and the hemline. The shoulder line presents a gracefully draped collar. The sleeves, which are raglan at the shoulder, develop into chic fullness at the wrist. The waistline is enhanced by novel belt treatment. The hemline is accented by a pert plait at the center front, breaking the straight lines of the skirt to give width for walking.

This dress is cut in one from the shoulder to the hem, hence there are no bothersome waistline seams to be joined. The sleeves likewise are cut in one with the shoulders, eliminating the customary detail of setting sections into armholes.

Fashioned of silk print, this dress will be perfect for the blustery days of late March and early April, and is colorful for the days when balmy breezes allow one to sally forth without a coat.

Should you not prefer prints at the moment, this distinctive pattern is flattering made up in monotone silk crêpes in bright or dark shades. If you are partial to sheer woolens this design also is suitable for such fabrics, as well as for sheer cotton prints when summer rolls around.

Style No. 2719 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, and 17 years. Size 15 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

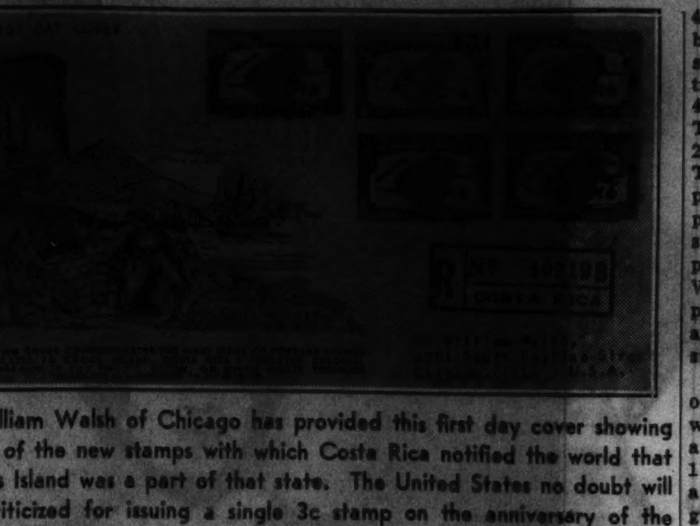
THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen



William Walsh of Chicago has provided this first day cover showing some of the new stamps with which Costa Rica notified the world that Cocos Island was a part of that state. The United States no doubt will be criticized for issuing a single 3c stamp on the anniversary of the annexation of Texas, while here is an issue of eight stamps, from 4 centavos to 5 colons, with a face value of 8.62 colons, to call attention to a speck in the Pacific ocean.

Booklet "C" of the series of guide books for beginners, written by Mr. Cabeen, is ready for distribution. This explains cover collecting in detail, with a description of albums, etc., and contains a complete dictionary explaining the terms used by cover collectors. It is priced at 5c by mail, or 3c at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower, Chicago.

THE Washington bicentennial issue of stamps was designed in connection with a nation-wide celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. By an act of congress approved Dec. 2, 1924, a commission was created to arrange a program for the entire year of 1932, and about the same time preliminary sketches for a stamp issue were made at the bureau of engraving and printing. In 1930, the commission made a formal request at the postoffice department for an issue of commemorative stamps.

At one time large stamps with pictorial subjects were considered, but when it was decided to make the stamps in the regular size and shape, more suitable portraits were selected. Considerable time and energy was spent in selecting 12 portraits from the available list, and it was not until Oct. 1, 1931, that the postoffice department announced the stamps, and requested postmasters to send requisitions not later than Nov. 15 for it was desired to have the stamps ready in every postoffice in the country for an initial sale on Jan. 2, 1932.

Special notices were sent out, requesting that none of the stamps be sold before that date, but as in similar cases, the notices were ignored, and stamps began to appear as early as the third week in November and in considerable numbers during the last week of December.

While all of the designs are different, each bears an inscription reading—"1732—Washington—1932," but there is no special reference to the bicentennial year. All of the stamps were printed from 400 subject plates curved to fit the rotary presses, and arranged to eliminate all straight edges. The regular unwatermarked paper was used and the perforations gauge 11 by 10½. The first day sale was made at Washington, D. C., at both the postoffice and at the Philatelic agency.

The details for each value follow: ½c, olive brown, Washington at 25 years, from a miniature by Charles Willson Peale, 87,978,600 stamps from 6 plates; 1c, green, from the bust by Houdon, 1,265,555,100 stamps from 28 plates; 1½c, brown, Washington in 1772, by Peale, 304,026,800 stamps from 8 plates; 2c, carmine, portrait by Stuart, 4,222,207,900 stamps from 60 plates; 3c, violet, portrait by Peale, 451,260,900 stamps from 12 plates; 4c, brown, portrait by Peale, 151,206,800 stamps from 4 plates; 5c blue, portrait by Peale, 170,578,900 stamps from 4 plates; 6c, orange, portrait by Trumbull, 111,739,400 stamps from 2 plates; 7c, black, portrait by Trumbull, 83,257,400 stamps from 4 plates; 8c, olive green, from a crayon portrait by St. Memin, 96,506,100 stamps from 2 plates; 9c, salmon pink, from a pastel portrait by W. Williams, 75,709,200 stamps from 2 plates, and 10c, orange-yellow, from a portrait by Stuart, 147,216,000 stamps from 4 plates.

There were no coil, booklet, or other special forms of stamps issued with the sheet stamps, but there was a special series of 6 envelopes, 1c, 1½c, 2c, 3c, 4c, and 5c. These show a view of Mount Vernon in a rectangular stamp, and follow the regular envelopes for the colors used for the different values. The 3c, violet, stamps, designed during the summer of 1932, by copying the 2c bicentennial stamp except for the omission of the dates, is not a part of the commemorative issue.

The 1935 Charity stamps of Luxemburg were placed on sale on Dec. 2. The portrait shown is that of Charles I., duke of Luxemburg, afterward Charles IV., Roman emperor and king of Bohemia. There are six values in the set and each was sold at an advance over face value, the excess going to charity. This example was loaned by Mrs. B. Einsweiler of Chicago.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

"DAYS seem so long . . . ." This phrase occurs constantly in letters sent to this department by invalids, and if you have any first hand knowledge of illness, particularly as coupled with poverty, you will realize that the expression is mild. The confines of a shabby room, an uncomfortable bed; unappetizing, mediocre food; sketchy, inadequate care, all tend to make the hours of illness have a tedious monotony. Physical suffering comes to rich and poor alike, but money can provide numerous small comforts which help to take the edge from pain.

Mr. C. always was a good husband and father until accident and illness befell him. He now is an incurable invalid, almost entirely helpless, and he recently lost the power of speech. His wife and several children now are on relief and the family lives in one of the poorer districts on the north side. When Mr. C. recently became even more seriously ill he was removed to a local charity hospital, but because his condition is chronic the overcrowded institution no longer can care for him. He now is at home again, with no improvement in his condition. The doctor feels that a wheel chair would be helpful, both to the patient, who would be able to sit up in such a chair, and to his wife, who has heart trouble and is doing her best to care for him. The couple would be glad to have one even on a loan basis, with the understanding that it will be returned when Mr. C. is no longer able to use it.

A. L., an invalid on the south side, writes: "I recently returned home after a six weeks' stay in a charity hospital, where I was treated for malaria and had a serious operation which has left me able to speak only in a whisper. Due to a weakened heart I must remain quietly indoors for weeks to come. My wife is tubercular and must also obtain as much rest as possible. Twenty-four hours seem interminably long if they must be spent in enforced leisure, so I wonder if you know of any way in which I could obtain a radio, any sort which would bring in music. We have been forced, by our combined illnesses, to "go on relief" and are, of course, unable to purchase such a luxury as a radio, although we both are music lovers."

Mrs. H. H. is anxious to obtain clothing for her seven children. Her husband is doing work relief and his wages are insufficient for more than food, heat, and rent. There are boys 15, 13, 11, 7, and 2, and girls 11 and 3. The mother, who wears size 38 or 40, also is in need of warm apparel. The address is on the northwest side.

After a three year period of unemployment Mr. K. on the south side finally has obtained work with PWA. Old and new debts, coal, food, and other necessities for his family consume most of his salary. A new baby is expected and clothing for it cannot be purchased. If your young son or daughter has outgrown any articles of clothing wouldn't you like to pass them on to Mrs. K.?

"Dear Miss Brown: I have seven children and it is difficult for me to keep buttons on their clothing. Do you think some woman who has no further use for her button box would pass it on to me? I know that many women save buttons and I certainly can use them on the youngsters' apparel. I also am in need of warm shirts and stockings for the baby, if this is not asking too much." Mrs. L. P.

The writer lives in a small town in Illinois. Any offers will have to be mailed to her.

Mrs. H. S. writes: "We are on relief and completely dependent on public help. My husband recently was released from the hospital after a long illness, and has been home for four weeks. He still is quite ill and finds the days and nights long. We are in need of a few more warm blankets for him, and a small stove, which we have been unable to obtain. We have four small rooms and, with only a garbage burner for heat, have been suffering with the cold. If any reader can help us with either of the above mentioned articles, or with a small radio for my husband, our home would be much more comfortable."

Dancing Tango Is Marvelous for the Figure

By Antoinette Donnelly.

IT'S the tango steps for you today, ladies and gentlemen! The loveliest dance of all. And if anybody doubts that this dance is good for the figure, ask some of the dance teachers and professionals who have been dancing it for some time! The dips and the bends and the long backward steps all are to the good for waist and hips.

Primarily we have been offering this short series of dance steps as silhouette beautifiers, which they are. Also we prescribe them as having much of the secret of youth in them, for the stiff and the thin, as well as the plump. As long as you can get up on a dance floor and make a pleasing exhibition thereon, no one can say that you've settled down or are on the way to settling down to a dull middle age career. The exercises and the steps already given you, if practiced as we suggested, have you now in fairly limber condition. And getting yourself limbered up and staying limbered up is becoming the would-be beauties' pursuit of the moment.

Dancing Most Pleasant Means to Gain Grace and Poise.

It doesn't matter whether you put all this limberness to the purpose of dancing. But dancing is the most pleasant exercise in the world and, if you get limber that way, you are going to walk better, step along more youthfully, and feel younger. You are going to have a great deal more poise. Dancing is the best little muscle loosener known. It is muscle stiffness, often found in women who aren't a bit overweight, that is responsible for awkward movements and gestures. So, dance for exercise, if not for public dance floor picture and for grace of movement.

I want to include today a few "don'ts" for dancers, volunteered by the dancing teacher, Arthur Murray.

Don't find fault with your partner's dancing. That, says our authority, is the amateur's way of advertising his own lack of skill.

Don't hold the hand above the head when you dance. If you must indicate that you are a member of the straphanger's brigade, wear a button.

Don't hang your weight on your partner's arm in an effort to relax.

Don't dance with your hips far out behind. It's an outmoded style that should have been out before it ever came in.

Don't wave arms about and all around the place. You'll miss the lead and, perhaps, put on a stumbling exhibition.

Don't Relax to Be Limber; This Makes You Heavy.

Don't relax to be limber. There are girls who hang onto their partners like old overcoats. Knees sag. Arms go limp. This makes you twice as heavy for the partner. Relax, but have perfect control.

Don't take short back steps or your partner will come down on your toes and yours will be the fault. Backward steps are taken from the hip, and taken long, and you should reach with your toes.

Don't hum or whistle or count aloud. Be considerate of your partner's nearby ear.

Don't use yours and your partner's arm as a pump handle.

Don't back a girl around the room while the music is playing. You're not showing her a great big time, as you may think.

Don't dance with your wife just once and then park her for the rest of the evening. It's not being done. In fact, the best married people are finding in each other, through the modern dance step instruction, a new and delightful harmony of interest.

Don't think you are too old or too heavy or too anything else to dance. What's wrong with you, chiefly that self consciousness you suffer, is going to be corrected through dancing.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune.

London to Add to Number of Women on Police Force

THE feminine police force of London, England, is to be increased from the present strength of 67 to 142. Applicants must be between the ages of 24 and 35, and not less than 5 feet 4 inches in height, and must be able to pass an examination in English composition, arithmetic, geography, general knowledge and intelligence. They are not permitted to marry while in the service.

A Firm Hand Has Its Place with the Adolescent Child

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

"BUT none of the other girls do, mother! Why do I have to?"

"But the other fellows do, father—why can't I?"

They're hard appeals to meet, aren't they, when your sons and daughters get well into their teens?

The little child senses that, even with your willingness to give reasons, "mother knows best." Your tactfulness and cheerfulness win the day, and if you're any good at all at understanding the needs and workings of your small boy or girl you don't have any real opposition. You easily remain master of the situation.

Then the years lapse, and you have a lively, playful, heedless "inbetween" on your hands—an 8 or a 10 or 12 year old boy or girl. At this age authority irks a little, but not in an adult way. It's mostly objected to because the poor mother has to exercise it in connection with such unimportant matters as manners, quiet, mud on the rugs, chores, wearing enough clothes outdoors, and the tiresome washing—Washing clean—of hands and face.

Tact Makes Authority Palatable to "Inbetweens."

Authority at this age is resented mostly because it takes time and thought from important things like the crowd, the gang, play, radio, reading, and being outdoors. It isn't usually resented because a boy or girl of this age wants to do adult things or move about the world and society in grownup fashion.

As a rule, if you're a truly reasonable and understanding parent and are willing to make allowances for the boisterousness and heedlessness of these "inbetweens," and stand firm on essentials, you can put your rule over—you can remain master of the situation. But you must be willing to talk over anything that is of the moment to your child. Avoid a lot of bickering and argument about routine things, but never put the lid of unquestioning obedience on anything that is of serious concern to your child.

Adolescent Doesn't Have Wisdom Enough for Complete Freedom.

But as your son or daughter gets well into adolescence the scene shifts a little. Here the matter is not so simple. The reachings-out are often toward really adult forms of freedom—socially, adventurously, and physically. Less and less can we lay down the law, because gradually we must help this girl or youth of ours to make all his or her own decisions. Yet neither one is ready to have the freedom of a grownup—neither one has the experience, the stability, and the worldly knowledge which make it either right or safe to go where he pleases, when he pleases, and with whom he pleases.

Restraints are still necessary—for many reasons, some of which we can explain and some of which we can't explain—either because these young people of ours are not ready to know, or because there are some things too subtle or too intangible to be put into words.

And it's here—where certain restrictions have to be enforced—that all your past friendship and happy relationship with your son or daughter come to your rescue. Because when explanations of your decisions fail to convince them [and quite naturally they can't always get your point of view], then they will take you on faith.

Now, if you are good friends with your child who is in the middle teens, these crises won't arise often. But they will come up, occasionally.

What they will be about will depend upon a number of things—upon the interests and tastes of your boy or girl—upon where and how you live—and upon the companions of this adolescent child.

Comradeship Also Has Some Drawbacks.

In one family the struggle between the younger members of the family and the father and mother may have to do with rouge, lipstick, and earrings; in another, with hours for coming home from school; in another, with amusements on the evenings of school days, and, in still another, with the use of the family car after the much coveted driver's license has been obtained. These things are not always easy to settle—provided you mean to settle them without leaving a wake of resentment and antagonism behind your decision. But it can be done, and one of the great helps is the close and easy relationship that exists between you and your child.

If this is a great help, however, I must mention a great hindrance that may exist side by side with this nicest sort of comradeship—a hindrance to putting over your ideas—to putting into effect what you consider necessary restrictions.

Melting.

By Eleanor Jewett.

A myriad of little streams
Are running with a rippling sound
Where yesterday white banks of snow
Made ramparts on a frozen ground.

The running of the little streams
Is noised in the earth below,
And all the seeds that lie asleep
Dream suddenly how they shall grow.

The dandelion dreams of gold,
A violet yawns and dreams of blue;
Where there was sleep a promise thrills—
Soon now those dreams will all come true!

"Calico Fan" Quilt Block Has Colonial Quaintness

CALICO FAN.

By Nancy Cabot.

IT is hardly necessary to state that "Calico Fan" is a member of the old guard in the quilt realm. It radiates an authentic charm of quaintness having first been pieced in the early colonial times. The exact date when the quilt was made is obscure, but the state which claims to be its birthplace is Virginia. A diagram accompanying the quilt pattern illustrates a most attractive block arrangement which allows for the use of some of the popular old quilting designs.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Taffeta Makes Crisp Frocks for Springtime

Its Crackling Freshness Is Equally Effective in Day and Evening Gowns.

By Rhea Seeger.

IT'S an annual thrill, finding the new spring clothes that will mark the day you trot to town with your head well out of the cozy huddle of the fur collar on your faithful winter coat . . . spring clothes with all the smartness and sleek silhouettes you'll need after bundlesome, bulky wools and furs. Spring dresses of bright prints, spring duets of a short and snappy jacket of checks or plaids, or any contrasting color that you wear with a straight and scanty skirt of some plain dark color, and spring suits—there are so many of these that you can pick from dozens of different models to dramatize your personality.

Crackling fresh printed taffeta or the embroidered kind is a pet material this spring, fashioning everything from slim daytime dresses, rather simple as to streamline, to the swirling, long skirted dinner and evening gowns made with Spanish flares and ruffles and using a scrap of a cape for the shoulders. Short jackets have taken the town, as well as the fancy of every clothes collector. There isn't a well assembled wardrobe that does not, or will not, have at least three or four of these practical jackets ready to change and transform extra skirts or dresses into supersmart street outfits.

Young Models Tonics for Early March Blues.

The first of the most exciting new clothes arrive daily, but they go out almost as fast as they are unpacked, so great is the demand for such smart apparel. If you want new things and like them fresh and crisp and vastly different from the clothes you've worn all winter, shop in the Chicago stores now. The gay young models are the best tonics for a pre-spring depression feeling.

Five brand new costumes have been sketched, all from one shop, showing new ideas in fabrics, new ideas in silhouettes, new jackets, new combines and contrasts, and all the sleek new spring clothes you've been hoping to see and wear for the last few weeks.

If you think your spring wardrobe is a flop unless you can find a printed outfit that is vividly colorful without being noisy, try the two piece ensemble of dress and jacket shown in Figure A. All the daring, bright colors are in this print. The designer used the tiny spots of bright yellow to accent with the lining of the fluted plait around the narrow skirt. This yellow lining is of rustling taffeta and is repeated as the lining of the same sort of plaiting around the snappy short jacket. Notice how the jacket clings around the ribs and waistline and how short it is, a sure sign of spring fashions. The dress has short sleeves and a high neckline with a nosegay of flowers at the front. It is one of the gayest, freshest twosomes in town. You can easily wear it immediately under a coat and later for a street outfit for early summer.

Grege Effective Combination of Gray and Beige.

Figure C . . . the celebrated "twin print" combine, a slenderizing, young looking, two piece outfit of printed taffeta. The tiny pattern is in a lighter shade of the background. This dress comes in brown, navy, and black with the printed design in much lighter shades. A high, round neckline is used. There are short, puffed sleeves. The reverse side of the silk is used for trimming, hence the name "twin print." Many two piece outfits use the dark side of the silk for the dress and the lighter side for the contrasting jacket.

Tunic Dress in a New Length.

All models sketched are now available in a Chicago shop.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, March 9.

Even though the days become balmy and the urge to get into the garden is in the blood, don't be in a hurry to uncover the plants. Have everything at hand to begin operations, of course, and uncover those plants that are rather heavily mulched by taking away a part of the material.

Tuesday, March 10.

Continue to bring in potted bulbs. They will come into flower now much sooner than they did early in the winter, for sunny days bring them out. Wash the pots, if they have been buried in soil, and chip out the soil at the top of the pot to hold water.

Wednesday, March 11.

Make over the terrarium if the plants are not doing well. Frequently the stronger kinds grow rampant, crowding out the weaker varieties that may have excellent foliage. It is interesting to rearrange the shape and size of the mounds, if any exists, and replant with a new featured plant.

Thursday, March 12.

Finish the plants for the coming garden. Make out the order for supplies and send it to the supply house or nursery. Paint all tools, birdhouses, trellises, and hotbed sashes. In fact, all garden tools should be gone over and gotten in condition for immediate use.

Friday, March 13.

Plan to grow some of the summer flowering, tender bulbs in the perennial border. They are easily grown and furnish added interest. Among the most interesting are the galtonia, montbretias, ismene calathina, elephant ear, buttercup, jacobean lily, tuberose, and fairy lily.

Saturday, March 14.

Hardy roses should be planted as early as the ground can be worked, if not too wet or frozen. Get the ground prepared, for these plants should never be allowed to remain exposed to the air, or they will dry out. The hybrid perpetuals are satisfactory in the middle west. Shrubs may be pruned on bright days.

Augusta Colony Gives Dance for Tennis Tourney

AUGUSTA, GA. Although no formal entertainments are being planned during this week a number of informal parties will be given daily at the homes of the winter colony and the numerous clubs near Augusta. The only brilliant event of the week will be the tennis ball to be given Thursday evening at the Bonair hotel. Members of the committee on arrangements for the South Atlantic States Tennis tournament, to be held here March 26 to 29, are sponsoring the dance.

During this Lenten lull in social activities, the interest of Augustans and winter visitors is being centered on golf, tennis, and polo. The beautiful, sunny weather with the temperature soaring into the 70s is ideal for all outdoor sports on Augusta's calendar.

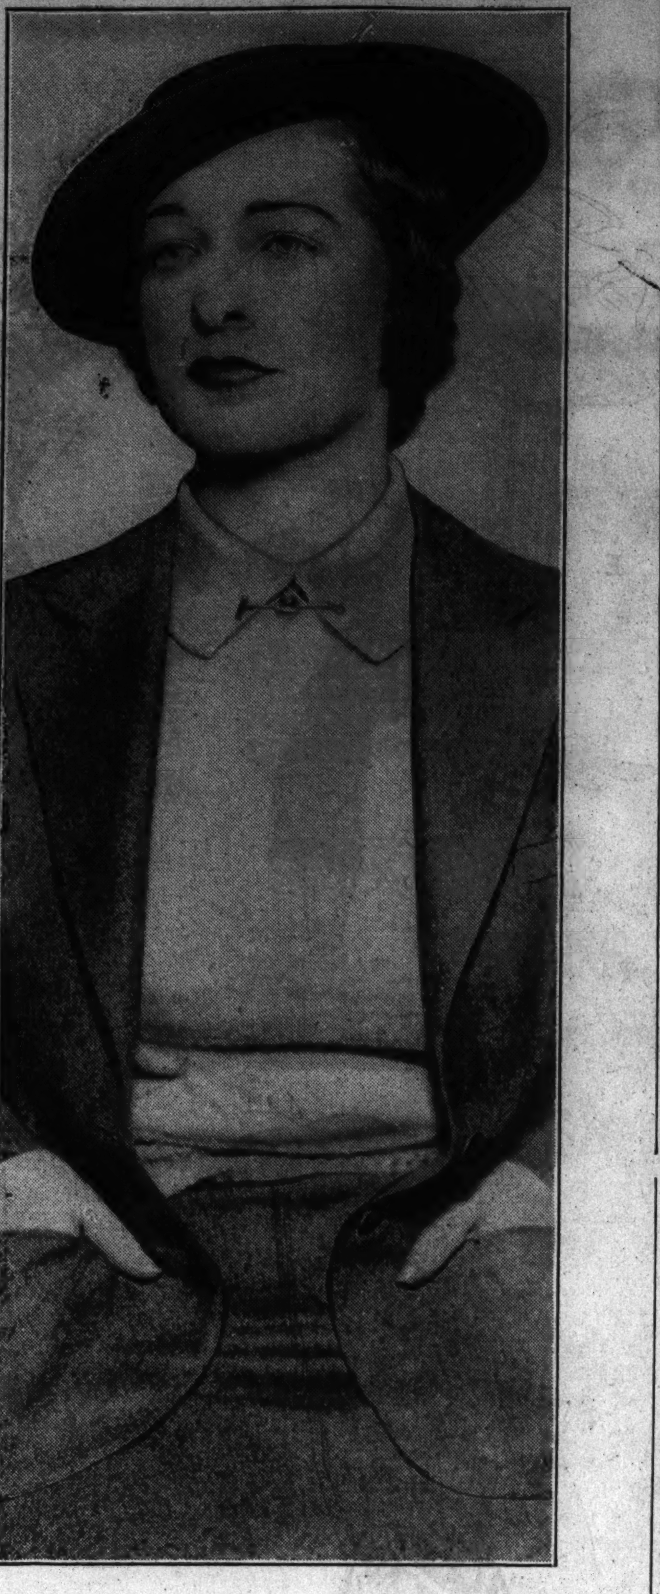
Following its double victory over the Camden polo teams last Sunday, the Augusta Western four will meet the Aiken polo team here Sunday [March 8] at the municipal field. More than 4,000 visitors to Aiken and Augusta are expected to attend.

Two interesting golf tournaments are scheduled to be held here next week at the Forest Hills hotel course. The Forest Hills championship tournaments for both men and women will be played March 9 to 13. Thirty-two players will qualify in each tournament, the top sixteen to compose the championship flights. Prizes will be awarded to winners and runners-up in each flight of both contests.

Dr. William Lyon Phelps, retired professor of English literature at Yale university, spoke Saturday, March 7, on Browning at a meeting of the Philomathic club. He will fill the pulpit Sunday, March 8, at the First Baptist church.

Capt. John D. Craig, adventurer, explorer, and motion picture director, will speak at the Forest Hills hotel on March 15. His talk will be illustrated by motion pictures taken in far corners of the earth. Many of these are jungle scenes.

Great interest is being manifested in the approaching Masters' Invitation golf tourney at the Augusta National Golf club, of which Robert Tyre Jones is president. The matches will be played April 2 to 5. The fifth annual Augusta Women's invitation golf tournament will likewise draw a brilliant and colorful field of feminine golfers, who will come here from the matches in Florida.



IN YELLOW SWEATER

Mrs. Tracy Turner Jr. wears a yellow sweater with a gray suit, one of the smartest and most charming color combinations of the season. Mrs. Turner is chairman of publicity for the Hula ball the South Shore Service league is giving on April 25 in the Gold room of the Congress hotel for the benefit of the Chicago Maternity center. Mrs. Seymour Borden is chairman of the committee planning the ball.

Simple Lamps Should Illumine Informal Room

Maple, Pottery, or Milk Glass Proper Accent for Early American Decore.

By Claire Winslow.

JUST a few years ago it was not so easy to find the right lamp for the room done in early American maple. But today manufacturers are competing to see which will produce the most interesting line in this field of accessories.

The simple, informal, comfortable living room is here to stay, and in such an interior lamps of white alabaster with silk shades or of porcelain or crystal are as out of place as long white gloves with a linen dress. They hit you in the eye, as it were, the minute you enter the room. They strike a note that is out of key.

Cider Jug Makes an Original Lamp.

The proper lighting fixtures for the early American room are, necessarily, simple. If side lights are used they should be of pewter or brass. Lamps should be of maple, of pottery, of milk glass, or any material that is unassuming and fairly coarse. Shades of parchment or of loose-meshed fabrics are best.

We have seen an old brown stoneware cider jug made into a reading lamp with great success. Old oil lamps of the heavy glass variety also can be wired for electricity, as can vases of white milk glass, Italian faience, or French peasant earthenware.

Modern Lamp Not Unsuitable with Maple.

One floor model has a salty tang three electric bulb candles is a brass ship's bell. It is not make-believe, either, but the real thing. The parchment shade is decorated with a picture of gulls and is finished with a rope binding pulled through a lot of little holes. This sailor's rope appears again in the base of the lamp. The wood is solid northern hard maple.

A good looking and inexpensive table lamp of the same material is fashioned in an entirely different style. It is frankly modern and is suitable in a room with the modern American maple now so popular and available in all the large Chicago stores.

Herman DeVries' Furniture Shows Feeling for Form and Skilful Use of Fine Woods

This group of early American dining room furniture is designed by Herman De Vries. Two sizes of open china cupboard are shown. The smaller one at the right has a removable top section, so you may get it without the shelves, if you wish. Note the interesting wooden drawer pulls, inspired by a ship's hawser about which rope is coiled. This furniture is given a beautiful "butterscotch" tone finish. It was exhibited at the recent show at the Merchandise Mart.

By Edith Weigle.

THE success of the furniture designs of Herman De Vries is based on no mere popular fancy. In period furniture, in modern, and particularly in American maple, it goes back to an inherent love of form, an appreciation of wood and craftsmanship that were established in a long apprenticeship in the designer's youth in Holland.

Herman De Vries' father was a shipbuilder. It was in his shipyard that the young De Vries was an interested observer and helper in the innumerable processes of construction. When he was old enough to take an active part in the work he asked his father to be allowed to start from the beginning of a new vessel, then to progress along with it to completion.

Primitive as the methods then were they involved exacting craftsmanship that is unmatched today. De Vries' father took him at his word and young Herman attended an auction of standing timber that was eventually to become a boat. No beams and planks ordered cut to specifications here! The elder De Vries looked over growing trees at auction; matched the various patterns for ribs and beams against the living trees, selecting those whose shape best suited his purpose.

Then, each part of the boat's framework was hand cut and adzed out of the green wood; each section from keel to tiny window portholes shaped with painstaking precision and wedged into place so that as the wood dried it automatically shrank into virtually seamless joints, allowance having been made for seasoning. An amazingly fine degree of craftsmanship was called for, so it was natural that when the boy was about 12 and he, along with his father, went into furniture manufacture, the same standards were observed.

De Vries learned to draw, studied sculpture, painting, architecture, wood finishings, stone cutting, cabinet making, working all the while at making fine furniture—not behind a desk, but behind a work bench.

He came to this country in 1906 and was employed as draftsman and designer in factories and large stores in both Grand Rapids and Chicago. Besides studying our early American type of furniture at its source, in New England, he also made trips to Europe and became interested in the relationship between it and the peasant furniture of Sweden.

Mr. De Vries designed no modern furniture until the early bizarre era had passed. Today he works in both the traditional and the contemporary veins, always with an eye to form, pleasing proportions and a satisfying simplicity. He has always been unwilling to sacrifice beauty and quality to manufacturing expediency. He says, "If there is one feature of the furniture industry that is more at fault than any other it is the tendency of manufacturers to 'make what the public wants,' to follow too slavishly along well beaten paths of the past. I believe that designers and manufacturers who concentrate on making something beautiful, practical, and legitimately priced will find the public wants what they make."

News Wanderings Take Tribune Man to Far Corners of World

TIME and distance always gild events of travel, but in this record of news wanderings for The Tribune during the last seventeen years I shall try to be as factual as possible. Such facts, however, are only a momentary meeting of world lines, an atom caught on the fringe of whirling nebulæ.

"How would you like to go to Mexico?" asked the city editor one day in 1920.

This was my first opportunity for a coveted foreign assignment, and I grasped it eagerly. The Chicago Association of Commerce was to make a good-will trip into the revolution-torn republic to the south, and I was to go along with them, join in the amenities, then leave them and prowl around by myself to see what was really going on.

Previously I had been in Canada on a series of stories, but that was so much like home that it only stirred my longing for new ways of life and new scenes. My only other preparation except for years of reporting at home was a walking trip in England as a college boy and an adventure in the West Indies as a sailor with the American fleet.

Entering the port of Laredo Feb. 6, 1920, and departing for the United States between March 5 and March 31 is the entry on the passport for that first trip.

Kinsley Appraises India as the Most Fascinating Land

By PHILIP KINSLEY

Soldiers guarded the trains throughout the long journey over the northern desert and plains of Mexico and over the mountains into the valley of the City of Mexico, 7,000 feet above the sea. There was a banquet at Chapultepec castle, interviews with President Carranza and his spokesman, Luis Cabrera, and then trips alone to Guadalajara, Puebla, Vera Cruz, a sea trip to Tampico, and a trip from there to New Orleans on a Standard Oil tanker.

In the official interviews and information Mexico was presented as an orderly civilization. In the stories which I wrote at New Orleans, which would never have passed the Mexican censor, I predicted a new revolution and that the Carranza régime would not last six months. There also were some efforts at description and reading the soul of the Mexican people.

It came home to me then, as it has many times since, that the life of the people, any people, goes on in its determined rhythms regardless of the restless movings of the top crust. Revolutions and tarif wars and diplomatic quarrels make big headlines in the newspapers, but life goes on much the same. On the battlefields of France the plowman with his patient horses is outlined against a sunset hill. In New Zealand a housewife calls her children to supper. In India women go to the village well with pitchers on their heads.

"Doves flew overhead and Indian babies and dogs were underfoot," reads one description of Xochimilco gardens on that first Mexican trip. "Boatloads of violets and pansies, grown by the acre in the gardens, were sold by Indian girls. The sky was very blue, and through the slender green heuxotl trees the snowy fields of the volcanoes could be seen. Larkspur and daisies, corn and cauliflower, lilies and poppies grow in the gardens where the Zapatista bandits swarmed down from the hills and crept toward the City of Mexico a few years ago."

These lovely floating gardens, with singing boatmen and acres of violets, are still there, and the still white mountains, lovelier than Fuji. The great pyramids of the sun and moon, a few miles from the city, reveal ancient civilizations, three layers underneath the temples to forgotten gods. The gods pass, wars pass, individuals pass, but there is always the cooking fire and the home, women and babies, mud huts and houses of tile.

In 1921 came the first long foreign trip.

"How would you like to go to the Philippines?" asked the editor one spring morning. They are very casual, these editors. Many a time I have been quietly reading at home when the telephone would ring and someone would say, "Put on your hat and go to Denver." Or San Francisco, or Washington. It is all the same to them. Something has happened, or they think it is going to happen.

In this instance I was delegated to go with Gen. Leonard Wood and William Cameron Forbes to investigate the question of independence of the islands. The previous fall and winter I had spent with President Elect Harding at Marion and on trips to Florida, Texas, and one journey to Panama and Jamaica. These official junkets are always about the same, a restricted program amid a herd of politicians and reporters. My first experience of this kind was with President Wilson on his league of nations tour, which took us to the Pacific coast and back as far as Pueblo, Colo, where he collapsed.

While in Florida with the President elect I had obtained an exclusive story about the appointment of General Wood to head the Philippine commission. This may have had something to do with my selection for this task. Inquiry at Washington showed that no provisions had been made for including reporters in the party. So I went to Seattle, got my passport visas fixed up, and after we were out of the harbor I walked up to General Wood, who was leaning against the rail, and introduced myself. He accepted the uninvited guest with great sweetness and in a day or so invited me to the official table, where amid the general chatter I learned much of the man and his associates.

The rest of this article might be written about that trip, which shows on the passport a departure on April 8 and some undecipherable Japanese lettering indicating landing in Yokohama. From here there was a short visit to Tokio, then overland to Shimonoseki, where we took an army transport direct to Manila. Impressions came thick and fast here. The Japanese countryside, the women coaling ships, rice fields, pine forests, templed hills, islands of the deep blue Sea of Japan.

On a May morning the great rock of Corregidor came into view, and soon we were landing at the port of Manila and submitting to the terrific heat that made walking a burden and the wide, cool veranda of the Hotel Manila a place that was hard to leave. [Continued on page eight.]

Federal Drama Bureau Will Reopen Two Chicago Theaters

WPA Produces an Ibsen Drama, Farce by Hoyt

Blackstone and Great Northern Offer Relief Theatrical Activities.

By Charles Collins.

THIS is the week when the federal [WPA] theater projects, which have been boondoggling in private for months, will make their public bows. Two old-line playhouses which have been sinking into oblivion—the Great Northern and the Blackstone—will be reopened by the federal troupers; tickets will be cheap; and the Muse of the Drama will costume herself in the garments of relief work.

These two ventures will differ in policy. The Great Northern, sheltering Federal Theater No. 1, will strike a highbrow or intellectual attitude with Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People." The Blackstone, which should be called Federal Theater No. 2, but which prefers the title of American Repertory theater, will adopt the lowbrow or popular style with Hoyt's "A Texas Steer." The former will open next Tuesday night; the latter, tomorrow night, if all goes well and the red tape of burocracy does not trip up the feet of progress. The players are certified as professionals, and they will include hardy old-timers who have become orphans of the economic storm, and yearning youngsters who recently came out of the schools of acting only to find that the drama hereabouts was well-nigh obsolete.

Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People," written in 1882, is a vigorous example of the great Scandinavian dramatist's work in his clearer vein. It does not contain the symbolical headaches and the psychological laboratory work of some of his better known plays. It has not been acted frequently on the American stage because its central rôle is male and most of the Ibsen practitioners of the last forty years have been female.

Memories of Moscow Art Theater.

The last important performance of "An Enemy of the People" in Chicago was given at the Great Northern theater. The play was an item in the great repertory of the Moscow Art Theater company's engagement of 1923 or 1924; and was acted, I believe, only once, or maybe twice, with Katchaloff in the rôle of Dr. Stockmann. The glamor of fine acting in a language unintelligible to the auditor is often deceptive, and one is likely to overestimates its values. But I do not believe that I was dazzled by Katchaloff into unjustifiable enthusiasm. I thought then that his Dr. Stockmann was one of the finest character studies I had ever seen on the stage; and I have not receded from this opinion.

Federal Theater No. 1, therefore, has something to live up to when it trots out the hard-headed old doctor who comes into conflict with vested interests when he discovers that the water supply of his health resort town is infected. The situation with which this drama deals, incidentally, recalls the incident of Chicago's amoebic dysentery epidemic, with a hotel focus, in the first summer of A Century of Progress.

Revival of Famous Farce at Blackstone.

Theodore Viehman, who was associated with the Old Globe Theater company of blessed memory—"A Comedy of Errors" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," were his work—is the stage director of the activities at the Great Northern. The announcements which come from this organization are eloquent with promises of a permanent repertory theater, devoted to the classics and also to experimentation with new American drama. But that, I suspect, is another story, in which coming political events will be largely concerned.

Revivals of popular plays of the past—the long run comedies and the romantic or melodramatic pastimes in which the fathers and grandfathers of this generation rejoiced—will be the policy at the Blackstone theater, where Harry Minturn, veteran of Chicago's extinct stock companies, will preside as director. The opening bill, "A Texas Steer," by Charles Hoyt, was a famous frolic of the 1890s; it is a farcical comedy dealing irreverently with the type of rural politician who gets elected to congress. Its vogue lasted for years, and amateurs have acted it almost as often as "Charley's Aunt." It reappeared in 1913 or thereabouts as the basis of the libretto of "A Trip to Washington," a musical comedy produced at the La Salle opera house by Mort H. Singer and Harry Askin.

Charles Hoyt's Career as Playwright.

Otis Harlan, now enjoying a happy old age in the Hollywood studios [he appeared in Reinhardt's filming of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" as the senior rustic], was active in the early vogue of "A Texas Steer," which started him on a brilliant career as a farceur. He was also, I seem to recall, in the play's re-birth as a musical show at the La Salle Opera house.

Charles Hale Hoyt [1860-1900] carved an enduring place for himself in the annals of the American stage with his farces. He came into the theater by the newspaper route [drama and music critic]; he had a keen sense of the humor to be found in average American life; and he did much to lift the curse of European imitations and adaptations which hovered over the American stage of his period. He rescued American farcical comedy from its obsession with the plots and devices of the school of French farces generally known as "Palais-Royale," which dealt chiefly with mixed identities, door slamming, and errant husbands trying to conceal an indiscretion from their wives.

Hoyt's catalog of farces started in 1882 with "A Bunch of Keys." Their titles are all familiar to ancient playgoers. Here is the list, each beginning with the letter "A": "A Parlor Match," 1884; "A Tin Soldier," 1886; "A Hole in the Ground," 1887; "A Midnight Bell," 1889; "A Trip to Chinatown," 1889; "A Texas Steer," 1890; "A Temperance Tour," 1893; "A Milk-White Flag," 1893; "A Contented Woman," 1897; "A Stranger in New York," 1897; "A Day and Night in New York," 1898.

MAYBE NOT SO BLUE

The melancholy days have come—judging from the expressions worn here by Sylvia Sidney and Henry Fonda. Maybe not. Maybe they're just thinking. But what about? Ah, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," all color feature from which this still was clipped, must answer that question for you. (Roosevelt.)

Barthelmess Returns to Stage in N. Y.

Work as Tramp in "The Postman Always Rings Twice" Hard to Judge.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Richard Barthelmess was one of the early birds in pictures. Picked up a generous assortment of greenbacked worms, too. Never had much training in the theater. Which may and may not have been a loss to the theater. It is a little difficult to judge from his performance as the hard-bitten tramp of James M. Cain's "The Postman Always Rings Twice," with which he made his reëntry as a legitimate actor last week.

Barthelmess, a slightly rounded and engaging young man these days, is entirely successful as the tramp, but it is a rôle that settles quickly into a grooved monotony of coldly calculated emotional reactions. There is little or nothing to admire in the fellow. Less to hope for as the play runs on. When they hang him in the end the sighs are sighs of relief rather than pity. Which is something of a handicap for any actor.

Cain Novel Suffers on the Stage.

"The Postman Always Rings Twice" was a heavy seller the year Mr. Cain wrote it. People, their eyes glistening, their lips moist, stopped whatever they were doing to assure you that it was the most magnificently brutal yarn they had perused in years, and frightfully good reading.

The novel frequently holds that advantage over the acted play. In the reading you take the characters both for what they are and what you prefer to make them. Your imagination is active. In watching an acted version of the same story you take the characters for what the actors make them, plus what you lightly assume the author intended they should be. Your imagination is passive. . . .

Barthelmess' Chambers Flint-Hard, Steely-Eyed.

The two sensualists who carry the story of "The Postman Always Rings Twice" are thoroughly unlikable from the curtain's rise. You may pump up a little sympathy for Mary Philips, playing Cora, the wife of Nick Papadakis, greasy Greek proprietor of a refreshment stand near Los Angeles, because Miss Philips is intuitively a fine actress and can make you feel her stage miseries acutely. But she is forced to kill that sympathy shortly by coldly, deliberately plotting the murder of her simple minded husband so she will feel more comfortable in the arms of Frank Chambers, the tramp. . . .

As for Chambers, he is entirely negative. Flint-hard and steely-eyed, he accepts life with complete casualness. Begging food of Nick he is offered a job. Chambers had rather bum than work, and refuses the job—until he catches sight of Cora and the hunger in her eyes. Then he takes the job and accepts with it the assignment to murder.

The plotters fail in their first attempt to shuffle Nick off by bashing in his skull while he is bathing, to make it appear he slipped on the soap and fell. But their lust for each other and for the Papadakis money grows apace, and they make good the second time. They fill Nick full of Greek wine, put him in the back seat of an automobile and run the car off a cliff, taking care to jump in time to save themselves. . . .

Dick's Popularity Sells the Play.

The insurance company counts it a suspicious wreck, and Cora and Frank are about to be sent over for murder when a tricky lawyer saves them. But they are still unhappy in their minds. Each is convinced the other would have turned state's evidence if given the chance. They have only reëstablished some sort of faith in each other when Frank accidentally runs the car into a telegraph pole and Cora is killed.

Now he is arrested again and, largely because of his past record, he is convicted of murder. Like Laughton in "Payment Deferred," he escapes the penalty of the murder he did commit and dies for one of which he was innocent. You leave him on his way to the chair.

A chilled play. A cold, forbidding, mechanically manipulated play. It may sell for a time because of the interest of a large picture public in Mr. Barthelmess. But I doubt if it can ever attain anything like a paying popularity. In addition to the leads there are good performances by Joseph Greenwald, particularly forceful as Nick, and by Dudley Clements and Charles Halton as the lawyers.

"Love on the Dole," which is also a play made from a popular novel, is likewise a depressing affair, but much more honest than the "Postman" opus. "Love on the Dole" is a British importation and ran a year on the other side. Also it achieved the distinction of being recommended in the house of commons as such a lesson play as every economist and every servant of the English people should see.

Marian Anderson's Career Pattern of Struggle and Genius

From Baptist Church Choir to Great Halls

Future Brilliant for Young Negro Singer, Who Is Acclaimed by World.

By Edward Barry.

THIS is a timely story, if you are generous enough to admit that a six weeks' interval between a sensational recital and a big blast in the paper about the singer is no lapse from good journalistic practice. There was a little review, enthusiastic and incoherent, printed the day after Marian Anderson's appearance here late in January. That same afternoon I was fortunate enough to have a couple of hours' conversation with Miss Anderson and have been saving the notes in the belief that a Sunday would come along with nothing of immediate moment to demand attention. There may be no such Sunday until late in the spring, so here is a condensed version of the hodgepodge of biographical material and personal impressions that I thought would interest the audience of that memorable night and every one else who believes that Marian Anderson's star has just begun to shine.

MARIAN ANDERSON.

A few years before the war, a little Negro girl of 6 tasted for the first time the sweetness of personal triumph. The achievement that was to change her life consisted simply in winning a place in a children's choir in a poor neighborhood of Philadelphia. Since there was little money for such luxuries as music at home, the choir became a sort of center for the girl's life, and she did such consistently good work that an adult organization of the same type welcomed her at 13.

At 13 Marian Could Sing Men's Parts.

Marian Anderson must have been of unique value to this choir of the Union Baptist church, for she was able to take any of the parts [even the men's] when the need arose. Her flexible voice and instinctive musicianship resulted in familiarity with the problems of the cantus firmus as well as the normal range of her sex, although it was a strange organization, surely, which sometimes had to fall back on this little girl for some lusty bit of singing in the lower octaves.

Miss Anderson says that she enjoyed quite a normal childhood, although her tales of those years always come back to music. She learned tune after tune by listening to the music from other rooms of the tenement where her family and other families lived, and was not above making up her own words occasionally when such fine details of the original eluded her.

The child's violent interest in music took a queer turn when she was about 11. A violinist whom she had heard appealed so strongly to her imagination that the industrious little singer determined to emulate her idol and master the instrument. She had saved four dollars—the earnings from hard, manual labor—and believed implicitly that so vast a sum would buy her no ordinary fiddle but some especially shiny treasure from the wealth of Cremona. But the proprietor of the pawnshop was a practical soul who gave the child a new knowledge of the rigors of the world instead of the old violin she had hoped for.

Such disappointments were forgotten in the excitement of the ambition that was born about 16. Marian determined to become a great singer, and from that day to this she has steadily marched toward her goal. Such a goal has the quality of the cool mountains of a desert mirage, for it recedes eternally, and becomes more difficult of approach as the ideals of the seeker mount higher.

But no such gloomy bits of introspection diluted the enthusiasm of the Philadelphia high school girl who had heard Matzenauer and Schumann-Heink and decided to hold some day a position similar to theirs in the world of music. After graduation she started professional singing in earnest, appearing in churches, clubs, and theaters in and around the city.

The People's Choral society, a Philadelphia Negro organization, gave a benefit concert to provide systematic instruction for the girl, who was now looked upon as one of the most promising singers of the town. Things began to happen. An Italian teacher, Giuseppe Boghetti, became interested in her future and gave her the benefit of his knowledge and experience. She secured an engagement as soloist with the Philadelphia Philharmonic society.

A little later the excited young woman—she was then in her twenties—competed with three hundred others for the chance to sing in Lewisohn stadium, New York, with the Philharmonic orchestra of that city—and won. This led to a moderate sort of fame and engagements in other towns.

European Tour a Succession of Triumphs.

About that time the singer and the people interested in her success came to a momentous decision. European background and experience can often advance a singer's affairs faster than any amount of work at home, and the determination that Marian Anderson should have every advantage in her preparations for a great career led to a trip to Germany in the fall of 1930. She returned the next year to the same country, gave a concert series in the United States in 1932, and by 1933 had so strengthened her confidence in herself and her art that she was ready for a major European tour.

It was a succession of triumphs. Miss Anderson sang 142 concerts in the Scandinavian countries that season and on May 2, 1934, made her Paris debut. The wise old French capital asked for a repetition a month later and for still another recital two weeks after that. The girl who had dreamed her apparently hopeless dreams in a poor Philadelphia flat found herself, before 30, acclaimed by a city at the crossroads of the world.

She was not yet ready to return to America, and spent the winter of 1934-'35 on a tour through other parts of Europe. Even such unusual countries as Poland and Spain found a place on her itinerary. Eight of her programs that year were in Paris itself, for the city did not forget the stranger who had knocked at its gates so successfully the previous spring.

Marian Anderson saw her native country again late in 1935. There was a hugely successful Town hall recital on Dec. 30 and another in Carnegie Jan. 21. Less than a week later Chicago added its salvos to New York's. Next Saturday she leaves again for Europe.

And what kind of person is this contralto who has had more acclaim from a wider world than almost any singer of her age? She is gentle and modest, quietly charming, entirely unaffected.

She will recount her triumphs only when urged to do so by direct questioning. She dislikes the first person singular of the personal pronoun and uses "we" frequently to dodge it.

Miss Anderson was a little startled at being asked how it feels to be on the road to the top. She did not quibble about the implication of the question [why should she?], and her answer revealed a great deal of her artistic philosophy. She seems to regard her voice and herself as separate entities, the one a charge of the other. The possession of such an instrument is a matter for gratitude rather than conceit, she thinks.

No Hint of Poseur; Mysticism Carries Conviction.

There is no hint of the poseur in the girl, and her simple mysticism has a moving conviction about it. The quality of her speaking voice is as rich and full of feeling as you would expect, an indication of the deep emotional nature which underlies both her art and her personality.

The two are one in a way. The wealth of mind and memory and belief and her fervent trust in music as a medium of self-expression rank just below the natural glory of her voice as far as importance in the final result is concerned.

She is a thorough citizen of the world, a disappointingly thorough one. It is all taken for granted, all the strange countries and strange people. She is as familiar with exotic locales as we are with the road to the county seat, and there is nothing especially exciting about them. The hundreds, perhaps thousands, of towns and cities she has seen are all part of a rather uniform pattern—a depot, a hotel, a theater, milling crowds. The story is the same up and down the roads of the world.

Schubert an Object of Special Devotion.

She does remember some of the impressions foreign countries made on her at first acquaintance. Norway was spontaneous and cordial, Sweden a little slow in patronizing her concerts. Sweden has come around since, and sends its queues of citizens to the box office when an Anderson recital is in prospect.

Yes, Schubert is an object of especial devotion, as you suspected when she sang "Death and the Maiden" and the "Ave Maria." That habit of closing her eyes while singing is a defense scheme against the jarring impressions that a close view of a variety of people can give. She likes to lose herself in a song, to identify herself with its poetry and music.

Marian Anderson is not through with the roads of the world yet. She has youth and vitality, and is quite happy at the prospect of starting off on her eternal traveling again. Lyons will hear her late this month; Vienna, in the summer, when she works under Bruno Walter. From May to August of next year she tours South America.

When will Marian Anderson be in Chicago again? I do not know, but you can depend on long notice and plenty of preliminary excitement in this column.

TO SING IN "ELIJAH"

Betty R. Power, who will appear as soloist with the Swedish Choral club in Orchestra hall March 25. A performance of the Mendelssohn oratorio that night will mark this famous organization's twentieth anniversary.

IN STAGE SHOW AT STATE-LAKE

Rita Rio, whose name is the title of a well-known musical show and its theme song in reverse, appears on the program of stage entertainment at the State-Lake theater this week. She was leading woman in Eddie Cantor's film, "Strike Me Pink."

"Jubilee's" Finish.

"Jubilee," the Moss Hart-Cole Porter musical show which Sam H. Harris and Max Gordon staged in New York on Oct. 12, closed March 7 after a run of twenty-one weeks. Although considered a hit, it did not pay off its production cost, estimated at $182,000. It will not tour.

Segovia Gives Guitar Recital Here Today

Two Compositions on the Program Will Be New to Chicago Followers.

That important section of our population which occupies the long intervals between Andres Segovia recitals with hushed tales of the marvels of his playing will crowd the pleasant little Civic theater this afternoon to applaud the man who raised the status of the guitar from that of a moderately satisfactory accompanying instrument to an eloquent solo medium.

ANDRES SEGOVIA.

This renowned musician asks no special consideration from his listeners because of the novelty of his instrument as a concert hall property. He calmly plans a full length program of standard and modern music, and is not frightened by any such bugbear as the polyphony of Bach. An interesting item this afternoon is a prelude and variations by an itinerant guitarist of another day, Fernando Sor, who was wandering up and down Europe more than a hundred years ago.

Although this is Segovia's fifth American tour, Chicago has never heard him play a certain Andante of Mozart and Capriccio of Castelnuovo-Tedesco that appear on today's schedule.

Competing with Segovia for the attention of the concert going public is the Woman's Symphony orchestra, which offers the best program of its season in an attempt to draw a capacity audience to the Studebaker this afternoon. Such an effort deserves to be crowned with success, for the scheduled numbers combine variety and interest to a degree which is too seldom reached even in so brilliant a year as this.

Ebba Sundstrom and her seventy-five musicians open with Glinka's rousing overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla." The composer has had quite a renaissance these last few years, although this and an equally short bit from "A Life for the Czar" are still the only excerpts from his works which find a regular place on concert and radio programs.

Two of Bach's fervent chorale preludes, one in a Caillet transcription, the other in a Damrosch, lead to Lalo's tuneful "Symphonie Espagnole," whose alluring melodies will be the care of Evelyn Levin Davis, concert master of the orchestra and violin soloist this afternoon. She is a Chicagoan who has been active in concert, radio, and other types of work for the last several years.

HALF OF PLOT IN "BOY MEETS GIRL"

Olsen-Shutta Run at 'Inn' Ends March 26

GEORGE OLSEN and Ethel Shutta will end their long run in the College Inn Thursday night, March 26. On April 11, Abe Lyman will bring his "Movieland's Favorite Band" to the College Inn, after a long engagement in New York's Hollywood restaurant. He is booked for six weeks. Following Lyman, Buddy Rogers and his California Cavaliers will return to the Inn. The ice skating show will remain as an attraction in the College Inn next summer.

● Carroll and Shalita, ballroom dance team, will join Ted Lewis, "the high hatted tragedienne of jaz," and his orchestra, when the Terrace room's new show opens on March 13. Several seasons ago in New York, Ted Lewis selected Carroll and Shalita from fifty dance teams to make a tour. They remained with the band for nearly two years. They feature an oriental bolero, waltz, tango, fox trot and one-step.

● The Blackhawk's celebrity night, the "Midnight Flyers," will be dedicated tomorrow to Nils T. Granlund, now appearing at the State-Lake theater. "Granny," as this Broadway impresario is called, plans to present the entire cast of his revue to the "Midnight Flyers" audience. Will Osborne and his orchestra continue at the Blackhawk.

New! Higher Fidelity Recording of STRAWINSKY'S
THE FIRE-BIRD
by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra

THE low strings set the scene of an enchanted night, and at once you become aware that here is the real Fire-Bird Suite—warmly alive—and glittering with every facet and cadence that dazzle you when you sit in the actual presence of the Philadelphia Orchestra. Seductively mysterious, the music lures on the young Tsarevitch, until he sights a strange glow among the trees . . . and now the orchestra breaks into a shower of brittle, iridescent tone as the wondering eyes of the Tsarevitch blink at the glory of the Fire-Bird. In a charmed world, Strawinsky unrolls the entire scroll of human emotions.

For the first time, in any recording, all the glowing color of The Fire-Bird Suite has been caught. Hear this new Victor Higher Fidelity recording of The Fire-Bird Suite at your dealer's. Recorded on 3 12-inch Red Seal Victor Records, 5 sides. The sixth side contains a new Stokowski-Philadelphia Orchestra recording of the Prelude in A Flat by the world-famed young Russian composer, Szostakowicz. Album, complete with explanatory booklet, $6.50.

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD Morning! While this lacks both the body and the sparkle of those Rogers-Astaire successes, "The Gay Divorcée," "Roberta," and "Top Hat," it is gay and diverting film fare, starred with catchy tunes and distinguished by a great deal of delectable dancing.

What you yern for is more dancing and less dialog and other acting of sorts. For the story, concerned with the heart affairs of two sailors and their sweethearts, is pretty limp and lifeless in stretches.

Astaire and Gobs Sing Magnificently.

"Follow the Fleet" starts out with a bang. It sets a pace which, unfortunately, it doesn't keep up, showing Astaire and gobs aboard a battleship singing the theme song with art and abandon that are positively electrifying to the observer.

O well, be that as it may, any film with so much of Fred Astaire, who can sing and play the piano, and is as clever a pantomimist as he is a dancer, is worth anybody's money. Especially when it has—as does "Follow the Fleet"—plenty of Ginger, too.

Harriet Hilliard Tries to Do a Helen Morgan.

Randolph Scott is attractive as Astaire's pal, who, led astray by a blonde temptress, returns to allegiance to Ginger's sister—rather squashily played by Harriet Hilliard, a recruit from radio. Miss Hilliard patterns her singing—and she can sing—after that of Helen Morgan, whom she also slightly resembles—though in real life she is a blonde. She went into dark makeup that she might be a better foil for Miss Rogers.

Astrid Allwyn is languorous as the romance breaker up. Minor rôles are all ably handled and the picture is handsomely mounted and effectively costumed. There are several attractive ensemble numbers.

You may not rave about "Follow the Fleet," but you'll like it.

Here are MARY PICKFORD'S six rules for making a party a success: [1] Enjoy your own hospitality; invite people you like and let them know you're glad they came. [2] Invite guests who have some interest in common; landscape artists and real estate salesmen may both deal in land, but they probably won't mix well at a party. [3] Ask only as many friends as you can take care of comfortably at one time. If your room is limited, give two parties. [4] Keep the party as informal as possible; it's a good idea to give your guests something to do—let them help you serve or give impromptu entertainment. [5] Keep away from intricate or too elaborate foods; buffet style is the better way to serve. [6] Don't wear yourself out getting ready for the party—save the cleaning and polishing until afterward. . . . After a short vacation at Palm Springs BARBARA STANWYCK will return to work at the RKO-Radio studio where she will play the feminine lead opposite PRESTON FOSTER in "Volcano."

JEAN ARTHUR and her husband, Frank J. Ross Jr., hope to leave on a South Sea cruise as soon as Miss Arthur finishes her work opposite WILLIAM POWELL in "One to Two." As this is Miss Arthur's first trip away from the United States she's planning on deserting Hollywood for at least two months and will take in all the sight-seeing trips there are to take. . . . ROBERT TAYLOR has spent the last few Sundays shopping for a new boat. According to latest reports he has finally decided on a trim 65 foot schooner with an auxiliary motor.

JOAN CRAWFORD, who never keeps a stitch of clothing in the house that she can't use, has given more than fifty complete outfits away to needy girls in the last year. Her seamstress changes them to fit each [lucky] girl. . . . LYLE TALBOT is building an underground playroom in his back yard that will be a reproduction of the cave he used to play in on his parents' farm near Omaha, Neb. It will be heated, ventilated, and lighted and will have a bar. [No—it's NOT an exact reproduction of the Nebraska cave!]

See you tomorrow.

Travel Lecture.

Continuing his travel revues at Orchestra hall, Burton Holmes will offer "Normandy and Brittany" as the fourth episode in his series. This will be given next Wednesday and Friday evenings, and Saturday afternoon.

"THE MILKY WAY"

Stevens Again Hits Road to Stardom

Since 'Three Musketeers,' Onslow No Longer Universal's 'Problem Child.'

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—After being put in envied rôles the first year in films, then dropping almost entirely from important notice for four years, Onslow Stevens is up and at 'em again, ever since his rôle as Aramis in "The Three Musketeers." He is now playing an Arab chieftain in "Under Two Flags," of which more later.

Stevens, who aroused the critics' enthusiasm with his portrayal of the author in Hollywood who tries to earn his salary in "Once in a Lifetime," his first chance at films, hit it again following that as leading man with Marion Davies in "Peg O' My Heart."

After those two hits Universal, where he was under contract, did not know what to do with him, and frankly regarded him as a "problem child." The Laemmles weren't sold on Stevens as a star and he is too handsome to play a heavy and leave the hero any sympathy—so what? No important work for the duration of the contract.

Community Theater Fills in Periods of Unemployment.

Stevens, who is a graduate of the Pasadena Community theater, refused to be inactive. He could still return to his alma mater, so he busied himself with rôles in the community theater. This wasn't bad business, for that particular little theater is a showcase for the picture industry. Many now famous folk got their start there.

Indeed, Stevens says he got his first film chance because Gloria Stuart, then playing there with him, begged him to come to Universal and help her take a film test. It was so good they both got contracts out of it.

"Strangely enough, I've never yet gotten a part I've made a film test for. That first break came through Miss Stuart's tests. The second break for the Davies film came because Miss Davies happened to be passing the projection room where they were showing a test of me for some other rôle, and she hired me on the strength of that test. Other rôles I've gotten mainly because I was under contract. Most of them were poor parts, but I worked hard on them. One good rôle was as John Barrymore's law partner in 'Counsellor at Law.'"

More Concerned with His Role than His Personal Fate.

At Radio Stevens was being considered for the part of d'Artagan for "The Three Musketeers." After the screen tests were made he insisted he couldn't look young enough for the rôle and wasn't quite fiery enough—and "talked himself out of the main rôle into a smaller one, as Aramis." That's typical of Stevens; he's so sincere in his acting that he's much more concerned over the rôle he's to play being well done than what he'll get out of it personally. He's the same way socially.

He's smart enough to know that the Hollywood social game has to be played by any actor hoping to land in a big way, yet it initiates him and after a few futile fights in movie society which overwhelmed him with boredom he has withdrawn to his own circle of friends where flattery and self-seeking aren't a part of the routine.

A short sketch of Stevens' career is the key to his personality. At the age of 14, like many boys, he had reached his mature height, which in his case is six feet two. He wanted to see the world and ran away from home in Pasadena and joined the army at El Paso.

Parents Let Young Onslow Assert Individuality.

His parents, both stage people, took the young individualist not too seriously and instead of trying to get him released allowed him to fulfill his enlistment and even to reënlist for service in China where he spent two years. At the age of 18, though the United States army didn't know that was his age, he was honorably discharged in San Francisco at the end of his enlistment.

In 1928, after a couple of years of hard work learning to act, he made his debut at Pasadena Community theater. Since then he has been active in 250 productions, sometimes directing, sometimes acting, sometimes doing both. The past summer saw him the star of three Shakespearean plays. More recently he played in the "Cherry Orchard," and last month between picture engagements he directed "Many Mansions," starring himself and Anne Buchanan, Pasadena social leader, at the community theater.

It's typical of the Stevenson family [Onslow's family name is Stevenson] that Onslow should be the informal, sincere individualist that he is.

Played Title Role of "The "Littlest Girl" at Age of 1.

His parents, Houseley and Margaret Behrens Stevenson, are both of the stage, and when Onslow was 1 he toured with them in the title rôle of "The Littlest Girl." A paternal great uncle was Edward Onslow Ford, the sculptor of the statue of Sir Henry Irving as Hamlet which stands in the Guild Hall Art gallery in London, and the memorial to Percy Bysshe Shelley that stands at University college in Oxford. A grandfather, Frederick Stevenson, English composer of organ and choral music, is famous for his "Salutation to the Dawn."

The family life of the Stevensons allows perfect freedom. It isn't unusual for Onslow to be packing bags for the night plane for New York two hours before it leaves, with no one in the house aware of an impending departure, or at all excited about it if he tells them as he kisses them good-by.

Cosmopolitan Cast.

Forty-four states and five foreign countries are represented in the cast of "The Great Waltz." There is one Chicago girl in the company, Helen Russell, whose parents formerly lived at 1400 Lake Shore drive. She has been with the operetta since its première in New York over a year ago.

Marriage Mill Wives

Gin Weddings Clogging Chicago Divorce Courts

Courtroom of Judge Rudolph F. Desort where testimony in divorce cases based on gin marriages is heard.

Truth About Crown Point's Marrying Rackets

. . . "We had quite a few drinks. . . . The next day I found a marriage certificate in my bag."

. . . "I woke up the next day to find a strange man beating me. He said he was my husband."

. . . "It was about 4 in the morning. . . . My boy friend suggested we get married. . . . We drove to Crown Point, stopping at a number of roadhouses along the way. We were married. . . . I don't remember much after that. I must have passed out."

. . . "I was invited to a party. I'm not used to drinking. There were four of us. Some one suggested we go to Waukegan and get married. I guess we went. I don't remember much except next day my girl friend called and said I was married. I was shocked and checked up and found it was true."

—From the records of divorce suits in Cook county courts.

By LOUISE BARGELT

ONE out of every eight divorces granted in the Cook county courts started with an easy union in the marriage mills of Crown Point, Ind., Valparaiso, Ind., or Waukegan, Ill. These marriage mills have for years been the spring boards from which the heedless have landed in the divorce courts.

Easy marriages are a paying racket in these towns.

The operators of these lucrative enterprises hawk their wares loudly from highways and taverns, roadhouses, and filling stations, and collar reckless, exuberant couples who are bent on the great adventure. Many of these nuptial concessions are run day and night. They even advertise a 24 hour service.

This year Crown Point's marrying gang is gloating openly over a recent boom to the marriage business in their quiet town square. They see a chance of bigger profits in 1936 than they have ever known, even in predepression years. They have had a stroke of luck and for the first time in their lives have secured what seems to be a near monopoly on the fat fees which flow from midnight marriages.

This lucky stroke for Crown Point is the result of a hard blow to the Waukegan racketeers in the easy marriage game. On last Nov. 1 Russell H. Alford took over the county clerk's office in Lake county, Ill., and refused to allow any licenses to be issued in Waukegan except at the courthouse, from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The order was a death warant to Waukegan's midnight nuptials and the men who ran them. There was furious resentment at Alford's statement that "marriage is a sacrament, after all . . . Waukegan may lose dollars, but we're issuing licenses and marrying couples in an aboveboard fashion in this town now."

Already Crown Point's marriage mills are doing a better business than for some years past. In December and January 396 marriage licenses were issued each month, against 342 and 352 in the preceding year. The icy blasts and swirling blizzards did not keep the crowds from flocking to Crown Point's city square.

Several of the matrimonial mills are threatening to raise the price of certificates shortly and increase the fee on late night ceremonies. Warm days and sultry evenings are ahead. If January drew the couples in hundreds to Crown Point's nuptial mart, the magic of June should lure them in still greater numbers!

Whether a couple is drunk or sober, it costs more to be married at midnight. After the witching hour has struck the price soars higher.

A couple pays $4.50 for a license before 5 p. m. Two dollars and fifty cents of this is for the license and $2.00 for a fancy white certificate with a picture on the cover of a rising sun, a church, and a home. A dollar extra will insure the couple absolute secrecy in their little adventure and bury their names from prying friends and overly suspicious relatives. Up to midnight the price of license and certificate is $7.50. After midnight and in the wee hours of the morning the price mounts to $10.

The manipulators of these marriage mills have always vowed with great solemnity that they never married couples who were drunk. There can always be, of course, some question as to when a girl or boy is drunk, or not drunk!

Ex-Justice Howard H. Kemp, veteran marriage racketeer in Crown Point, has long maintained: "I never marry 'em drunk. If they are not too drunk to walk upstairs to my office, then they aren't really drunk."

Many of the youthful dupes and victims tell a different story to the judges of the Cook county courts when they file suits later for annulments or divorces, and there is an ever increasing number of divorce and annulment suits being filed in Chicago each year, as the result of these hasty, easy, often drunken marriages.

Let's look back a moment into Judge Joseph David's Superior court on a morning last August when he delivered an attack from the bench on the practice of marrying intoxicated couples in Lake county. [This was shortly before Clerk Alford had put a stop to night marriages in Waukegan.] Judge David added that he could not question the legality of marrying couples any hour of the night, but he could and would voice a protest against the shocking indecency of it.

Mrs. Christina Webb Marti, a pretty red haired Chicago girl who resided in the Burton hotel, 1429 North Clark street, had told the judge about the circumstances of her marriage. She testified she married Joseph Marti, 24 year old one time featherweight boxer, last May 31 in Waukegan. She was, she declared, "too drunk" to know what was going on and had never lived with her husband.

The judge ordered a decree of annulment drawn up, which he later signed.

A few moments spent in the Superior court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort last Oct. 3 would have shown an uncontested suit for annulment replete with evidence of complete intoxication on the part of the plaintif, Mrs. June Owens Funkley of 1046 Lake Shore drive, who liked her Scotch.

She and Jack Funkley were married about 4:30 o'clock in the morning of May 29 last, by Justice of the Peace Wallenwein in Waukegan. Questioned by her attorney, Harry Carlson, Mrs. Funkley, who later resumed her maiden name of Owens, said that she was 21 years old and resided at the Frost club, a club for girls in a building owned by her mother.

She began drinking, she testified, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon previous to the wedding with Mrs. Frankie Masters, wife of an orchestra leader, who was packing preparatory to leaving the next day for Florida. Mr. and Mrs. Masters then lived at the St. Clair hotel. At 6 o'clock Masters and Funkley came in and they had more drinks until 8 o'clock.

They were drinking Scotch and sodas, she said. At 8 o'clock they went to Angenoli's, on Chicago avenue, and had ravioli and spaghetti, red wine and more Scotch and sodas. Mrs. Funkley said she had no idea how many she had, but Mrs. Masters later testified that Mrs. Funkley "easily" had ten Scotch and sodas from 4 to 8 o'clock and that at dinner the four of them had some wine and then several more Scotch and sodas.

Mrs. Funkley testified that they left the Chicago avenue place and went to the Palmer house bar about 10 o'clock and drank more Scotch and soda and she began to feel a "little woozy." Questions her attorney asked and her answers included:

Q.—Do you know where you went from the Palmer house bar? A.—I remember going to the Sherman, to the Celtic room, but don't remember leaving there.

Q.—Have you any independent recollection of going to the next place after you left the Sherman? A.—I have a vague idea of drinking—just stages of drinking, that is all.

Q.—Have you any idea of what you did the rest of the evening until the next morning? A.—The next thing I remember I was riding on the north side and it was daylight, and my one idea was to get home before my mother got up.

Q.—When you arrived home—I think you testified that the janitor told you it was 5:30 or 6 a. m.—did you know you had gone through a marriage ceremony? A.—No, the first time I knew of it was in the morning when I went into my purse for something and found the marriage certificate.

JUDGE DESORT—Did you ever cohabit with your husband? A.—I beg your pardon.

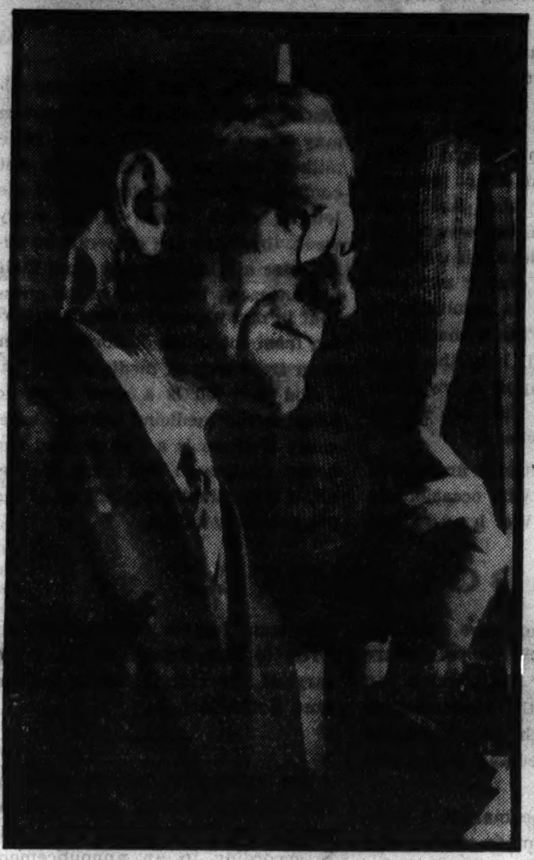
Q.—Did you ever cohabit with him as his wife? A.—No.

Q.—Are you employed? A.—No. I have been working, but I'm going to school now.

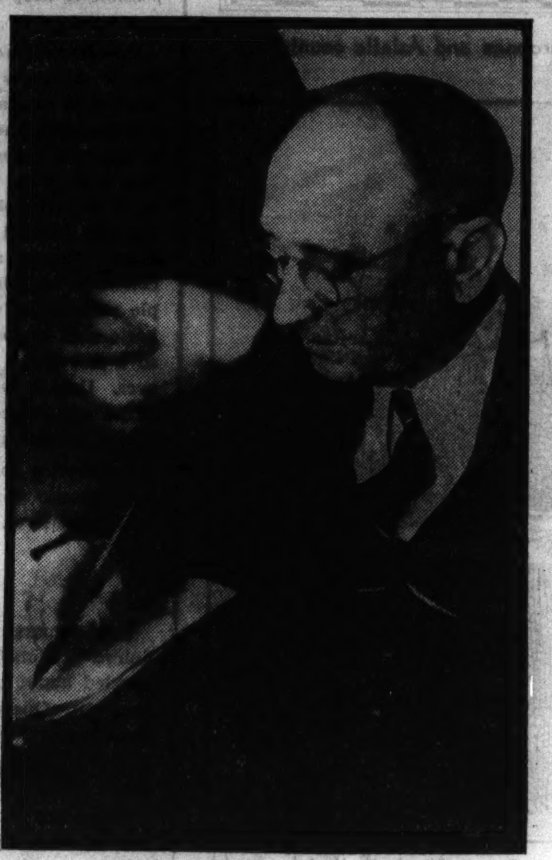
Mrs. Masters testified that the 21 year old girl drank "probably four or five" more sodas at the Palmer house bar. At the Sherman, Mrs. Masters said, she noticed that June was getting "too intoxicated." They attended a preview of a motion picture at the United Artists theater at 12:30 o'clock. Miss Owens was "intoxicated" when they arrived at the theater and Funkley "seemed intoxicated, too," said Mrs. Masters.

They left Funkley and Miss Owens at the St. Clair hotel and lent Funkley their car to drive the girl home a little after 2 o'clock in the morning.

The daily calls in the busy divorce courts of Cook county almost invariably contain one or several cases in which the marriage occurred in Crown Point, Waukegan, or Valparaiso. The busiest court is that of Judge Rudolph F. Desort, who hears on an average of 30 divorce cases a day, four days a week.



Justice Kitchel, who runs a combination filling station and marriage parlor 5 miles from Crown Point.



Efforts of County Clerk Sweigart to put the brakes on one marriage mill were defeated in court.

On Feb. 20 a reporter and photographer were in Judge Desort's court. The rapid procession of witnesses to the witness stand began.

A girl in a black beret, Florence Everett of 3646 Sheridan road, testified she married Edward A. Everett on Dec. 13, 1934, in Waukegan and lived with him until Jan. 10, 1935. They were married about 7 o'clock at night, she said.

Mae Durlin of 5961 West Huron street, with blonde hair and brown eyes, said she was married at Crown Point Nov. 14, 1928, and lived with her husband until March 29, 1935. She charged cruelty. She knew him two months before they were married and went to Crown Point "because every one was doing it," she said.

On the same day Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan, who hears about 10 divorce cases a day, indicated he would sign a decree of annulment in the case of Mrs. Laurine Marie Pence, 18 years old, of 7041 Morgan street. She testified she was married at Crown Point to James E. Pence, 19 years old, of 220 West 65th street on Nov. 16, 1935, when they were both under age. She was 17 and he was 19. They perjured themselves in declaring their ages, she said.

Her story was brief:

We were out riding and he said, "Here's the place to get married!"—we'd never planned to be married, never even talked of it before. I didn't want to then, but he talked me into it and promised he would make a home for me. He never did. We never lived together. Later I tried to get him to assume his responsibilities, but he never would.

Her mother testified that her daughter had returned at 1:30 o'clock that night. She did not know of the marriage until a month later.

Meanwhile, Crown Point's marriage racket booms and those who run the business wax fat on the flowing fees they pocket nightly.

The veteran ringleader of the Crown Point profiteers is Howard H. Kemp, bald, leering, winking, ex-justice of the peace. For fifteen years he was chief collector of these wedlock profits. He had a monopoly among the justices, since he paid the two other elected justices a salary and they retired from active competition. Occasionally, he admits, he allowed the legitimate ministers of the town to marry a few couples! But not often.

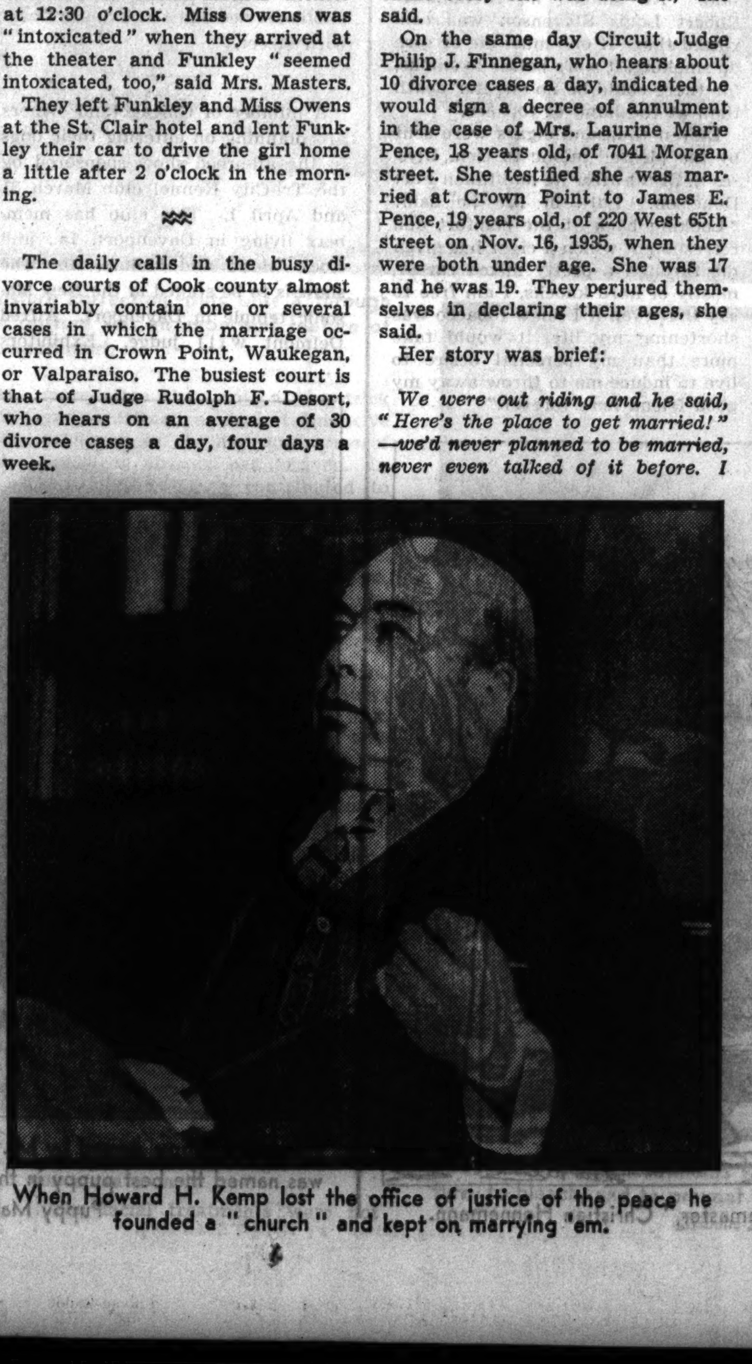
Then depression came and gin parties and midnight nuptials and all night motor jaunts to Crown Point grew less numerous. Bridegrooms had less money to spend. Economy was in the air, and the couples who couldn't make Crown Point in the early hours of the evening would drive around until morning, waiting for daytime rates! Or worse still, they would grow discouraged and drive away, not to return.

It was evident something had to be done. So Kemp and the other two justices, John R. Kroft and Harvey Minas, put their heads together and formed a syndicate. In union they might find strength, they felt; at least they could keep a strangle hold on the available marriage business. They advertised widely that they were open for twenty-four hour service and commenced to burn the all night oil. They relieved each other on eight hour shifts and split the fees.

But in 1934 the luck of fifteen years deserted Kemp. He was defeated for the office of justice of the peace. Ungrateful voters, he declared, had robbed him of his long enjoyed emoluments of office.

Kemp pondered awhile over this outrageous arrow of political misfortune and then decided to pocket the affront and "daub his vice with a new show of virtue." If he could not be a justice any longer, he would be a preacher. He must have a title of some sort, so he went through the farce of organizing a church which he called "Church of the Populace." He retained his old office, up one flight of stairs over a drug store. It had long been a stuffy, smelly, but profitable little office, and in it he had tied thousands of nuptial knots and pronounced thousands of smirking nuptial benedictions.

Outside he hung two signs. They read: "Church of the Populace" and "Marriages performed." Beneath one of the signs is a picture of Cupid and a cheap lithograph which shows a bride peering coyly out from a veil and some faded orange blossoms. In good old times his standard fee was five dollars. He takes less now. He takes anything he can get.



When Howard H. Kemp lost the office of justice of the peace he founded a "church" and kept on marrying 'em.

To be sure the feeling against him runs high. He has had the breaks long enough. He should retire gracefully from the racket and give some of the other men a chance.

"It isn't fair," complains Justice of the Peace Minas, who was once a pal of Kemp. "I like Kemp and so do the voters. But we all feel alike. He has had the job long enough. It is time some one else had it. But he won't quit. It looks like he'll never quit!"

Three justices of the peace share an office now, a few doors north of the "Rev. Kemp's marrying parlor." It is up one flight of stairs in a building formerly occupied by a bank. The office is an imposing one compared to Kemp's quarters. Over the name of the old bank is a huge sign which reads, "Marrying judge." There is also a triangular sign, "Justice of the peace," and a sidewalk sign, as a further come-on to the passing couples.

"We keep the place open until midnight, then we go home," says Justice Kroft. "If any one wants us they can call us there."

On the door is the last name and the phone number of each justice.

"We take what we can get these days," says Kroft. "There is no set fee."

"Four or five years ago $5 was the usual thing," says Taylor. "Now, after the ceremony, they ask, 'Well, what are the damages?' or 'What do I owe you?' I always tell 'em, 'I usually get $5, but it's up to you.' Fact is, it's likely to be less than $5 now, though, of course, I've gotten as high as $10."

Justice of the Peace Minas declared gloomily that the "Rev." Kemp had offered to retire if they would pay him $150 a month or 50 cents out of every fee they obtained from a couple. The three associates turned down the proposition.

The present set-up for the anticipated boom year in Crown Point includes one of Kemp's strongest competitors, the Rev. Oscar Stevens. He is a foe of no mean parts, and he calls himself the "marrying parson." His office, a combination home and marriage parlor, is on the opposite side of the square from Kemp and the three justices, and over a liquor store.

A huge sign shouts its injunction to inquiring couples as they enter town:

On a smaller sign, as an added inducement, is the printed information: "$2 in daytime."

This "marrying parson," who was once a Presbyterian minister without a church, is a thorn in the side of Crown Point's decent citizens and respected ministers. He is even more of an irritant to the justices of the peace! Formerly he brazenly parked his car in front of the courthouse, with a large sign on it which read: "The marrying parson." This was a little too much for the village council. An ordinance was finally passed which forced him to remove both the sign and the car.

The Rev. Stevens is unpopular, in the first place because he's a "rank outsider." In the second place he has started more than one price cutting war. In 1934 he went so far as to advertise he would give a white certificate free with every wedding. He asserted that the certificates only cost 10 cents apiece wholesale, and the price of $2.00 was a holdup.

The clerk's office promptly retaliated by warning couples that if they were married by the Rev. Stevens they might find later that the ceremony was not legal. Chief Deputy Mybeck had said so himself. In the opinion of the clerk's office the Rev. Stevens was not qualified to marry couples.

The climax of this rumpus came when County Clerk Sweigart announced that he would not file returns of marriages performed by the Rev. Stevens. The latter had no parish and this fact took away his nuptial-tying rights.

Stevens put up a good fight. He took the matter into court and won. Clerk Sweigart was ordered by Judge C. V. Ridgley of the Gary Superior court to file the returns!

Soon a newcomer projected himself into Crown Point's highly competitive marriage field, introducing a more blatant method of enticing couples into his marriage parlor. The race for business was on.

This is the first of two articles on marriage mills and gin marriages. The next will appear in an early issue of the Graphic and will describe this newcomer in Crown Point's marriage game, relating also stories of the wives whose hasty romances have led them into the Cook county divorce courts.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Remedy at Home

No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a bad winter cough can be relieved, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive results. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a much better remedy. It never spoils and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the phlegm, helps clear the air passages, and soothes the irritated membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in distressing coughs.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

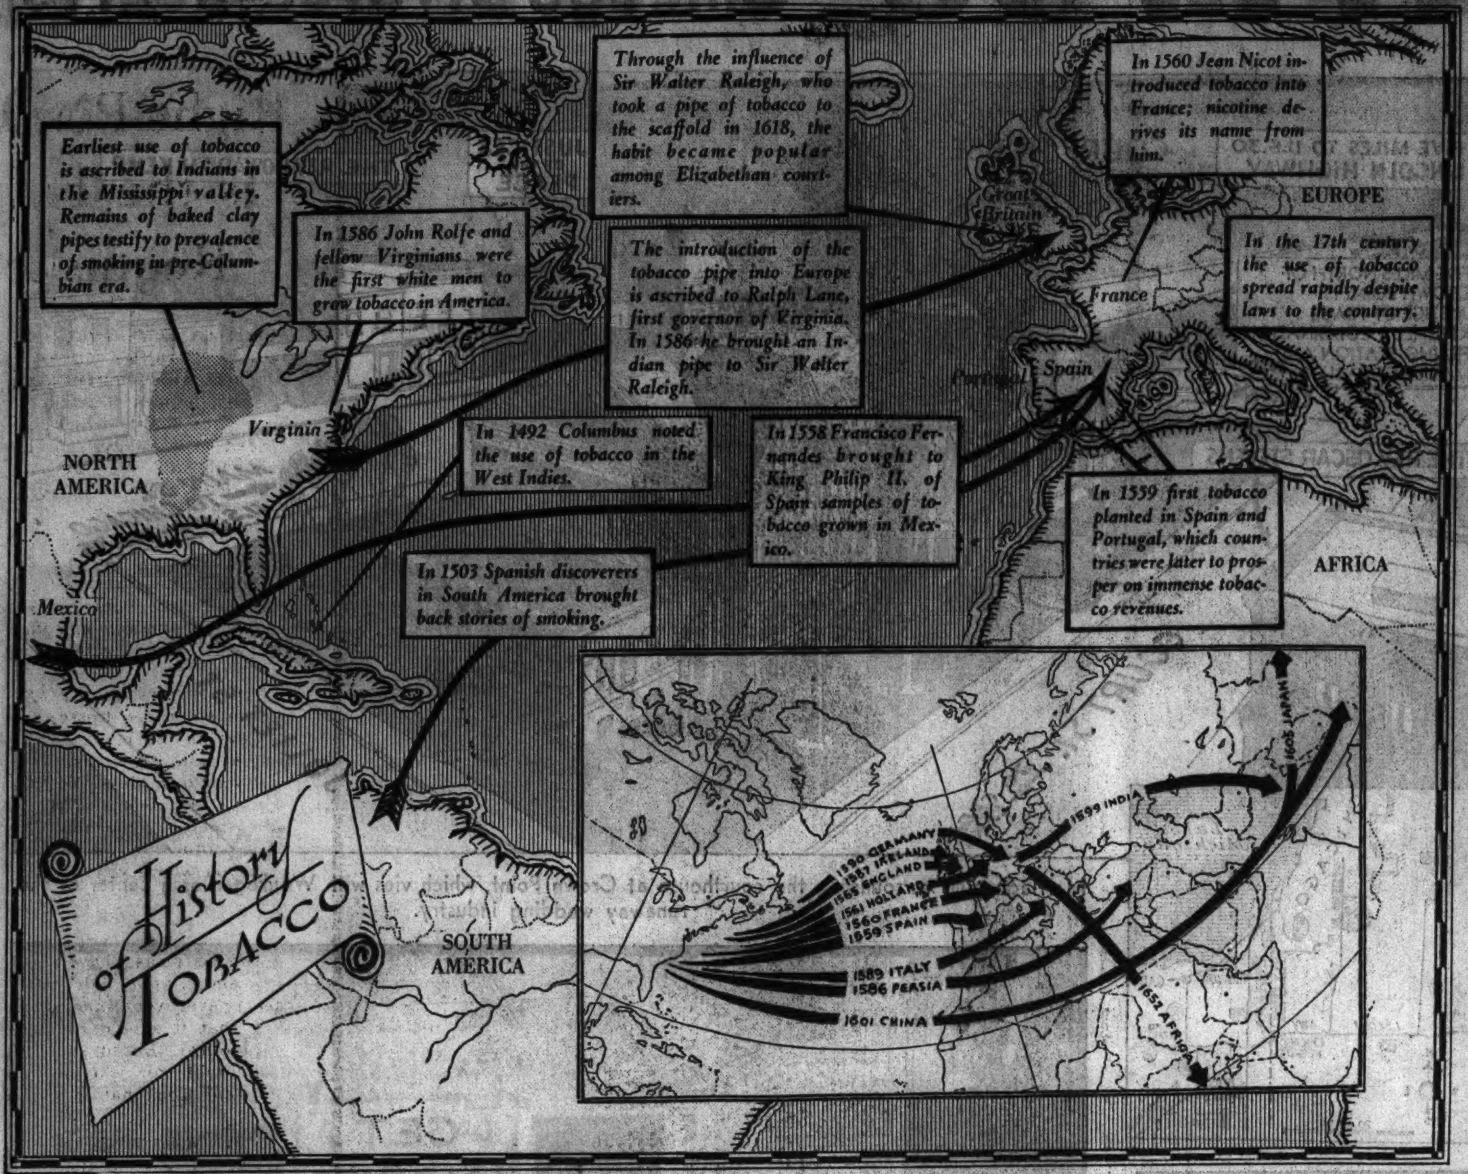
Tobacco Through the Ages



Steps in progress of tobacco from America to old world. Inset: Dates of introduction of tobacco into European and Asiatic countries.

Smoking Once Common at Church Service

By CHARLES SMUTNY

YOU wouldn't think of lighting your pipe during the Sunday morning church service. Yet smoking in church, both by the congregation and the clergyman, was practiced in many parishes far into the eighteenth century despite efforts to stop it.

Civil laws, church laws, and custom developed which regulated or forbade the use of snuff or smoking tobacco near churches. Pope Urban VIII. threatened to excommunicate anyone bringing the weed into places of worship. This law had to be repeated by Pope Innocent XII. seventy years later. In 1634 the Greek church forbade smoking among its members.

Any person found smoking on the Lord's day in Massachusetts within two miles of the meeting house, after 1669, had to pay a fine of 12 pence for each offence. Enforcement was difficult, since many officers and clergymen smoked.

Early explorers found that the Indians believed tobacco was pleasing to the Great Spirit and had power to restore and preserve health. In Europe the lore of self-medication included the inhaling of the fumes of burning herbs in the open or through tubes or pipes. Even more was claimed for tobacco than for the herbs after its introduction into the old world about the middle of the sixteenth century.

Indulgence in tobacco was at first justified as a health-preserving measure. Smoking was believed to "purge the body of grosse humours," "open all the pores and passages of the body," "warm one being cold and cool one being hot." Other beliefs were that "it quencheth thirst, and yet will make one more able and fit to drink; it abates hunger, and yet will get one a good stomach"; "it will make one rest that wants sleep, and will keep one waking that is drowsie," and similar extravagances.

During the cholera epidemic in France in 1831 the use of tobacco was said to induce immunity. To ward off illness while the great plague of 1665 was in progress in London everyone was urged to smoke. Small children were compelled to take tobacco. At Eton classes were instructed to pause and light up at frequent intervals.

Who first brought the plant to Europe is not established, nor is it certain who smoked the first pipeful. Jean Nicot, whose name remains today in nicotine, sent tobacco seeds to France about 1560. Within five years Sir John Hawkins returned to England with tobacco. Most of Europe and parts of Africa and Asia had the weed by the opening of the seventeenth century. Snuff was preferred in France for many years. The "drinking of tobacco," as smoking was termed in England, became common and later fashionable through the example of Sir Walter Raleigh.

Every schoolboy knows the legend of the drenching of Sir Walter Raleigh by his valet. This faithful fellow, for the first time seeing smoke issuing from the mouth and nostrils of his master, believed him to be afire and promptly emptied a bowl of water, ale, or beer over Sir Walter. The beverage changes as do the characters in the anecdote. Slightly varied versions are given for Richard Tarleton and others. Another Sir Walter Raleigh yarn involves a wager with Queen Elizabeth. He bet that he could weigh tobacco smoke. First he weighed a pipeful of tobacco, then smoked it and subtracted the weight of the ashes.

Among the noted users of tobacco was Field Marshal Blücher, the Prussian, who had a "pipemaster" to take care of a chest of clay pipes and to fill and light them for him.

At the battle of Waterloo this servant, Christian Hennemann, had just handed a lighted pipe to the commander, who was mounted, when a cannonball struck near by, making Blücher's horse leap frantically. The pipe was broken.

"Fill another pipe for me," said Blücher. "Keep it lighted and wait for me here a moment till I drive the French rascals away," and he dashed off.

After the battle had been won Wellington asked Blücher about his previous position on the field. The Prussian led the way to the spot. There stood Hennemann, smoking a long clay pipe, his head bound up and one hand wrapped in a handkerchief.

"Have you come at last?" grumbled the servant. "Here I have stood the whole day. One pipe after another the cursed French shot from my mouth. That is the last whole pipe, and it is a good thing the firing has ceased, otherwise the French would have knocked this one to pieces," and he handed the lighted pipe to his master.

The "drinking of tobacco" spread through every stratum of society in England by 1630. A single pipe was passed around the table in some groups, after the custom of the Indians. In fashionable circles much attention was given to art. Dandies paid "professors" for instruction in grace of motion in bringing the pipe to the lips and in exhaling through the nostrils.

The enemies of tobacco were perhaps not as numerous as were its friends. Vehemence of attacks compensated for lack of numbers. They served to advertise tobacco. Anti-tobacco literature penetrated parts of the country which had no previous knowledge of smoking. Many became curious and so learned to smoke.

Foremost among tobacco haters was King James I. of England. His "Counterblaste to Tobacco" warned his subjects that smoking was "a custom loathsome to the eye, hateful to the nose, harmful to the brain, and dangerous to the lungs."

Restrictions developed elsewhere in the first half of the seventeenth century. Despite severe penalties, these laws had no enduring success. In Russia one offense entailed a whipping; the second, execution. The nose was amputated if one indulged in a pinch of snuff. The Persians punished the tobacco seller by pouring hot lead down his throat.

While the English adopted the pipe of the North American Indian, the Spaniards followed the practice of the Caribbean islanders and South American Indians. This was to roll the tobacco in leaves of cabbage or corn to form a cigar. Cigarar was the Spanish word meaning to roll. Cigar came to signify a roll of tobacco leaves. Continental Europe, except Spain, preferred snuff, as did the Scots.

The cigaret developed in Spain. Paper served as the enveloping material, probably because of the lack of suitable leaves.

The first pipes were makeshifts—sometimes merely a reed or straw inserted in a walnut shell. Then followed small pipes of iron, silver, brass, or carved wood, yielding only a few puffs to each filling. The clay pipe early became popular in England and held favor till about eighty years ago, when the briar came into use.

Briar pipes are not made of briar. The name is a corruption of the bruyere or white heath shrub, a native of southern Europe and Algeria. Credit goes to the Austrian Count Andrassy for recognizing in the light, porous meerschaum clay a material suitable for pipe making in 1723. Vienna became the center of the art of meerschaum manufacture. Ornamental, finely carved and bejeweled meerschaums worth thousands of dollars were produced.

The great and obscure of all races and creeds hold tobacco a mutual friend. Tennyson liked his pipe, Grant his cigar, Darwin his cigaret. Washington, Longfellow, Mark Twain, Dickens, the late J. P. Morgan, Bismarck, and innumerable others used pipe, cigar, cigaret, snuff, or "eating" tobacco.

Steinmetz, the electrical genius, said, "No smoke, no Steinmetz." Robert Louis Stevenson was convinced that "If one must die or give up smoking, it were better to smoke, for there could be no sweeter death than at the hand of tobacco."

Eleven thousand cigars were sent by the pleased public to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant after he had taken Fort Donelson. Late in life he said: "Looking back at the comfort and refreshment which a cigar has given me through a pretty mixed career, mostly of hard knocks, I am free to say that even if I knew tobacco was shortening my life, it would take more than my personal desire to live to induce me to throw away my good friend here forever."

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Some 'Home Cures' O. K. for Dogs

ALTHOUGH it is good insurance for the dog owner to consult a veterinarian when a pet has some serious illness or when the owner is in doubt about the ailment, there are certain minor sicknesses which one can take care of at home.

We have found that it pays to consult a veterinarian when any of our dogs develop trouble that we cannot understand. Perhaps we are inclined to call a veterinarian too soon when anything goes wrong with our dogs, but over a period of years we have learned that it is difficult to replace a good dog (especially one trained for hunting and that has learned to act as a partner on a hunt), so we would rather take every precaution rather than delay about getting expert medical attention. Then, too, it seems good business to spend a few dollars in the treatment of an illness rather than delay and have a formidable veterinarian bill.

Finally, dogs have short lives at best. They aren't with us very long. When you get to like one and it has become a member of the family you have the desire to do everything possible to keep that dog as long as you can.

However, there are a number of simple ailments or troubles that most of us can take care of at home. For example, there are times when a dog may develop a slight irritation in its eyes. This is apt to occur to a hunting dog that has been hustling around in the weeds and grass. One can relieve this irritated condition by using one or two simple remedies. Just as a solution of boric acid is good for human eyes, so a few drops will help the dog's eyes. Usually we apply a few drops of an eye remedy that can be obtained almost anywhere.

Antiseptics sometimes are called for, because dogs will occasionally cut themselves. We have used iodine on these slight wounds after cleansing them thoroughly, but other well known noncaustic antiseptics will do.

Once in a great while some digestive or intestinal disturbance may occur which calls for a little milk of magnesia. But this is not common. Judging from some of the letters which come to us every week, there are dog owners who administer a laxative every time their dog sneezes. We'll hazard the guess that in many cases the dog is suffering from too much doctoring rather than from lack of medicine.

Cod liver oil is a good thing to have in the medicine cabinet, especially if there is a pup around the house. Although this is not a cure-all, it is a valuable ingredient of the puppy's daily ration.

Several times we have had occasion to give one of our dogs a couple of soda tablets. One pup developed a case of hiccoughs right after his evening meal. The trouble was due to a digestive disturbance. Soda quickly relieved the dog of his trouble.

Of course, we have an antiseptic and deodorant which when mixed with hot water is used to clean the dog's kennel and yard; flea powder (when the flea season comes around); a bottle of peroxide of hydrogen, which can be applied to the dog's teeth with a cloth or a cotton swab; flea soap, a bottle of pine oil (deodorant), and a few other simple items of this sort in the medicine cabinet.

Kennels, of course, must keep a supply of worm capsules for worming both pups and grown dogs when this treatment is necessary. But the average dog owner does not need an impressive list of medicines, and mighty few of us can feel we are fully qualified to diagnose every ailment in our dog.

The thing we always remember is this: The dog can't talk. He can't explain his symptoms. That's why it isn't always easy for even a veterinarian to find out what ailment a dog has. For example, we recall the experience of an owner who treated his dog at home for an intestinal trouble and then took the pup to a veterinarian. The vet immediately had an X-ray made and found a small rubber ball in the dog's stomach. And we remember the day we put hot applications on the foot of our springer spaniel because he was so lame. We thought it was a cut. When the foot became worse and we called a vet he found a tight rubber band imbedded in the dog's flesh. It was completely out of sight and slowly cutting off circulation. That sort of discouraged us as a diagnostician.

So no matter what we have in the dog's medicine cabinet, it doesn't encourage us to try too much home doctoring. We would rather play the percentages in favor of our dog by consulting a veterinarian if we are not sure about symptoms rather than wait too long at the wrong time. Dogs are remarkably hardy and can stand a lot, but there are diseases and ailments which will not permit of delay or home doctoring. Sometimes delay means either a long, stubborn fight to cure the dog or the death of the pup.

DOG NOTES

Dog owners who have just acquired a brand new pup often are puzzled about the foods which can be given. One of the common questions has to do with the advisability of feeding a ten-week-old puppy prepared food.

There are on the market a number of honestly made, nourishing prepared foods. Owners will find a complete discussion of feeding a variety of foods, including the prepared ones, in The Tribune's new handbook on dogs entitled "The Dog Book." This 92-page guide for the owner has one whole chapter devoted to feeding. The list of feeding "don'ts" in this chapter are especially helpful to the owner of a new dog.

"The Dog Book," containing many beautiful illustrations of different breeds and information on the general care of dogs, is sold by the Tribune public service offices at 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago, and in Tribune Tower. The price is 30 cents by mail or 25 cents if purchased over the counter. Mail orders should be sent direct to the public service office at 1 South Dearborn street.

A number of Chicagoland owners are planning on entering their dogs in the all-breed show sponsored by the Tri-City Kennel club March 31 and April 1. This club has members living in Davenport, Ia., and Rock Island and Moline, Ill. The show is to be staged in the New Masonic temple in Davenport. Alfred Delmont will judge. Exhibitors who want further information may write to Mrs. Forrest Treat, secretary of the club, Masonic sanitarium, Bettendorf, Ia.

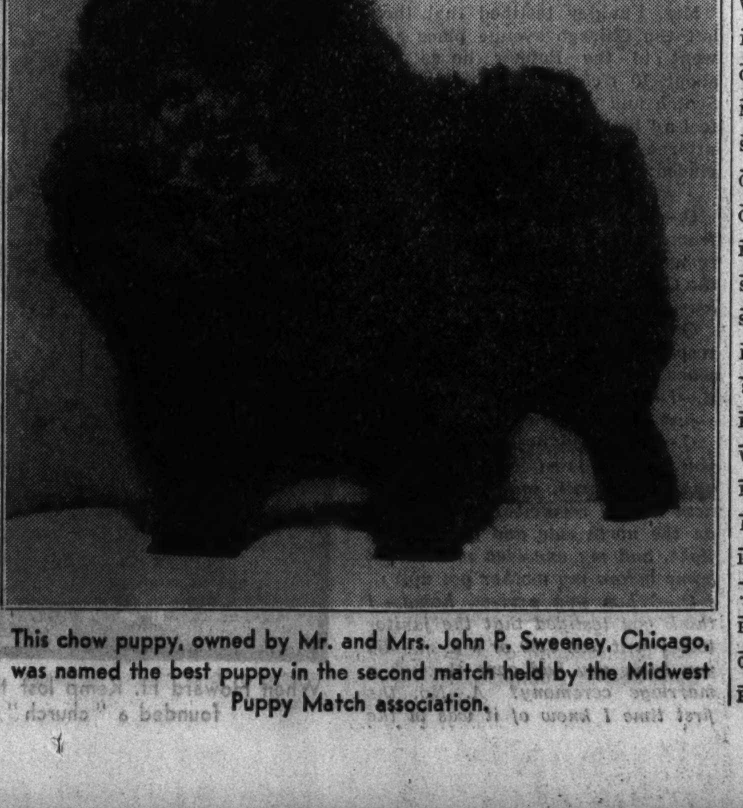
The thirty-fifth annual show of the Chicago Kennel club will be held in the Coliseum April 3, 4, and 5, according to an announcement made recently by Alex Stewart, president of the club.

The Foley Dog Show organization will have charge. A representative of this organization will have an office in a downtown building within the next two weeks.

We recently looked over a pamphlet which outlines the rules for holding obedience classes in dog shows. This is the kind of booklet that should be welcomed by any owner who wants to train his dog in obedience.

Not only does the booklet contain instructions for handlers, judges, and stewards in the show ring, but it also gives instructions to owners and handlers on several obedience tests. For example, it explains to the amateur handler how to show his dog to the best advantage. It also gives instructions on training the dog in such commands as "recall to handler," retrieving, jumping, heeling (both on and off the leash), sitting, and lying down.

Mrs. Whitehouse Walker, Carillon kennels, Bedford Hills, N. Y., who wrote the pamphlet, has submitted it to the American Kennel club for approval.



This chow puppy, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John P. Sweeney, Chicago, was named the best puppy in the second match held by the Midwest Puppy Match association.

Madam, Be Charming!

Beauty and Poise Are Yours for the Asking

Good Looks Within Grasp of the Woman Who Cares

By ELEANOR NANGLE

SOME women are born beautiful. They are blessed with perfection of face, figure, and coloring. Nature has bequeathed them taste and a flair for chic.

Time was when all the rest of us who didn't get such breaks had no course but to curl up in our shells and contemplate the beauties with wistful envy. But nowadays the "rest of us" needn't give a hoot. Beauty and charm are ours for the asking. All we need do is budget our money, develop our powers of observation and decide that individuality is a thousand times better than stereotyped perfection.

Today it's obvious that the woman who goes out for beauty can achieve it. She may rest secure in the knowledge that standards have changed and that the beauty shop, jars and bottles, and a sense of styling oneself are all she needs.

Imitation is stupidity. Individuality is style. Know your own beauty number and play it for all it's worth. Homeliness needn't exist. Once these great truths are grasped the rest is clear sailing. Some time, money, and education are needed. But isn't it worth it if you achieve good looks? And you will.

Recently, just to prove our theory that any woman can be beautiful is sound we conducted an experiment on a typical "in-betweener." Our subject was just another girl. You know the type. You meet her, you say "How do you do?" and then you get back to planning the dinner menu. You meet her again in an hour and you have to be introduced over again. She just doesn't register.

It's a tragic fate, from the beauty standpoint, to be negative or an "in-betweener." It's better, if you know how to type yourself, to be homely, provided, of course, that your very homeliness is accented by a chic that makes it dramatic.

Our subject, whom we'll call Miss X, was completely negative. Here's a picture of her: Height, about five feet seven; slender, weight about 118 pounds. The proportions weren't bad. They were just negative. And she could have done with a few inches less about the hips. She is brunette, with thick black hair, cut in a long bob. Her skin was what politely is called olive.

This picture doesn't tell the sad story of her drabness. Analyzing that, one would have to describe her faults, some of them obvious, many of them almost intangible.

We have been of the opinion that posture, more than any other quality, can make or mar the effect of good looks. This girl's posture was typical of the "in-betweener." There was no deformity, nor was there the buoyant grace that good posture gives. Her tummy was out, her shoulders hunched over. Her head was not upright on the slender column straight from her spine. It was forward, even as yours and yours and yours.

Then there was the complexion. Olive, yes, but drab. The olive-skinned woman can be dramatic looking if her skin is lively and her makeup correct. Her neck needed bleaching; it was several shades darker than the skin of her face. Her powder was too light.

Her hair, more than anything else, was unattractive. It had been permanented to death. The waves were more frequent than expert. She wore it parted in the center, flat over the crown and then hung loosely in back in a mass of curls that were not curls, but just looked tired. They hung too low. The lines lacked suavity and grooming. Under a hat her hair lacked harmony of line. The coiffure was the tail end of the Garbo hair style wave, which has done so much to destroy hair and hat harmony in this strange world.

Her hands were average, at least as to shape. They were not, in any sense, the lily white jewels that excite poets. The skin bore the obvious signs of neglect—a little dark, a little red, and far from satin smooth. Her nails had fair shape.

Her eyes are small and deep set, with brows that were heavy and scraggly. A messy brow line, perhaps more than anything else, can make a face look, in some strange fashion, just the least bit grimy.

All in all, the effect was one of unattractive drabness. The girl wasn't a beauty; neither would she frighten timid children. She was, like so many of us, just negative. Her carriage was wrong, her clothes were wrong, her makeup did nothing to dramatize her, her good features were not brought out, her bad features were accented.

Here, we knew, we had a typical "in-betweener." So we decided that we would take her in tow for some careful shopping in the beauty market.

We tackled posture first. We are strong in the belief that carriage, like money, is pretty nearly everything. And good posture, we'd have you know, is now something you can acquire in a well equipped, well supervised beauty salon. In the golden age we can hope that no child will emerge from grammar school without the invaluable habit of faultless posture, both for health and for beauty's sake. At the moment grown women of all ages need posture correction. What's pleasing to the experts is that more and more of them know they need it. This is why the body departments of various salons are coming into their own.

Miss X was taken to a Chicago salon which, under the direction of an expert, does remarkable posture correction. Incidentally, it's been proved that posture correction automatically takes care of a great many silhouette flaws. Uplifted shoulders and a straight head do much for a flat chest, which was one of our subject's drawbacks. Abdominal muscles, tightened and strengthened, make the flabby tummy a thing of the not-to-be-remembered past. The hip spread diminishes. Beauty, as well as health, are served magnificently when posture is righted and kept that way.

In the course of posture treatments some pictures of the subject's silhouette were taken. This is a salutary bit of business. The subject sees what her faults are. In the case of Miss X they were numerous. One shoulder was higher than the other. Her abdomen protruded, her chest was flat.

The attendant asked Miss X to correct her posture. This was interesting. Miss X did what most of us do when suddenly we decide we're going to stand up straight. Her chest went out in the most military fashion. Throwing it out brought her spine into a curve that threw out her hips. Her neck became a ramrod, her chin was held tense with effort.

This was so lacking in grace that the salon attendant showed Miss X how her posture faults should be corrected. This, too, was done with a photograph. The result was surprising. Her carriage became easy and graceful. Miss X, like all of us, had been using the wrong muscles to support her. Then, also like most of us, when she felt correction was in order she went still farther on the wrong track.

In this salon the understanding of what you are about and why is the first lesson. After that comes a deluge of exercises and of instruction. The course of lessons may be twelve or twenty-four, depending on one's needs. At the start the subject should have lessons a couple of times a week, because to fall back into bad habits after the first few is only human.

The exercises, as Miss X will agree, are fun. There is music to help the sense of rhythm and to make pleasant the task of stretching muscles that haven't been used for years. There is a satin mat for those taken on the floor. Because an expert supervises one does not overdo. One takes it gradually, in pleasant doses. Suddenly it becomes a delightful interval. And just as suddenly the client realizes that she is feeling better. Her workout leaves her exhilarated, full of pep.

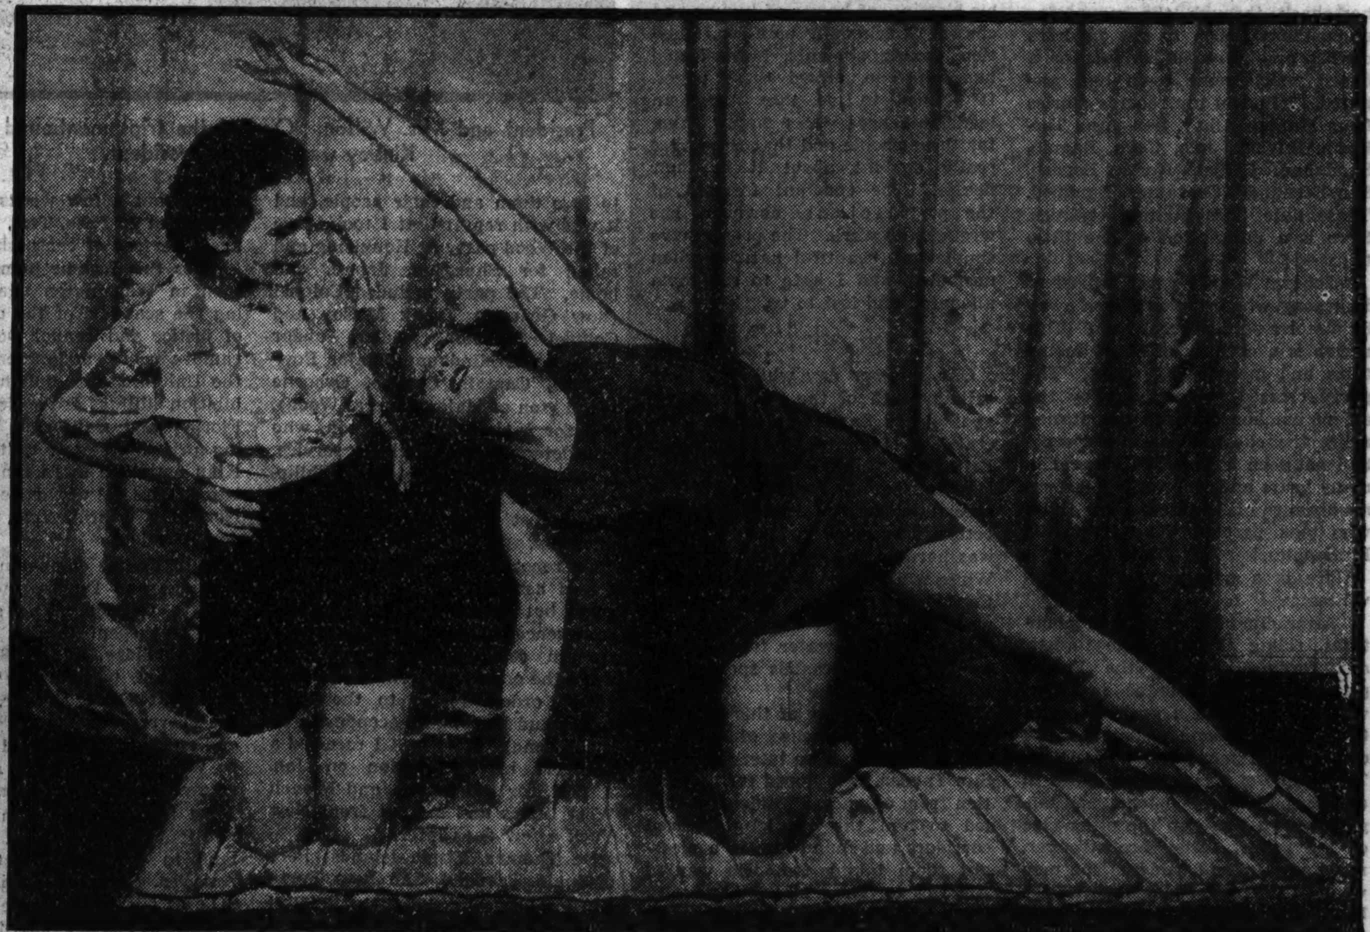
Virginia Bent, instructress in posture correction, puts Miss X through some paces. The correction of posture was an important feature of the experiment.

But best of all she is unconsciously improving her carriage. Her step is lighter, her grace noticeable, her figure gradually attains the attractive perfections of proportion. Good posture is youthful.

During the posture course the bulges that needed special attention got it. Miss X's chest line improved. Her abdomen flattened. Her head rose straight from her spine in a line that was beautifully young. Her measurements changed. It was posture that did it!



Miss Bent shows Miss X a pleasant exercise that flattens the abdomen and does wonders for the flat chest line.

We concentrated on the correction of her carriage as the first essential. The results were gratifying. We had the comforting knowledge that what was done would not soon, if ever, be undone. Good posture had become a habit, thanks to the scientific instruction.

In this age it isn't enough to rely on one quality or one feature to bring the seeker after beauty high in the lists. Miss X had other faults that needed expert attention.

We started on her face. Miss X is not a flapper. She's within winking distance of thirty. Her eyes are deep set. She smiles with them more often than not; a nice trick and an attractive one, but conducive to fine lines. In her case, some of the lines already had arrived. In cruel fashion they contributed to her tired, drab appearance. The chinline wasn't what it had been at sweet sixteen. Neither was the texture of her skin. The mottled, almost stained, neck beneath her slender face did not add to her charm.

Beneath her drabness Miss X had an element of flower-like beauty. It was hard to find when we first saw her. The frowzy hairdress and the dull-looking skin obscured it. Facials were in order—beauty treatments that could clarify the skin of her face, bleach her neck, and mold the slipping contours into firmness.

Right here is where we budgeted ourselves. We chose only treatments that were within the reach of the woman of average means. Because we were convinced it was important we spent more money on the posture course than on anything else. Now that it's over we'd still advise any woman who wants to transform herself to start there and to concentrate on it.

A course of facial treatments was undertaken to improve skin texture, to bleach, and to prevent further encroachments of fine lines.

The facial treatments were not the most expensive available. There are treatments double the price of those we chose. But we wanted an inexpensive treatment. We will describe them in detail later. They included oiling Miss X's naturally dry skin, bleaching, massage, and some expert contour control.

Another step in Miss X's transformation was a visit to an eye expert in a Chicago beauty salon. Not an oculist, you understand, or an optometrist, but a young woman with an unerring eye for the correct eyebrow line and eye makeup. There was no changing the shape of Miss X's eyes, or their size, but we knew what a little eye makeup magic could do, plus some expert arching, to make those brown eyes look larger, better spaced, and to invest them with glamor.

The first arching had an astonishing effect. The brows were not plucked to a hair line. Heaven forbid! That, incidentally, is as out of fashion as taking too many cocktails. Our eye makeup expert adheres, within artistic limits to the natural line. She improves upon it, but never destroys it. When the scragglers that marred Miss X's eyes were removed her face looked brighter and better groomed.

Right Posture Is the First Requisite

The matter of a new hair style was of tremendous importance. We had our difficulties with hairdressers to whom we submitted our subject. We had the idea of bringing out the flower-like quality which we felt lay hidden in the physical makeup of our subject. We did not want sculptured curls, or a long bob or a severely classical style.

Since this article and others to follow are written to encourage women to improve their looks and maybe, by the same token, acquire a new personality, let's talk about coiffures. Here again, imitation is stupidity. Don't be misled by what the movie stars are wearing. Choose a competent hairdresser—but don't be wax in his hands. Compromise on his skill, his knowledge of style and your own ideas. You must have some. Try them. The trial and error method of achieving the correct coiffure is wearisome, but it gets you where you want to land.

And do, please, have a little courage about your hair style. Faint heart never won a knockout coiffure. Not that it should be eccentric or impractical. But it should and can be suitable for you and just a bit different from that of the lady next door.

With Miss X we did something daring, at least in the light of her past performances. Always she had worn her black hair parted in the center, back from her brow and tossed to the winds in a mass—we'd call it a "mess"—of ringlets low on the back of her neck. We gave her bangs—loads of 'em—and lifted that line in back so that her own mother wouldn't recognize her! And—just as we'd hoped—that delicate, flower-like charm we'd hunted for was emphasized and dramatized. She was startlingly attractive! We'll go into this later, too, showing how, with the help of a stylist, a coiffure was achieved that proved a tremendous tonic to Miss X's hitherto undiscovered charm.

Manicures were in order in this transformation of Miss X. Not the ordinary scraping and scratching that make nails look clean and let matters rest there, but a scientific treatment that improved the shape of the nail and got rid of the brittleness that had been one of life's aggravations for our subject.

About makeup—we followed the trial and error method, trying first this and that until we achieved shades and shadings that were right. But such problems aren't insurmountable in this age.

The big point is that every problem in Miss X's case proved not to be a problem at all. Unless there is deformity or illness, both of which are out of the beautician's control, any woman can be made attractive in her own way. Faults can be corrected and charm achieved. Don't let any one tell you that your case is hopeless. It isn't. There is nothing to be gained running around in circles, trying everything half heartedly. There's a system to the feat of transforming yourself. It may be that the system followed with Miss X, which we will describe in detail in another article, will light the way for you.

This is the first of three articles by Eleanor Nangle on beauty possibilities for the plain woman. Succeeding articles will appear in the Graphic Section of The Sunday Tribune.

Notebook Jottings of Fifteen Interesting Years

The official party went to Malacañan, while I remained at the hotel or prowled around the fascinating old walled city and studied the changing aspects of business and political life. From this point many trips of inspection were taken in the government yacht. General Wood permitted three reporters to go along—Powell of the Associated Press, Reyes of the native press, and myself.

For six months we worked our way among the thousands of the islands of the group, finding that here was an empire in itself. It was infinitely safer than in Mexico. The people were invariably kind and almost too hospitable. It was hard sometimes after a day's ride on horseback through the mountains of northern Luzon to put on dress clothes and go to a banquet or a dance which some town had prepared. I find in my records stories from Manila, Albay, San José, Tacloban, Baybay, Jolo, Cebu, Baguio, Sandakan, British North Borneo, San Fernando, Cervantes, Bangued. These date lines became realities. Here is a description of one little trip:

"General Wood's party landed at Bugasong, where it was driven away by a storm several weeks ago. This region is a country of sharp mountains and many swift rivers. The party crossed seven rivers by the aid of bamboo rafts on its journey along the coast, where the people had not seen a governor general in many years and where their last remembrance of Americans was those who took part in the war of the Philippines."

Here is a paragraph from Cervantes:

"After climbing over high mountains, riding through pine forests, and fording streams, the Forbes party reached Bontoc province, where they found a positive desire to have Americans resume control of the government and the schools. The people of this province differ in appearance, dress, customs, and language from those on the other side of the range. They are stronger, more savage, and bolder. The men wear little straw bonnets set on the back of their heads, and they are naked except for gee strings."

From Albay: "Follow the setting sun 8,000 miles from the Golden Gate and you come to another great harbor, Port Dolores, on the island of Samar. A wide river enters the Pacific here, flowing out across the yellow beach between coconut and banana trees. There is no shipping here and no docks. Just a few fishing boats, outriggers, and a big banca loaded with red pottery for Manila answer the pulse of the tide. Under a fringe of trees a string of nipa huts can be seen. A few fishermen and groups of naked children dot the beach, and on the river banks women are squatting to their task of beating clothes with wooden paddles."

Memories of the beautiful upland pastures and forests of Mindanao, the pathetic Bogoto tribesmen caught in the toils of a Japanese land invasion in Davao, of an old man who brought me a gift of three eggs to take to the governor with his blessing, of homes of luxury and charm, of scheming politicos, ambitious young students, hopeful and happy people, crowd these pages. It seemed to me that American leadership here was a happy thing for these people and that they were really content about it in their hearts. The constant ferment of the politicians, however, has wrought its work. The people have simple and beautiful natures when unspoiled, and I hate to see them alienated and lost to us.

One summer day while we were sailing south of the Sulu archipelago toward Sandakan, where General Wood wanted to see how the British ran things, I received a wireless message to come home for a special job on the Pacific coast. I returned as soon as I could, but it was hard to make ship connections. While waiting for a ship I went to Canton and spent two or three days wandering around those incredible streets and the water front, where hundreds of thousands spend their lives on sampans.

I took advantage of this opportunity and the presence of a friend with a pull to get an interview with Sun Yat-sen, who hoped for recognition from our new President. I was led to him through long covered corridors and found him in a pleasant room taking tea. He wanted America to take a strong hand with Japan and to help China. If it did not, he said, it would have to fight Japan later. He was pessimistic regarding the Washington arms conference that was then being planned.

To know the Philippine Islands is to love them and their people, and it was with regret that I took leave of the Wood party at Hongkong and sailed for Shanghai, Japan, and home. The party included Colonel (now General) Frank McCoy and Colonel Johnston, soldiers under Pershing in Mindanao; Major Bowditch, Captain Candee, Orborne Wood (son of Major General Wood), and for a time Ray Atherton, who was detached from Chinese service. I was not to return to the Philippines again until 1932, when I found things just about the same fundamentally.

On reporting for duty in Chicago I was assigned not to the Pacific coast but to the Washington arms conference, where I reported the far eastern section conferences. Toward the end of the conference I received orders to go to the West Indies and investigate economic and social conditions there. I received a passport in Washington on Jan. 4, 1922, for the British and French West Indies and set out from New York a few days later.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands; Port of Spain, Trinidad; San Juan, Porto Rico; Kingston, Jamaica; Havana; Bridgetown, Barbados; Caracas, Venezuela, are some of the date lines of that trip, which unfolded one of the most delightful parts of the world, with a different civilization and problem on each island. The Myrtle Bank hotel at Jamaica recalled a breakfast scene there two years before with members of the Harding party, including some who were afterward to go down in history as the "Ohio gang" that betrayed the too trusting President.

Jess Smith, who later killed himself or was killed in Washington, was in his glory on that trip. Once he was permitted to give a special dinner party to "the duchess," as Mrs. Harding was called, on board the S. S. Pastores, en route to Panama.

While at this same hotel a month or so later on this trip I received orders to proceed to Mexico for another series of stories. It seems on the map only a little jump across the gulf to Mexico, but the trouble was there were no boats sailing for a month. So I had to go to Porto Rico and connect with a Havana boat to New York and travel overland to Mexico, dropping in at home for a few days and presenting my chief with a bottle of Jamaica rum, which placated him somewhat for the delay and expense.

This second Mexican trip was during the short-lived Obregon régime, when Calles was coming into power. I interviewed both these chieftains and traveled to the larger cities, coming out a few weeks later and writing at El Paso, Tex., in order to again be free of censorship.

After this I came home and was soon in Washington again, reporting the scandals of the department of justice and Teapot Dome. Then came various assignments around the United States, delving into prohibition killings from New York to Florida and California, investigating prison systems, writing of the Klan activities in Indiana and Alabama, the trial of the Rev. J. Frank Norris in Austin, Tex., and other domestic jobs.

In 1924 came campaign trips with Coolidge and Dawes, then another trip to Canada. The summer of 1927 was spent in the Black hills with Coolidge, and 1928, after the convention, was largely devoted to President Elect Hoover. He took the correspondents to California and suddenly announced there that he was going to South America. I received orders to accompany him.

We left San Pedro in November and journeyed on the U. S. S. Maryland to the west coast of South America. Stops were made at Costa Rica, Nicaragua, where General McCoy came on board; Panama, where the President gave a banquet, then up the river to Guayaquil, where everybody was given an Ecuador hat. At Antofagasta, Chile, we were met by a Chilean warship and escorted into the harbor of Valparaiso. Here began a round of official and formal affairs which continued in Santiago.

A special government train took the party across the Andes and another train from Mendoza took us to Buenos Aires. Here a side trip was made to Montevideo. Mr. Hoover conferred with financial and economic experts on the way and began the practice of giving a little lecture on shipboard for the correspondents' background of information, taking up the situation in each country as he learned it under these hasty conditions. It is a peculiar fact that not one of the governments in power when he passed through survives today. But despite these revolutions, which are a method of election in South America, the life of the people has been remarkably peaceful and fairly prosperous.

In November of 1929, while the naval conference was in preparation in London, my chief gave me a unique assignment.

"Go over to England," he said, "and find out how the English of all classes live and what they are thinking about."

I sailed on an English boat, by his direction, from Montreal to the pool of London. There I entered an English hotel and mingled with Englishmen for weeks. I lived with an ex-butler in a Bloomsbury lodging house, in cheaper hotels for English clerks, and wandered to my heart's content around the old city hallowed by memories of Dickens. I visited the Five Towns of Arnold Bennett's stories, the Manchester mill district, the London and Liverpool docks and factories, and finally lived a week in a typical English village and visited Oxford. After this I began to write. When the series was done I spent a week in Paris on my way home, which I reached in February.

The year 1932 marked a tour of nearly 40,000 miles by rail and on thirteen different ships. I was in Pineville, Ky., investigating the miners' troubles when I received orders to return at once to Chicago. I was assigned to proceed to Honolulu to cover the Massie murder trial. This provided one of the most interesting three months of all these years. The story itself involved a study of backgrounds, and while waiting for the trial to begin I visited the other islands of the group, particularly Hawaii, and wrote about them and their people.

In May of that year, toward the close of the Massie case, I was ordered to Australia to cover the threatened civil war between the Laborites, led by Lang, and the conservatives. This meant a three weeks' journey, another crossing of the equator, an especially interesting stop at Suva, and a landing at Auckland. As things were getting hot in Australia, I went on there at once, recrossing the Tasman sea later to New Zealand.

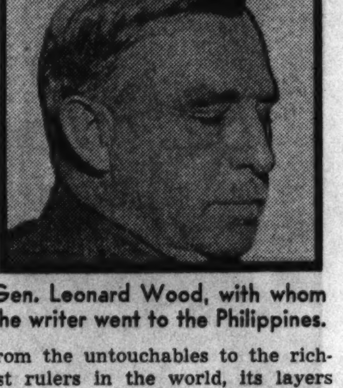
Australia, with its great cities and desert interior, its democratic ways and American atmosphere, was studied for a month. Then New Zealand's mountains and valleys and neat villages formed an unforgettable picture. While at Auckland the second time I received orders to come home around the world. This was later amended to include a trip to the Philippines, which involved another three weeks' sea voyage through the golden barrier reef country around Queenstown, the British Borneo country, and many unnamed and lovely islands on the way north to Manila.

A few weeks in Manila, then south again to Singapore, with side trips to Sumatra and Java on the immaculate Dutch ships. Back to Singapore and then east to Ceylon and Bombay. India itself deserves a long chapter in any man's memoirs. It is restless on the surface, yet with a deep and unyielding secret of peace.

I traveled the pilgrim path to Agra and Benares, saw the Taj Mahal by moonlight, visited Gandhi in Poona prison, and spent a week around the ruins and the new glories of old Delhi. I met Tagore, talked with Indian gentlemen, Parsee merchants, revolutionists, government officials, and the untouchables.

It is said that no one who ever goes to Asia returns the same man or woman. Travel anywhere, of course, opens new vistas of consciousness, lighting up parts of the mind that have been dim and confused. I have found that during the first three days in a new country one can write the best impressionistic story about it. This is not an effort at interpretation or any presentation of social value, perhaps, but it gives those at home the feeling of strange things that may come to them.

It is difficult now to recall details and impressions, but of all the lands visited India remains as the most vivid and fascinating. Its vast pantheon of strange gods displayed at Benares, its social lines ranging from the untouchables to the richest rulers in the world, its layers of human history, romantic, cruel, and terrible, the peace that seems to abide there, all defy description. A story from Jaipur, Oct. 16, 1932, gives this suggestion of what one finds:



Gen. Leonard Wood, with whom the writer went to the Philippines.

"India flowers occasionally in magnificence as the product of its humble, unchanging village life. After a hundred miles of semi-desert and irrigated sections, where men in dirty turbans guide white bullocks and wooden plows and Ruth in scarlet headdress gathers the leavings in the field of Boaz, Jaipur rises against the evening sky in pink splendor with the unreality of a fairy book picture.

"All the little trickles of trade and land rentals, the ill-requited labor of centuries, the long, dark bondage of the poor, flourishes here in castle and temple, wide streets with fancy façades, summer homes on the mountains, parks, fountains where there are more pigeons than at St. Mark's, and, as always and everywhere in this land, the shady English cantonment, far from the noise and dirt of the bazar.

"Jaipur has an English college on the main street, also a Sanscrit college. It has courts of justice instead of the old royal decisions where unfaithful servants were tossed to the alligators. But the alligators are still there, winking sleepy eyes in a stagnant pond back of the king's palace, waiting for something. And the state elephants sway gently in their stables waiting for the next parade, when they will pull the maharajah and his women in their golden coach.

"There is a palace for the women in the great courtyard. The king has a seven-story palace with many porches and turrets. When he awakens in the morning he looks across the court to his temple where Vishnu sits, ruling the world with love. The common people enter by a rear gate and are allowed to worship here. Women prostrate themselves and kiss the pavement as soon as they touch the sacred stones.

"Outside the gates sit a group of sadhus, holy men who have covered their naked bodies with ashes and who just sit and wait for the spirit to rule them out of all desire and for the people to feed them. Their faces are so painted with caste marks that they resemble circus clowns, but these are very holy men who never smile. Back of the temple the Brahmin priests are saying their morning devotions in low, singsong murmur.

"There is a gold and flower painted special hall of audience for the king to receive the resident and other notables; another hall for him to watch his dancing girls; acres of private gardens, lagoons, and fountains; secretarial buildings, courts—a touch of today amid the medieval, for this is a walled city, and the king has cellars full of gold and jewels, a throne, and everything the fairy book says.

"The dusty roads leading into the city are crowded with early morning trafic, bringing a wealth of harvest. Creaking, wooden-wheeled bullock carts, trains of laden camels, women with huge bundles balanced on their heads; women in white purdah, looking like Halloween costumes; common women in clinking silver anklets, with bits of gold stuck in the side of one nostril or a bangle of gold hanging between nose and upper lip, their dresses leaving the body bare around the middle of the waist."

While at Jaipur planning an elephant ride I received new orders. Things were fermenting in Japan, and I was to go there and investigate. I left Bombay as soon as possible and reached Japan by Hongkong and Shanghai about chrysanthemum time. Contrary to my expectations, the Japanese were very incurious about my visit. There was no censorship. I could write as I pleased. They were always polite, and one Japanese steamship gentleman went to great trouble to see that I got around Osaka. Here and at Tokio, Kobe, and the old temple towns I spent a month or so, then sailed for Honolulu and picked up the threads of the political situation there.

In 1934 I was ordered to Canada, Mexico, and Central and South America on an investigation of new export trade possibilities for America. From Sao Paulo, the Chicago of South America, I received instructions to fly home. This brought me up the east coast in a few days, with stops at all the chief cities, either for passengers or to spend the night. These Clipper ships of the South American fleet fly only in daytime and always over water. There were stops at the British, Dutch, and French colonies, a view of Devil's Island, a night in old Trinidad, a night in San Juan, and the next day the welcome sky line of Miami came into view.

This trade trip yielded many stories and suggestions of interest to American business men and also a series of travel description stories, ranging from the snows of Canada to the jungles of the Amazon country. In Canada a movement to revive reciprocity in trade was started. In Mexico it was noted that the former leaders of the "revolution" had now become conservatives, rich landowners, traders. A new section for these new rich had grown up in the hills on the edge of the city.

In both these countries, as well as in the South American countries, a well defined movement toward self-sustainment was found. The walls were going higher and higher against importations of goods. In each country new factories were starting up to supply goods formerly supplied by the United States. Each country, however, needed more foreign trade, just as the United States did. How to reconcile these two elements was the great problem, together with that of exchange, which officials were everywhere trying to solve.

In the Central and South American ports, as well as in Mexico, the greatest trade problem discovered was the influx of Japanese goods. The Japanese government, which works closely with its banks and merchants, just as the English government does, was engaged in cultivating new trade outlets and friendships with the aid of diplomatic and business missions which were leisurely making their way through the Latin American countries, undercutting all competition.

One gains a new idea of the far-flung activities of this empire. Not only in South America, but everywhere in the orient, the same activity is found. There is a street in the capital of Java that looks like a street in Japan. The Dutch, the English, the Americans face the same problem. The economic law that the people will buy the cheapest goods works here against the efforts of nations to build their own industries.

This effort of nations to become self-sustaining works against their desperate need to create an outlet for the surplus of those things which they produce in greatest quantity. It all forms a sort of circle, and no clear answer is found.

The things that were seen were gone forever. What abides is the essence and knowledge of them, which takes form in new contacts. Some day the wandering atom may become a beam of light.

From 1914 until his death in 1918 he saw active service with the Canadian army medical corps.

IN FLANDERS FIELDS

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead; short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

Japan Tightens Grip on East

WHETHER Japan's imperial expansion policy will be halted or advanced by the recent military revolt in Tokio is a matter of grave concern to many nations. It has long been world opinion that the militarists aim to dominate the government. Should they at any time succeed, it is believed the army would quickly start new and fiercer drives for the conquest of territory on the Asiatic mainland. Such a move, it is held, may well be the beginning of a new world war.

Although there was a Japanese invasion of Corea as far back as 1592 (the army was recalled a few years later) the first step in the modern policy of grabbing the lands of others took place in 1894. Corea again was the target.

Rebellion had broken out in that country and China and Japan both sent armies into the territory. When the uprising was quelled the Japanese ignored the fact that China nominally controlled the area and her armies remained. War between China and Japan resulted. Japan won and set up in Corea the first of its puppet states, though it was not until 1910 that she formally took over the territory and made it her own. It also was as a result of this victory over China that she acquired Formosa and the Pescadores islands, the latter lying between Formosa and the mainland.

Other powers had important interests in the orient and this led to a certain amount of friction. Japan realized that it would be necessary to make treaties and an alliance was made with Great Britain as to some of the territory involved. In Manchuria, however, there was a different situation. The South Manchuria railroad had been built by Russia, which had sent soldiers to guard the lines. Russia also had strongly fortified Port Arthur. Japan proposed that the czar withdraw troops and sign an agreement giving an equality in trading and other rights in an independent Manchuria. Russia refused and war was the result.

Japan, although victorious, was bitterly disappointed at what she received under the treaty of Portsmouth in 1905. Her portion was the South Manchuria railroad, the Russian lease of the Liaotung peninsula, the Russian concessions in Manchuria, Karafuto, the southern half of Sakhalin island, and a small money indemnity.

Except for the formal taking over of Corea in 1910 the Japanese, so far as territorial expansion is concerned, were quiescent until the world war. As the eastern member of the allies she assumed the protection of all allied interests in the orient and captured the city of Tsingtao, in Shantung province, which was controlled by Germany. Although Japan withdrew from Shantung at the conclusion of the war, the league of nations, in 1920, gave her mandates over German controlled islands in the Pacific north of the equator, the Marianas and the Carolines.

Japan's annexation of Manchuria was a quiet process which at first drew no great attention. Following the world war her military forces in the territory were gradually increased.

Then, in 1932, Japan found an excuse. Banditry! And so by force of arms, this vast, rich area was torn from China—a land highly important to the mikado's realm because of its supply of raw materials—principally iron and coal—and the puppet state of Manchukuo was set up.

In the last two years Japan has furthered her grip on eastern Asia by forcible expansion throughout the five northern Chinese provinces of Shantung, Hopeh, Shansi, Suiyuan, and Chahar—this seizure closely following the occupation of Jehol.

Yankees Help Rule England

Occupy Seats in Houses of Parliament

By DAVID DARRAH
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

London, England.

TO H. L. MENCKEN'S philological studies on "The English Branch of the American Language" there might now be added another political volume on the American branch of the British parliament. Strange as it may seem, there is a veritable American colony in the house of commons and the house of lords.

Technically they are no longer aliens. The ones who were born Americans have been naturalized British, and the others who were born British have managed to survive their American proclivities brought about by long residence in and close connections with the United States.

Study of the genealogies of parliamentary personalities, in fact, reveals that three members of the house of commons, namely, Lady Nancy Astor, Henry ("Chips") Channon, and Ronald Tree, were born American citizens, as were two members of the house of lords, the earls of Portsmouth and Exmouth. Besides that, around a score of members of parliament and nearly fifty peers entitled to occupy portions of the red plush covered benches of the house of lords have close connections with the United States either by descent—that is, having one parent American—or else through marriage.

The rush, which reached its peak in the late nineties, to link up titles with dollars resulted in the British peerage being especially redolent of American associations.

The Astor family and Ronald Tree stand out in the minds of most Britishers as Americans who "made" the house. But there are others.

Direct descendants of the first viscount and the former Mary Dahlgren Paul of Philadelphia, the present Viscount Astor has a lonely job guarding the solitary family outpost in the house of lords. By contrast his wife, the indomitable Lady Nancy, daughter of the late Chiswell Dabney Langhorne of Greenwood, Va., and first woman M. P. to sit in the imperial parliament, has legions at her command.

The Astors make parliamentary history in the size of their representation in the lower house. All are conservatives, and in addition to Lady Nancy they include her son, William Waldorf Astor; her brother-in-law, Maj. J. J. Astor; Lieut. Col. Herbert Spender-Clay, husband of Pauline Astor, daughter of the first viscount, and her son-in-law, Lord Willoughby de Eresby, who married Miss Nancy Phillis Astor.

Another conservative M. P. linked with the Astor clan is Ronald Tree, who married Nancy, eldest daughter of Moncure Perkins of Richmond, Va., a niece of Lady Astor and the widow of Henry Field of Chicago. His mother, only daughter of Marshall Field of Chicago, became Lady Beatty, wife of the famous British seaman, after a divorce from Arthur Tree, who in turn was the son of a famous Chicagoan, Judge Lambert Tree. Ronald Tree served in the United States air service in 1917-'18 and was managing editor of Forum Magazine, New York, from 1922 to 1926. His stepbrother is Viscount Borodale, Lord Beatty's heir.

The earl of Exmouth, whose mother was an American girl. He was a distinguished chemist in the United States before he assumed his title.

Popular Henry ("Chips") Channon, member for Southend-on-Sea, provides a further tie with the middle west. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Channon of Chicago. Channon, who is now a naturalized British subject, combines politics with authorship, and several of his books command a ready sale in America. In 1933 he was married to Lady Honor Guinness, eldest daughter of the earl of Iveagh. Channon is a close friend of H. J. Duggan, former civil lord of the admiralty, son of the widow of the late Marquis Curzon of Kedleston and her former husband, Alfred Duggan of Buenos Aires. Lady Curzon was the daughter of the late J. Monroe Hinds of Alabama.

Among M. P.'s with American parents on one side of the family tree the most outstanding are: Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the opposition liberals, whose mother was the daughter of M. Sands of New York; Hamilton William Kerr, financial secretary to the treasury since 1934, the son of Henry S. Kerr of Long Island, New York; Maj. John Arthur Herbert, only son of the late Sir Arthur Herbert and Helen Louise Gammell of Providence, R. I., and Sir Brograve Campbell Beauchamp, whose mother, the former Betty Campbell, daughter of the late Archibald Woods, hailed from Columbus, O.

Whatever American aces the commons may produce from its political pack, however, can be easily trumped by the lords. From the American point of view perhaps the most outstanding figures in that august assembly of cocked hats and flowing robes are the earls of Portsmouth and Exmouth, both of whom renounced their allegiance to Uncle Sam for the sake of titles.

Portsmouth, one-time ranch hand and expert bronco buster, better known in the United States as Oliver Wallop, is reputed to be the largest landowner in Britain. In addition he still possesses a 3,000-acre ranch at the foot of the pine-covered slopes of the Big Horn mountains in Wyoming, where he spent 42 years of his life.

As a young man Oliver Wallop migrated to America bent on a life of adventure. Starting out as a hired hand on a Wyoming ranch, he steadily forged ahead to success. His varied experiences include the post of a deputy sherif and member of the Wyoming legislature, in which he served two years. He gained distinction as a breeder of fine polo ponies and live stock and as an artisan in ranch costruction and operation.

In 1897 he married Marguerite Walker, daughter of the late S. J. Walker of Chicago, and in 1906 became an American citizen. His brother, the seventh earl, died twenty years later, whereupon Oliver, at the age of 72, decided to place his chaps in mothballs, revert to his former nationality, and take up the title and estates as the eighty-ninth ranking peer of England. It was not until 1933, however, after the necessary five years' residence in England, that the former rancher-legislator became naturalized and was able to take his seat in the house of lords.

His two sons are married to Americans. Viscount Lymington, heir to the title, who is a farmer and director of the Portsmouth Estates, Ltd., married in 1920 Mary Lawrence, daughter of W. K. Post of Bayport, Long Island. His second son, Oliver Malcolm Wallop, is the husband of Jean Moore of New York. Malcolm lives at the Big Horn home, where he is carrying on the "ranching Wallop" tradition.

"A Romance of the Peerage" was how the British press greeted Viscount Exmouth's accession to the title. As seventh viscount he succeeded his father, a naturalized American, in 1923, but was unable to blossom out as a fully fledged peer until he was admitted to British nationality in 1931.

His father, who emigrated to the United States at an early age, took an active part in American public life for many years and married an American girl, Miss Elizabeth Jay of Bedford, N. Y. Shortly before his death at the venerable age of 95 he expressed a wish that his son should renounce his American citizenship and stake his claim to the title.

It was to conform with this desire that the present viscount gave up his activities in America, where he had established a reputation as a distinguished chemist, and journeyed to England. In 1923, shortly after his father's death, he married Miss Mabel Gray, daughter of the late Richard Gray, demonstrator in chemistry at Columbia university. Viscount Exmouth is widely known as a leading authority on dyes and still retains his membership in the American Chemical society and the New York Academy of Sciences.

In contrast to the earls of Portsmonth and Exmouth are Milords Carbery and Cowley. The former cares so little for his baronial trimmings that he has changed his name to plain Mr. Carberry and spends a great part of his time in California.

Cowley is better known to the world by his stage name, Arthur Wellesley. He resides at McEwen ranch, Carson City, Nev., and has been twice married. His first wife was Mae Pickard, an American actress, from whom he obtained a divorce at Reno in 1933. In the same year he married Mary Elsie Himes, Reno night club hat check girl.

Another British peer who cares little for convention is the duke of Manchester, who has figured in many rôles during his checkered career. He married the daughter of Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati. Five years ago she divorced him. His mother, who died in 1909, was before her marriage Consuelo Yznaga, daughter of Señor Antonio Yznaga De Valle of Louisiana.

Not all peers—in fact, very few of them—are as conscientious in their legislative duties as the Laborite Baron Strabolgi. Eldest son of the ninth baron and Lady Florence, fifth daughter of George Buchanan Cooper of Sacramento City, Cal., Lord Strabolgi made a name for himself commanding British battleships during the war.

American parentage on one side may also be claimed by Lords Cheylesmore, Fairfax, Harcourt, Shaughnessy, Suffolk, and Tankerville.

The Suffolks trace back to the sixteenth century. The nineteenth earl, father of the present holder of the title, was killed in action in 1917. In 1904 he married Marguerite Hyde, daughter of the late Levi Z. Leiter of Chicago.

Presiding genius of the vast organization controling public transport within the greater London area is Lord Ashfield, one-time messenger boy for the Detroit Street Car company. During the last thirty years Ashfield has lifted London transportation out of the shadow of bankruptcy and coördinated it into an ordered whole. To achieve this he drew heavily on the fruits of his twenty years' experience in the United States.

A native of Derby, he was taken by his parents to live in Detroit at the age of 11. He attended American schools and when barely 14 started work as a messenger. Within five years he had become manager of the Detroit street car system. From there he advanced finally to the position of general manager of the American Electric Railways.

In 1904 he married an American girl, Grace Woodruff, daughter of Edward Lowrey Woodruff of New York. Within a year or so he decided to return to England to nurse to health some of Britain's ailing transport services.

World Honor Paid Name of Watt

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

THIS year we celebrate the bicentennial of the birth of James Watt, the man who started the machine age. Watt was born in 1736 in the town of Greenock in Scotland. He was the son of a merchant who had experienced the affliction, not yet entirely eradicated from among us, of having lost his fortune in unwise speculation.

Young Watt at first showed little promise of being other than an additional burden to his harassed father. He was, according to accounts, decidedly backward in school and showed little interest in following a mercantile career. Instead he liked to hang around his workbench making mechanical toys, including, it is said, a windmill using a captive mouse for motive power. A workman who had watched the boy informed the father that it would be a shame to waste such skilled hands by educating the head.

So the elder Watt, despairing of making a scholar or merchant of James, sent him to London in 1755 to learn a mechanic's trade. Two years later the young man moved to Glasgow. Unable to obtain regular work because of a technical failure to complete his apprenticeship, he was finally given employment as an instrument maker for the university.

Here his mechanical skill brought him into intellectual contact with the scientific members of the faculty, which included James Black, one of the world's greatest physicists. From these men Watt avidly absorbed all the learning available on such subjects as directly concerned machines. He was thus superbly equipped with skill, knowledge, and imagination when the golden opportunity came to him one day in 1764 in the form of a request to repair a Newcomen engine.

The description of this machine may give the reader the impression that there were steam engines before Watt's time. This is true. Watt's discovery was the first engine capable of supplying power to industry in general. But if we define a steam engine as any mechanical arrangement that converts heat into the energy of motion through the agency of steam, then Watt was antedated by nearly 2,000 years.

Prior to the Christian era Greek scientists at Alexandria had devised a couple of instruments in which wheels were revolved by jets of steam, making use of the same principle applied to the present-day turbines. But these machines were nothing more than toys.

During the latter part of the seventeenth century an Englishman named Savery invented a steam-driven pump to remove water from mines. This machine is shown diagrammatically in Figure 1. Let us imagine the cylinder A full of water. The valve B is opened by hand, allowing the entry of steam from a boiler. The steam pressure closes the check valve D and opens that at C, forcing the water out through the latter. When all of the water has been blown out, B is closed and a stream of cold water is poured over the cylinder. This condenses the steam, and the resulting vacuum closes C and sucks water from the mine into the cylinder through D.

The faults of the machine are obvious. Most of the steam fed into the cylinder was promptly condensed to water. Thus most of the heat supplied by the fuel went to warming the water uselessly and very little to lifting it.

About 1705 Newcomen invented the engine shown in Figure 2. The valve A is opened when the piston is at the bottom of its stroke. This allows steam to enter the cylinder, forcing the piston upward, or rather allowing it to be lifted by the counterweighted beam. At the top of the stroke the steam is shut off and a jet of cold water is injected at B. This condenses the steam, causing a vacuum, and the air pressure on the outside pushes the piston back down, raising the load attached to the other end of the beam. In the first engines of this type the valves were operated by hand, but after a number of years a youthful operator named Potter, as ingenious as he was lazy, rigged up a complicated arrangement of strings to open and shut the valves automatically and leave him free for idle pursuits.

In the Newcomen engine the alternate heating and cooling of the cylinder led to an appalling waste of fuel. Consequently the machine was useful only in pumping water from coal mines, where a large supply of cheap fuel was always available. This was the engine that Watt was called upon to repair.

It was no trouble for Watt to fix the damaged engine, but the incident set him to thinking about correcting the faults inherent in its design. He wished to keep the cylinder constantly hot to avoid waste of fuel; yet since the very nature of the engine required that the steam be condensed at a lower temperature, the problem seemed unsolvable.

The solution occurred to him while he was out walking one Sunday. The desired effect could be achieved by causing the steam to pass from the cylinder into a separate vessel for condensation. This modification, along with several others, was patented in 1769. The principle of Watt's first engine is illustrated in Figure 3.

When the piston reaches the top of the cylinder, as shown in the figure, valves A and C are opened and B is closed. Steam from the boiler flows in above the piston, while the steam below it is sucked through C into the water-cooled, evacuated condenser, where it is liquefied. This condensation maintains the vacuum. It is the difference in pressure between the steam above and that below the piston that supplies the motive power to the engine.

When the piston reaches the bottom of its stroke a lever fastened to the beam opens B and closes A and C. The opening at B equalizes the pressure on both sides of the piston so that the counterweight on the other end of the beam raises the piston to the top of the cylinder. During this interval the inclosed steam has passed through B to the space below the piston, and the engine is ready to repeat the cycle.

Watt began to manufacture his steam engines in 1755 in partnership with a London business man named Matthew Boulton. The partners quickly prospered, and Watt steadily improved the machines. By 1782 he had discovered the principle of shutting off the steam before the piston stroke was completed, so that part of the work might be done by the expansion of the steam already in the cylinder.

He devised a double-action engine in which the steam intake and the exhaust are reversed at the completion of the downward stroke, so that the piston is pushed back to its original position by steam rather than lifted back by a counterweight. He made use of a connecting rod and crank so that the back-and-forth movement of the piston could be converted to a rotary motion, and to this he added a flywheel to equalize such motion.

Yet it is not altogether surprising to learn that a genius like Watt possessed certain limitations. Apparently he failed to realize the possibilities of high-pressure steam, although such a development now appears to be a most obvious deduction from his work. Then, too, he definitly rejected the idea of using the steam engine as a source of power for locomotion.

The importance of Watt's inventions lies in the fact that an efficient source of power, adaptable to a wide variety of uses, was made available at the same time that machines for large-scale textile production appeared. The result was that factories sprang up like mushrooms all over northern England and the world was launched on its industrial adventure.

Airplanes and Air Transportation

British Find Night Flying Perilous

By WAYNE THOMIS

ENGLAND'S royal air force in a series of winter maneuvers begun Feb. 18 discovered exactly what was so bitterly brought home to American military pilots during the New Deal air mail fiasco here in February and March, 1934—namely, that all-weather flying can be accomplished safely only by specially trained pilots in machines equipped with the latest radio and avigational aids.

The British called off their mimic air war within a few hours after it started when two planes crashed and six lives were lost. It cost the lives of twelve young American airmen and the loss of more than twenty specialized army planes, of which there already was a derth, to bring President Roosevelt and the postoffice department to the realization that army pilots generally have only "fair weather" flying experience.

Winter in England, always is accompanied by rain and fog. A peculiarity of English fog is its thickness and its tendency to extend right down to the ground. In the past all military flying has been suspended during such weather, authorities apparently feeling that heavily loaded machines, which must be carefully flown even during the best conditions, should not be abroad at such times.

Fighters back at airdrome following an "attack."

Until recent years even the commercial services in stable, slow-landing machines were halted during a large portion of the winter months. In the last two years, however, commercial pilots have been learning instrument flying and now generally fly under all conditions except those of severe snow or ice.

In England, as in the United States, the demands of military flying have been such that little time was available for teaching men to operate machines by instruments only. Gunnery, bombing, photography, tactical flying, etc., occupied all the time allotted to training and even squadron operations.

Then came the summer of 1935 and the sudden realization by the English parliament and people that their air force, which must defend the islands from attack by sky raiders in event of war, was pitifully weak. Expansion was begun. This was followed by a demand for tactics against theoretical enemies.

A squadron of "enemy" planes took off to bomb certain industrial areas of London. A network of listening posts and searchlight crews with anti-aircraft guns was to locate the raiders, and intercepters were to cut them off if possible. A coastal reconnaissance squadron was patroling the channel. All operations began shortly after 8 p. m.

The weather was bad, with high winds, low ceiling, and a thick overcast. In the midst of the exercises a bootless man, Sergeant Pilot Charles A. Deakin, staggered into Tangmere airdrome, a bomber station, to report that the machine he had been flying had smashed into Beacon hill, two miles away. Three others in his crew were dead, a searching party discovered. A few minutes after Deakin made his report a wireless message to cease flying was dispatched to all ships.

This message was received by Flying Officer Robert Page in one of the coastal reconnaissance cabin monoplanes, but he was unable to obey. Lost in the mist, with no idea of his position, he cruised about until his tanks ran dry. The ship settled into the sea a mile off Le Havre, France. Page swam ashore, but three others drowned.

When these facts became known aviation experts demanded that air corps pilots begin training in instrument flying.

Stop COUGHS quicker by "Moist-Throat" Method

Getting throat's moisture glands to work "soothes" coughs away

THE usual cause of a cough is the drying or clogging of moisture glands in your throat and windpipe. When this happens, heavy phlegm collects, irritates. Then you cough. The quick and safe way to relief is by letting Pertussin stimulate those glands to pour out their natural moisture. Sticky phlegm loosens, is easily raised. You have relief!

Over 1,000,000 doctors' prescriptions for Pertussin were filled in one year, according to Prescription Ingredient Survey issued by American Pharmaceutical Assn. Get a bottle today.

THE STORY TO DATE

Holly Ripple, who has inherited the beauty of her Spanish mother, returns from boarding school to her father's ranch in New Mexico just before his death. Anticipating an era of cattle rustling and outlawry, Colonel Ripple placed Holly under the care of his trusted foreman, Britt, and ordered him to surround her with the hardest outfit of cowboys he can gather together. In an encounter with horse thieves Holly is saved from the insults of the leader by one of his own men, Renn Frayne, who shoots his master and another man to save her. Holly persuades Frayne, self-admitted outlaw, to ride for her. Holly has carried on the traditional hospitality of the rancho. Malcolm Lascelles, a gambler and adventurer with whom Holly had regrettably carried on a schoolgirl flirtation in New Orleans, installs himself at the rancho. Friends and enemies alike are invited to a yearly fiesta in honor of Holly. To sober up the cowboys Britt and Frayne give them a ducking in icy waters. Brazos Keene, the youngest and wildest of Holly's cowboys, dumps Lascelles in the cold stream. Lascelles pulls a gun on Brazos, who is saved by Frayne. Lascelles joins up with Russ Slaughter and his rustlers. Holly gives a dinner to her outfit before the party.

INSTALMENT VIII.

BRITT, evidently having warmed somewhat to his recital, paused a moment, during which Holly turned to Frayne. She might have spoken then but for a slightly weary or bored expression on the outlaw's face. Britt had to humor his child employer! He had to tell what men did not tell outside of their circle.

"Jest then down on us rode Russ Slaughter with his Chisum ootfit of hard nuts. Aboot fourteen strong. He was plumb curious, an' if thet was friendly I'm oot on my figgerin'. But Frayne shut him up pronto an' then proceeded to tell Lascelles he was through at Don Carlos rancho. Jackson an' Skylark testified thet Lascelles was a card sharp who'd stoop to cheat a drink-befuddled cowboy. . . . Frayne told Lascelles to get oot. . . . Wal, then Slaughter took a hand at questionin' Lascelles. I didn't like this at all, because I could read Slaughter's dirty mind. We all seen what he was drivin' at. Lascelles, the skunk, brought up yore name an' thet flirtin' he put sich store on. An' shore he'd have insinuated somethin' wuss if Frayne hadn't sworn to shoot oot his teeth if he opened his trap again. Wal, that bluffed Slaughter. He offered Lascelles a chance to throw in with them, an' Lascelles jumped at it. Thet's all, Holly. I meant to tell you in the mawnin'."

"Never wait to spare my feelings at any time," returned Holly composedly, though she had passed from hot to cold during this narrative. Thank you, Cappy. Go back to your seat."

Holly sat there inwardly shaking. Except for Brazos, and perhaps Laigs Mason beside him, and Frayne, none of the cowboys had apparently paid any attention to this colloquy. They were intent on the most gorgeous repast of their lives. Holly watched them a moment while she fought her emotions.

"Lady, please don't let thet spoil yore party," appealed Brazos earnestly. "It wasn't nothin'. Course it might have been plumb bad—fer me—if Frayne hadn't been there. But he was there."

Brazos' emphasis of finality seemed to intimate something inevitable about Frayne. Holly's intuition was swift to catch in Brazos' look and voice the absence of former hostility toward the outlaw. That warmed away the cold terror and sick confusion within her. Impulsively she laid her hand upon Frayne's as it rested momentarily on the table.

"Again—Frayne?" she said without betraying agitation. "You increase my debt."

"Miss Holly, don't overrate these things," he replied kindly, and he gave her hand a strong pressure, while his hard face softened. "It is a tough job for an orphan girl who had to spend half her life in school. You are game, Holly Ripple. Let this birthday see your eyes open wide to the violence of this range! Listen to Britt. Let him give us leeway."

HOLLY was so strangely affected by the clasp of their hands that she scarcely made coherence of his words. She nodded her thanks. Then she addressed herself to the sumptuous meal, and by forcing her thoughts upon her speech she gradually drew away from the confounding fact that the mere touch of Renn Frayne's hand could make her weak.

Evidently the cowboys had been fasting for this supper, or, if not, they had prodigious appetites. Holly could not deny the evidence of her eyes. Laigs Mason was a little fellow, but he stowed away so much food that Holly feared he would do himself harm.

At last, however, the wine was poured and all the lean faces and keen eyes turned toward Holly.

Holly rose, sure of herself at last and reveling in this crucial hour. The room grew silent. But from the outside came a ceaseless hum of voices and music, of constant tread on the porch and in the patio. A coarse laugh from some rowdy jarred into a Spanish love song. Holly took time to allow her sweeping glance to rest upon every face at her table. And when she looked up from Frayne's piercing eyes she seemed shot through with something strong and sweet, a gleam of encouragement to do her best.

"Gentlemen, westerners, my cowboys:

"In any case I would have addressed you tonight, as I have done twice before, and as my father used to do all the years that he employed riders. But my purpose tonight goes far beyond just a repetition of the Ripple hospitality. It is to make an appeal to you. It is to inaugurate a change in policy of the running of Don Carlos rancho. It is to place clearly before you the certain danger of loss, the grave danger of ruin, which Britt has made me see. Particularly it is to emphasize what a splendid part you are unconsciously playing in the opening of the west. And to tell you what a wonderful thing you are doing for the last of the Ripples.

"Most of you here tonight have seen Buff Belmet, the scout and caravan leader, who hauls from Las Animas and the end of the advancing railroad. Think, my cowboys, of that trail of steel! You are responsible for that. No Santa Fe line would ever have been built but for cattle. The rails march on. Next spring they reach Raton. In a few years they will reach Santa Fe. That indeed will be the end of the Old trail.

"From this night you are free as the wolves out there. You will have no restraint. You can drink, gamble, fight, kill—if you must. Your wages will be doubled, and those of you who are alive and with me after this rustler war is ended will be given an interest in my business or helped to start one of your own."

Holly's voice failed at the very end. She sat down in a breathless silence. To her amazement the cowboys sat like stone images. Then Brazos jumped up with a yell that rang from the rafters, and the others followed suit. For a few moments pandemonium reigned. When the noise had died down Britt stood up to tap lightly on the table. Instantly all the eager, taut faces turned his way.

"Miss Holly an' gentlemen," he began in the dry drawl that presaged something inimical in motive and word, and he transfixed his men with those bright and twinkling eyes. "We have with us tonight a boy who is in a class by himself. In an ootfit which contains many bad hombres, an' which hasn't one thet is not a great rider an' roper an' gunner, this boy stands oot conspicuously not only fer these qualities but fer many others, prominent among them bein' his gift of gab. He has been known to talk cowboys deaf an' dumb. I knowed one instance back in Texas where he talked a sherif oot of arrestin' him. Friends—Brazos Keene!"

Holly calculated that everyone present except herself had entertained the idea that Britt had Frayne in mind. Certainly Brazos himself was the most surprised cowboy who ever had gotten himself inadvertently or otherwise into an awful predicament. Obviously he had never made that kind of a speech in his life. His comely face turned as red as a beet and then as white as a sheet. He sustained a more violent shock throughout his lithe frame than if someone had shot at him from behind.

"My—Gawd!" he gulped, his face beginning to work, and he fixed eyes of agony upon Holly. "Cap cain't—mean me!"

"Indeed yes, Brazos," replied Holly, beaming upon him.

"Aw!—No!" groaned the cowboy, turning to his faithful partner. But before Laigs could betray him, which the devilish grin on his face surely presaged, the other cowboys called with the caustic and trenchant originality and wit characteristic of them:

"Come on, you curly-haired darlin' of the range!"

"Brazos, who ever heard of you afeared to talk?"

"Cowboy, you're the talker of this ootfit."

"Fork your hoss, pard, an' rustle."

"You grande señor!"

"Brazos, you might as well warm up, 'cause Conchita is here tonight, an' thet black-eyed little dame is shore layin' fer you."

This, from Skylark, about finished Brazos, whose expression was that of an innocent cowboy upon whom a diabolical plot had been concocted. More cutting remarks were forthcoming, and then Laigs Mason had his say:

"Pard, the honor of the ootfit is at stake. Who'd ever think thet Brazos Keene had lost his wits? . . . Wal, if you can't talk, sing 'Lone Prairee'!"

Brazos, goaded to desperation, again appealed to Holly.

"Shore, it's a low-down trick," he said huskily. "Aw, Holly, say you wasn't in with them!"

"No, Brazos," she replied earnestly, "I'm absolutely innocent. But now I'm thrilled to death. Show them, Brazos!"

"Gawd help this heah ootfit from now on!" replied Brazos, as if he were destiny itself.

Brazos' escape from his chair and rise to his lofty height were as remarkable as they were funny. There might have been a rope around his neck, tight over one of the rough-hewn rafters above, and hauled upon by some of these grinning imps who reveled in his anguish. He came away so heavily that he might have been glued to his seat.

Once upon his feet, he had to look at his hostess and then upon his gleeful and expectant comrades. It was Holly's conjecture that he did not see any of them clearly. Brazos' remarkable eyes were round, bewildered, starting from his head, and his face baffled description.

He bowed low to Holly, then jerkily to the others.

"Our lady," he began in a hoarse whisper, "an' yu—fellars. . . . Yu—we—I . . . yu-all join—me all join yu . . . this orful occasion—I mean grand—in honor of a pack of hound dawgs . . . you—we—er, my——"

AS BRAZOS floundered hopelessly for more words there came suddenly from under the table a solid, cracking thud. Holly did not need to be told that Laigs had kicked Brazos on the shin. She nearly choked trying to retain her dignity. Brazos' breath puffed. His expression of fright and distress changed to a physical distortion of acute pain.

"Aggh!" he yelled.

"Fer Gawd's sake, pard, be yoreself," burst out Laigs with a passion of loyalty. His love for and pride in Brazos has transcended even the cowboy desire for fun.

"Aw!" groaned Brazos. "Shore yu had to pick oot my bum laig." Then he stood erect to face them all differently. Holly sustained a deep and poignant thrill in the surety that Brazos would find himself.

"Fun is fun, boys, an' yu've had it at my expense. But I savvy thet Miss Holly gave us this supper fer more'n a good time. It must hev took lots of study to read up all thet aboot the Spaniards an' those thet come after. . . . Fer me, pards, the Old trail will hev a different meanin'. An' range-ridin' a bigger job. An' belongin' to Holly Ripple's ootfit aboot as close to heaven as I ever expect to get.

"Pards, my folks was fine old Texas stock. I never had much schoolin'—yu know how hard it is fer me to write my name—an' I run away from home 'cause I was jest no good. All thet a cowboy can do except gettin' himself killed I've done. But, so help me Gawd, never since I run away till this here minnit hev I had any thought of a cowboy havin' respect for his callin'. It sort of seeped through my thick haid—the real an' strong reason why our lady is callin' to us so sweet an' earnest. An' it dug deep into me, boys. Heaven knows we air an ignorant lot, 'cept in case of Frayne, an' maybe Skylark, who shows human intelligence sometimes. But to find oot—an' 'specially from Holly Ripple, daughter of a great southerner and the great Don Valverde, thet what we air is what the range made us, an' what she needs—why, fellars, there ain't words enough, leastways not in my dictionary, to tell how savin' an' upliftin' thet is.

"An' so, cowboys, heah's where Brazos Keene lays his cairds down as never before in no game. My pards of Texas Panhandle days air daid. Since then I never had one 'cept Laigs heah. Yu all know why I took on Renn Frayne. . . . Wal, heah's where I take yu-all on. My pards! When a Texan makes a pard of a nigger somethin' big has happened. I'm sinkin' race prejudice an' all thet other damn selfish rot. We've got a common cause, men. . . . I never was in an ootfit thet didn't hev a disorganizer an' a rustler or two an' a mean gun-toter who ached to try you oot.

"Wal, if I've been any one of these things, after tonight I'll never be no more. Yu-all know yore inside thought an' feelin's. Yu shore can see Miss Holly's wonderful offer to you. An' none of yu is such an ignoramus as not to see now the wuth of the cowboy to the west. But if any one of yu—or two of you, or three—should double-cross our lady an' disgrace her ootfit—they'll have to draw on me—an' Laigs heah—an' shore our latest pard, Renn Frayne."

Amid stamping and vociferous applause Brazos sat down, white and rapt of face. When the uproar subsided Holly leaned to him.

"O, Brazos," she whispered with agitation, "I knew you would not fail. You were splendid."

Suddenly Holly became aware that Frayne had touched her hand. She turned, quick and vibrant.

"May I speak?" he asked with his slight smile.

"O! I would be delighted. . . ."

Frayne stood up, striking of form and face, piercing-eyed and stern. There would be no humor from this outlaw. He bowed to Holly.

"Miss Ripple, our gracious and lovely hostess, our lady, as Brazos so truly said, on behalf of all of us I thank you for this hospitality, and particularly for your magnificent and generous spirit."

Then he bent his gaze on the uplifted, tense faces, down one side of the table, to the absorbed Britt, and up the other side to Brazos.

"The rest of my few remarks will be addressed to you as man to men. To you, Britt, you old leather-backed Texan trail hound; to you, Jackson, you black-faced, nose-biting horse driver; to you, Cherry, you Indian buckaroo; to you half-breeds; to each and every one of you rowdy cowboys! If what I say pinches your foot in its high-heeled boot, grin and say you like it.

"But before I make implications which at any other time and place would hurt your feelings I shall tell a little about myself. I am an easterner. I have been on the frontier thirteen years, since I was twenty. Many ignominies have been fastened upon the name Renn Frayne, which is my own. But that one which made me a fugitive from justice was false. As a boy and young man I hated cities, crowds, work. I wanted adventure. The west called me. I landed at Independence in 1860. From buffalo hunting I drifted from one thing to another. I shot a cheating gambler on a steamboat—and that started me on the career some men unfortunately must be intended for. During the Civil war I was a soldier for a while. I killed an officer at one of the army posts—over a woman—and I deserted to hide out with trappers in the mountains. After the war I became a cowboy and rode the eastern ranges for years—the Panhandle, Nebraska, eastern Colorado, but mostly Kansas. The time came when I couldn't ride into old Dodge or Hays City or Abilene or Newton without smelling smoke of my own gun. Finally I shot Sutherland, a big cattleman. It was the most justifiable killing of all. He was one of those cattlemen who operated in two ways, one open and honest, the other hidden and crooked. There are many such rustler-developing cattle kings. There are two right here in New Mexico. Sutherland had powerful friends, and they egged on the gun fighters, the two-faced sherifs, the tough cowboys to put me out of the way. I became an outlaw, with a price on my head. When some clique exposed Sutherland, laying bare his crooked dealings, they forgot to remove the price from my head. It has never been removed, and if I went back to Kansas I'd have to shoot my way out. That's the bad thing about being a marked man who is quick on the draw. . . . Lastly, I've trained with some hard gangs, of which Heaver's wasn't a marker to others. . . . Rustler! I'm bound to admit it. But, men, you all know the status of cattle on the range. It is hard to define the line between branding and stealing. To appropriate beef wherever you find it has been a universal custom. To round up a bunch of cattle not your own, drive them off their range, sell them for a fourth of their hoof value—that is cattle stealing. In weak defense of all of us who have transgressed thus I can only say that the easy custom, the unfailing fact of cattlemen all accepting small losses, have been to blame. The cowboy hasn't had a fair chance to be honest.

"But horse stealing is another matter. A rancher will stand to lose some cattle; he raises Cain when he loses horses. My one offense which I am ashamed to confess was the Heaver deal in which we drove some twoscore of Miss Ripple's thoroughbreds. Britt blocked that drive. I never felt right after Heaver double-crossed me about that deal. He didn't say we were after horses, and I was into it before I realized. Then I hated him. . . . Well, he got shot for his deceit, and that saw the beginning and end of my career as a horse thief.

"When I threw in with your outfit I promised Miss Ripple that I would be honest. That promise I shall keep. . . . Boys, I wonder if you can appreciate it when I tell you that I sleep at night, that I no longer hear steps upon my trail, that I know absolutely I will never dangle by my neck from a cottonwood. It will not be many years now before the noose will supersede the gun in execution of rustlers.

"In our case there is no use, no sense, no reason for us to steal from our employer. We are a lucky outfit. Chisum's top bunch of riders have left him cold—Russ Slaughter and his outfit. They look bad and they might go far—unless they run foul of us. Slaughter did not know that he missed it today by a hair. If he had soft-soaped Lascelles into opening his vile trap again—well, pards, there would have been two less for you to contend with. You all know as well as I that Slaughter quit Chisum because he saw big money for the next few years. Jackson tells us Chisum is a hard boss. He pays little and drives his men. Moreover, he's not above making them do a little rustling. Except for the uncertainty of life Slaughter is figuring all right. He and his outfit will be very much better off going on their own hook—or I should say their own guns! And there's the rub. Guns make life uncertain. Guns in the hands of Brazos Keene and Laigs Mason and Cherokee and Mex Southard—or any of the Ripple outfit, not to forget our Texas ranger boss—and your humble servant here speaking—guns in these hands make life most damned uncertain, all of which is to say that if Slaughter's outfit go to rustling on this range they will not last long.

"But, gentlemen, this is not so important, in my mind, as what Britt called inside rustling. You're bound to respect a bunch of hard nuts who go out in the open and steal cattle and fight on sight. It's the gang that has inside help that I'm leery about. You know what I mean. A big cattleman, outwardly honest, mixed up in all that's doing on the range, but secretly in league with one or more crooked outfits, and with some crooked boys in his own outfit. This was what always ruined the cattle business in Kansas when cattle were cheap and plentiful. Sutherland was such a man. And, men, as sure as I stand here tonight that kind of rustler will develop here soon, if he is not already here. . . . Savvy, men? He may be here now.

"WELL, such a leader, with his large holdings, his many deals, his influence, and his crooked cowboys, are what we must expect and prepare for now. Some of you boys will be approached. Attractive propositions will be made you. This big fellow will want a spy, a scout or two, even in the camp of Don Carlos rancho. There is the case of Dillon, who was just weak, dishonest, and ignorant. He was a damn fool. A likable cowboy, so I've heard—full of fun, lend you his last dollar, or stand your watch, or nurse you when you were sick—but when under the influence of whisky he was a poor, easy yellow dog. He deceived Brazos because Brazos is kind-hearted and likes everybody. . . . Men—that fool break of Mugg Dillon's cost him his life! And I say if there is one among you to whom life is sweet he had better ride away pronto—or else cultivate a keen and passionate desire to live. Otherwise Don Carlos rancho will be the last place for him.

"Now, comrades, a last word. The deal ahead of us on this range is hell. Some of us—half of us—will get killed. But it appeals to me because of the right—which I have disregarded for so long—and because a thoroughbred westerner, a game kid, a girl, refuses to go back on her father's wishes, on her ranch, and her cowboys. We cannot go back on her. It would be too low-down.

"Pards, from now on we are a pack of lone wolves. We ride the range together. We are no longer good fellows, to talk, to drink with cowboys of other outfits or strangers. We reverse the old habit of cowboys. And always one of us or two of us will keep the others from drinking too much. Now, gentlemen, please stand up!"

As Frayne's ringing voice ceased the cowboys, with scarcely a sound, rose erect, most of them pale and all of them stern. Frayne's cold, harsh facts and arguments had told.

"Britt has asked me to propose a toast," went on Frayne. "We will drink to Holly Ripple and her Knights of the Range!"

When Holly fled from her cowboys to her room with her hands over her ears, pretending to shut out their thundering applause, she knew herself to be a deceitful creature, because she should have pressed those white members over her tumultuous and bursting heart.

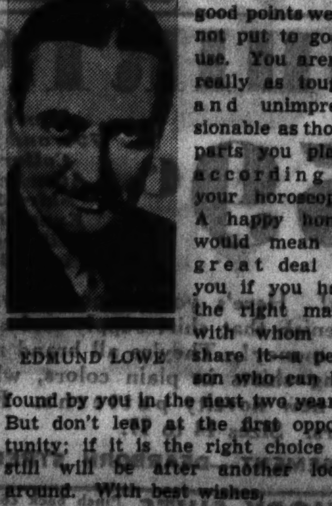
An Open Letter to Edmund Lowe



EDMUND LOWE

Dear Edmund: You have what it takes to be an ideal husband, and it would be rather too bad if the good points were not put to good use. You aren't really as tough and unimpressionable as those parts you play, according to your horoscope. A happy home would mean a great deal to you, if you had the right mate with whom to share it—a person who can be found by you in the next two years. But don't leap at the first opportunity; if it is the right choice it still will be after another look around. With best wishes,

WYNN.

Society Gives Tangible Proof It's Air-Minded

Charles S. Deweys Leaders in the Movement to Take to the Clouds.

By Cousin Eve.

OLD-FASHIONED folk these days are those who won't fly. Humdrum lives we live, one will admit, crawling antwise so near the earth. However, many of my friends are air-minded, none more so than the Charles S. Deweys. They left early Thursday morning by air for Miami, expecting to fly from there on to Cuba. They fly always to New York. And one enjoys vicariously their high adventure.

Their daughter, Suzette, now Mrs. Frederick Alger Jr. of Detroit, and her husband flew high over our heads a fortnight ago in Alfred Vanderbilt's plane, bound for California. Besides being air-minded, the Algers had another preoccupation, their racing stable and the famous steeplechaser, Azucar, purchased at Saratoga, who was to run out there in flat races of the spring events. After his glorious performance last July it was direful to have him romp in eighth. But Dark Winter, an Alger horse, won in another race, and the Algers have gone on to join the gay throng in Honolulu, which is decidedly it this season.

Dewey Jrs. Zip Up from South Bend in Airplane.

A few weeks ago there was a Sunday luncheon in Lake Forest, where the Charles Deweys Jr. of South Bend were expected. About luncheon time a glossy red plane descended in a field near the house and a smart looking young couple stepped out and strolled towards the party. It was the Bud Deweys in their new plane, a gift from father. The beatitudes of this air roadster are so many, maybe I can't remember them all. It has a radio, a wireless; a gadget pulls the side of the car wide open in case the Deweys decide to leap forth with their life preservers on. They had flown up from South Bend in a half hour.

A few Lenten diversions for us stay-at-homes! The most interesting evening party of the week was Mrs. Francis Junkin's reception for Signora Rossetti Agresti, a distinguished Anglo-Italian resident of Rome.

Invitations were sent out in the name of Chauncey McCormick, the president of the Italy-America society and its board of directors, and the party, growing large, took place in the tower ballroom of the Drake. Chauncey McCormick, being upon politics bent and making speeches from "Miami to Minnesota," was not present, but Robert Hall McCormick understudied for him gracefully enough. Even if he did have forty-seven different ways of pronouncing Signora Agresti's name, it was some feat to recall her attainments. Here are a few of them: Member of the Italian National federation and of the advisory committee for international broadcasting; a founder of the International Institute of Agriculture in Rome; for several years a member of the Italian delegation to the league of nations, and now a director of the Italian Confederation of Industry. She is a journalist and writer, specializing in economics. She was official interpreter in post-war conferences in Paris, Geneva, the Hague, at the London disarmament parley, and at the naval conferences at Lugano.

Italians Don't Think Mussolini a Dictator, Says Signora Agresti.

Mrs. Junkins, in sparkling sequins of black and a superb parure of star sapphires and diamonds, received with her guests, Mme. Agresti and Fräulein Binz of Berlin, all carrying bouquets of gardenias. The stage was like a grotto of palms, with huge standards of red roses and a grand piano.

Signora Agresti developed a brilliant thesis for Italy. As Mrs. Wentworth Field said, it was a pity to waste such a stunning address upon the ears of two hundred people in no need of propaganda. Among the interesting things said by this niece of Dante Gabriel Rossetti were that to Italy the duce is not a dictator. His power is limited by the Corporations or Guilds, which are five great groups of industry and labor, which he organized himself. The speaker touched on the tripartite treaties, still extant upon Ethiopia, between Italy, France, and England—but we knew of those.

In short it was a highbrow but intensely interesting soirée, livened by Miss Binz's playing of Chopin—that girl surely has a great future at the piano, if only she doesn't go home in April and marry some German boy friend. A flower heaped buffet, ices, orangeades, and much talkee talkee.

Count and Countess Guilio Bolegnese were there, the countess lovely in violet gauze; and Consul General Mario Carosi, Antonio Ferme, Col. Simone, charming monseigneur, going this week to the Philippines; Col. and Mrs. William Thuis, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinde, Mr. and Mrs. H. Compton Bangs, Miss Katherine Wolcott, Mrs. Edward R. Bacon, Mary Alice Bacon, Miss Anna Fitziu, Mrs. Welsh Dickinson, Mrs. Edward Leight, Mrs. Otho Ball, Mrs. Oliver D. Grover, Blake Blair, Clifton Utley, Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Sperling, and Miss Clara Lake, secretary of the society.

Joan Alizier, 7, Summons Young Men to Her Bidding.

When Joan Alizier, tiny French fine piece, walked into Mrs. Ralph James living room, set with guests in gold chairs ready for her concert Saturday afternoon, she had a good alibi for being late. She had just come from an audition with Dr. Frederick Stock. Maybe they will have this cunning 7 year old as soloist at a children's concert next season. The pretty youngster called several strong young men from the gilt chairs to shift the piano so that she could be better seen, then began her recital. Her Debussy is even better than her Beethoven, Bach, and Chopin, and the whole was perfectly charming. Best of all was her improvisation. She called upon Mrs. William Vogelback, noted pianist whose copper hair was gleaming alluringly among those present, and asked her for the chords of a theme. Mrs. Vogelback obligingly played chords and Joan alternated in great style.

Mrs. James made amusing announcements of the numbers, and said she was sorry more men were not present, as Joan liked men a great deal. Mr. and Mrs. René Weiller had sent the youngster a box of chocolates after her recital at the Alliance. On reading their joint card she sighed, "He is married!"

Col. James' Fish Said to Be Intellectuals.

Sitting in the front row near Joan was Florence Crane Robinson with her mother, Mrs. R. T. Crane, home from the South Sea islands, where she has a house. How casual we are in these hectic days! A house in Tahiti! Mrs. Robinson is a fascinating figure, tall and slight, with tawny, sun burned hair and eyes of tropical blue.

The James apartment, besides being a center for constant social excitements of luncheons, dinners, and teas, has lately become an aquarium as well. Every room and bath has its quota of fish, swimming in small and large tanks. For Col. James has a fad, and that fad is tropical fish. It is indeed a cold day when this most whimsical and charming of military men does not come home with some new kinds of fish in his pocket.

The James fish are said to be highly intellectual—anyway they are lovely to behold, swimming in their watery conservatories, and the family sits up far into the night watching their antics.

Vocational Shut-Ins Will Sell Jewelry with Candy.

Having seen some wildly successful open houses, notably the Junior league on Oct. 4, and the recent Saks affair, which was too successful, if anything, the Vocational Shut-ins are having an opening. They are taking over Huylers' in the Palmolive for March 26. Mrs. Roy Keith and Mrs. Robert Ross are co-chairmen, and, from listening to a few minutes of their program, it sounded to me like a perfect day. Bridge playing and luncheon and more bridge playing, with prizes and tea. Then dinner, with special music and minstrels, dancing and quiet corners with fortune tellers.

One attraction has allurement. Boxes of candy will be sold. Several boxes will contain pieces of jewelry as well as candy. What ho! These are days when everything in life seems to be turning into a benefit.

Miss Mildred McCormick of New York had a party given for her every day of the week she was here, none more amusing than her brother's, Robert Hall McCormick's, last Sunday at the Casino. There were about twenty guests, and when luncheon was over and coffee was being served the host rose and remarked that he should expect each of his guests to make a speech. Each speech was to give a good reason why Mildred should abandon her stylish penthouse apartment on the east side and return to the city of her fathers. Her mother was a New Yorker, Sarah Lord Day.

German Consul Takes Prize for After-Dinner Speech.

No use for anybody to crawl under the table and pretend one had gone home. Everybody was warned. Cecil Barnes sprang immediately to his feet, having had long training, it seems, with the Kellogg Fairbanks, his in-laws, who also are addicted to after dinner speeches. And so the theme went around the table. It was generally conceded that Dr. Rolf Jaeger, the German consul general, had the most original thought. Being a stranger in society, he said, and finding our names new and difficult, he called every lady "Mrs. McCormick" and was nearly always right. So if Miss McCormick would return and resume her residence, it would help him out considerably.

Mildred McCormick was also the guest of honor at the Walter Ayers' in Walton place Sunday afternoon, a quite large tea, lots of young men. Her young niece, Janet Ayer, poured tea, always the most exquisite young person, every detail of toilette perfect. Her frock was a black skirt and pale gold lamé blouse, severely plain.

The Harold Kneedlers of Manila were there, happy over the lovely little babe they had found at the Cradle. Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, the Cecil Barnes, Robert Lee Eskridge, Mrs. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee, the ubiquitous Ulrich Buesch, Swiss consul, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bernays.

What's "Tiz of Thee"? Britisher Wants to Know.

A crash of British national anthem "God save our gracious king; Long live our noble king; God save the king!" and then the endearing address of Edward VIII. to earth's peoples. Those who had known him in his travels as prince of Wales and been his friends were to remember that he and the king of England were the same man. At the end of Edward's address, which touched the heart with its simple directness, another burst of national anthem, "God Save the King." The music of this is the same as our "My Country 'Tis of Thee." One of my friends became engaged to an Englishman, and they went one day to some great celebration at St. Paul's church. The national anthem was played, and the British fiancé was roaring "God Save the King," while the young lady was shouting "My Country 'Tis of Thee," at the top of her lungs. Finally he bent over and queried: What's this "Tiz of Thee you're singing about?"

Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe has two outstanding qualities. She is witty; she is executive. A fortnight ago when Jean Schweppe, "Lake Forest's sweetheart," was being married, the Schweppe's took over the Deerpath inn for their out of town guests. Each family had its special suite, and each suite was fitted up with flowers, fruit, fiction, bottled water, a pile of the last magazines.

AIDS IN PLANS FOR THE SHUT-INS

Mrs. Charles H. G. Kimball, the former Eleanor Cushman, is one of those working for the success of the benefit the board of the Vocational Society for Shut-ins will give on Thursday, March 26, at Huyler's in the Palmolive building. The women will take over the restaurant, cocktail lounge and liquor store for that day and night, and they are planning many special features to induce their friends to attend and thus swell the charity fund of the society.

Florida Garden Show Medal to Mrs. Cudahy

PALMBEACH, FLA. Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy of Lake Forest received the president's medal, given by Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock, president of the Palm Beach Garden club and general chairman of the eighth annual flower show, for the member contributing most to the success of the show. Save for a short cruise, most of Mrs. Cudahy's time since arriving here has been devoted to the flower show, which closed on Sunday and was pronounced one of the most interesting ever held here.

Mrs. Cudahy's Mexican garden demonstrated the use of both native and tropical materials, and for artistry and educational value was preëminent. A South African garden and a green and white garden also were arranged by Mrs. Cudahy.

Mr. and Mrs. McKinlock dined at the Beach club Saturday and were among hosts at the buffet luncheon at Gulf Stream club on Sunday, afterward joining friends at the flower show.

Baum, and Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke are among those expected to attend. The Jelkes arrived this week at Brazilian court where they will be joined on March 15 by their children. Many young people from Chicago will spend their Easter holidays in Palm Beach and a round of entertaining in their honor is planned.

Young Mrs. Mogg's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Julius Bauer of South Haven, Mich., formerly of Chicago. Her grandfather was one of Chicago's first piano manufacturers and a noted patron of music.

"Smoke Tax" Has London Residents in Grumbling Mood

LONDON Perhaps the tax most grumbled at recently has been what now is called the "smoke tax," and it is estimated to be about $10 per head per year.

Fogs have contributed much to the literature of London as well as to its art and interest at certain times of the year, but when the hard head of business says that the smoke pall, which is part of the Victorian inheritance, costs the nation approximately $400,000,000 and that of London alone about $35,000,000, there is an added sense of injustice.

Fogs are either meteorological or climatic in origin, but the yellow atmosphere of morning that becomes pea green by noon and gives blackness by tea time is due to coal smoke. As early as 1273, the use of coal was prohibited in London, as "prejudicial to health," and royal proclamations, commissions of inquiry, and acts of parliament in the course of centuries have tried to stop the nuisance of smoke.

The "soot fall" of London was halved during the 15 years preceding 1926, and with the growth of the use of gas and electicity it will most certainly decrease; but at the moment every square mile of urban London receives a deposit of from 300 to 700 tons of soot every year.

Italian Woman Writer to Talk at Tea Sunday

More news of Chicago clubs and club women will be found in the other Society section.

SIGNORA OLIVIA ROSSETTI AGRESTI, leading Italian writer and authority on economics and international relations, will be the principal speaker at a tea next Sunday afternoon at the Palmer house for the benefit of Fidelis inn.

Appearing on the program with Signora Agresti will be Dr. Frank Frederick Lowe, concert pianist; Giuseppe Cavadore, operatic tenor, and Marjorie Mantello, operatic soprano. Miss Leota Amoreaux of the Chicago Civic Business and Professional Women's club heads the committee on arrangements, which includes other members of the club, of the Chicago Church federation, and of the state organization of business and professional women.

Fidelis Inn Operated for Aid of Unemployed Women.

Fidelis inn, located at 6016 Rhodes avenue, is a home for unemployed church, business, and professional women that is operated with the purpose of helping the women again to become self-supporting.

Formerly used as the nurses' home for the Washington Park hospital, the inn has been operated for four years under the supervision of Miss M. L. Carpenter, chairman of education and welfare of the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation, who serves on a volunteer basis as head resident and acting manager. Furnishings and food supplies are contributed largely by church women through the woman's department of the church federation.

Royal Decree Permits London Social Season

Mourning Is to Cancel Only Court Functions; Many Gay Parties Are Planned.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON—With consideration that characterized his father, the bachelor King Edward VIII. is doing everything within his power to reconcile the period of appropriate mourning with the gayety of the London season, which means so much to business in general.

Except for the cancelation of court functions, it has been made explicit by royal decree that all other social functions should proceed as usual. This even extended to the marriage of the young earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, who, as premier earl on the roll of the peerage of both England and Ireland, is close to court circles. The young earl's mother now is Lady Winifred Pennoyer, wife of the American diplomat.

Claridge's Reports Many Events Already Scheduled.

Claridge's hotel, which can be taken as an index to the extent of the social season, reports that it alone has engagements for twenty-five debut affairs and six large-scale charity parties, besides the usual number of banquets and dinner and luncheon parties.

The Grand National will take place, as usual, on March 27, with train loads of people going to Aintree, and the hotels already booked full for celebrations afterward. The International Grand Opera at Covent Garden will take place in April, and tiaras will be the ornament of the season. The Covent Garden Opera company, which always has combined two warring factions, now is a house of peace. There were those on its board who liked to brighten things up and who were responsible for bringing Grace Moore there last year. Although the few times they were able to put their policies into effect they showed a financial profit, the "brighteners" have at last been ousted and Covent Garden now is the stronghold of conservatism. The American Lady Cunard is one of the staunchest supporters of Covent Garden.

Royal Academy Opening Is to Be on First of May.

The Royal academy opening will take place the first of May and this year, at last, the visits of his majesty will unofficially mark the opening of the season proper.

An event of international importance in May will be the annual banquet of the Royal Yacht squadron, for which several Americans are making special trips to England. The Derby, the International Horse show, Anglo-American polo, the Aldershot Tattoo, Ascot race week, the Henley regatta, and Wimbledon tennis all follow on according to their accustomed schedule.

The 1936 London season will mark the return of the "small dance." It already has proved a success, and mothers, with daughters to "bring out," are planning dances of under 100 in private homes rather than the huge affairs of a few years ago. Dinner parties and on to some big charity ball is another way for mothers to make suitable entertainment for their debutantes.

Throughout the season Queen Mary, still the first lady of the land, will take no public or active part in social affairs, but, rather, will be busy making over her new home. Marlborough house was redecorated ten years ago in the hope that the prince of Wales would consent to live there. But he would not, preferring instead the greater simplicity of York house. At that time there were no structural alterations, but the domestic offices were brought up to date and central heating and electric lighting installed. Bathrooms were modernized and modern fire grates replaced the Victorian ones.

ENGAGED TO MARRY

Miss Roberta Mary Thurnau is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Thurnau of Wayne avenue, who are announcing her engagement to William Sibert Martens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Martens of Franklin Park. No date for the wedding has been announced.

Society Abroad Turns to Paris for Wedding

Traveling Americans Converge There for Moira Beresford's Nuptials.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS—There is considerable interest among Americans in Paris, as well as elsewhere, in the forthcoming wedding of Lord Decies' daughter, Lady Moira Beresford. Lord Decies, who is a great traveler, often comes to Paris with his daughter, and on such occasions they are the guests of Mrs. Henry S. Lehr. She has received a telegram assuring her of Lord Decies' safety, for he happened to be one of the passengers who was held up for some hours on the Castle of Winchester which went on the sands. Immediately after his daughter's wedding, Lord Decies is expected to be in Paris.

The Duchesse de Talleyrand [Anna Gould] is crossing the channel for the wedding of Lord Decies' daughter. The duchesse, who is the aunt, or rather greataunt, of the bride, is accompanied by her own daughter, Violet de Talleyrand. The duchesse recently gave a dinner party and then took her guests to the opera.

H. Edward Manville in Riviera.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Edward Manville, who have crossed from the United States on the Bremen, spent a day of shopping in Paris and then proceeded to the Riviera. They go often to Monte Carlo, where it is usual for them to be joined by their son-in-law and daughter, Count and Countess Folke Bernadotte, who make their home in Stockholm.

Countess Bernadotte was Estelle Manville, and since her marriage to the count, who is a nephew of King Gustav, she has become a great favorite with the Swedish royal family. The Manvilles always entertain extensively at Monte Carlo, especially for those Americans who are friends of the king of Sweden.

Herman Gades Are Motoring in Switzerland.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gade and their daughter, Alice, have left Paris to motor in Switzerland and in southern France. They will first visit Mrs. Gade's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Arnold Klebs, at Nyon, near Geneva. We understand that the Gades will be back at their interesting and hospitable Château du Mesnil-St. Denis about the middle of March.

Mrs. John S. Lithiby has left Paris to join her husband in England, where he was summoned by the illness of his father, Sir John Lithiby, who died recently.

Two Women Artists Hold Striking Exhibit in Winter Park

WINTER PARK, FLA.—An exhibition of the work of Zoe Shippen and Doris Ruth Swett has opened here at the Rollins Art studio. Miss Shippen is featuring the portraits of Winter Park residents she has made while visiting her parents here. They include excellent studies of Mollie Casselberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hibbard Casselberry of Chicago; Dean Charles Atwood Campbell, done in red chalk; an oil portrait of her husband, Dr. Eugene J. Jewett; a charcoal sketch of Mrs. A. Buel Trowbridge; and a life size portrait of her sister, Mrs. John M. Wells of Southbridge, Mass. Miss Swett is showing a group of etchings which include portrayals of Rockport Harbor, the North Carolina mountains, and her specialty, the pines of Florida. Her "A Long-Leafed Florida Pine Branch," has received the distinction of being chosen for the permanent collection of the library of congress, and her "Long Leafed Florida Pines, via Tuscany, Winter Park," has just been selected for the seventeenth exhibition of the print makers international in Los Angeles. Both of these works are on display at the studio.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Rowell, who are occupying the home of Dr. Mary L. Leonard, entertained at luncheon today for about twenty-five guests. Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Seligman, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bacheller, Mrs. A. E. Dick, Mrs. Charles Sprague-Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacLaren Jr., Mrs. W. F. Magie, Mrs. Malcolm McLaren of Princeton, N. J., and Dr. and Mrs. George M. Whicher.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bacheller gave a dinner this evening at Gate o' the Isles in honor of their house guest, the Princess Julia Grant Cantacuzene. Among the guests were Mrs. George Warren of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stillman, the Baron and Baroness D'Estournelles de Constant, Dean Arthur D. Enyart, Severin Bourne, Miss Loretta Salmon, and Dr. Hamilton Holt.

British Council Aids Professors Ousted by Hitler

LONDON—The Academic Assistance council was formed in England in 1933 to assist those professors and teachers who fled from Germany because of their "non-Ayran" origin or for non-compliance with political formulae. A recent German handbook gave the number of teachers in institutions of higher learning as 7,000. The Academic Assistance council has records of no fewer than 1,300 who have been dismissed or have had to "retire" because of racial "contamination" or suspected political leanings. Many of these now are happy in their own sphere in English universities.

Is Black Magic Genuine? Here It Is Debunked

Warner Says Thrilling Tales Are Products of Imaginative Press Agents.

By Mason Warner.

BATAVIA, Java, N. E. I.—That almost good American word, "hoodoo," is of African origin. From it "voodoo" was evolved, and the voodooism of Africa and the West Indies is closely related to the "black magic" of the East Indies and Malaya. At least, the prime object of both is to "put a hoodoo" on an enemy or a rival in love.

In Java and other East Indies the practitioner of the black art is known as a dukun. A dukun, man or woman, is believed by natives to combine all the eerie and weird powers of a witch, sorcerer, demonologist, and voodoo priest. The superstitious natives do not doubt that a dukun has the ability to summon the devil and evil spirits to do his bidding.

When the death of an enemy or any person against whom a grudge is held is desired, the aid of a dukun is sought. After payment of a fee, dependent upon the wealth and position of the client, the dukun makes a small image of the victim in clay. Then, with prayers and incantations, much ceremony and hocus-pocus, he pierces the image in the region of the heart or stomach with a needle or sharp instrument, buries the clay image in some carefully chosen spot, and within a week or a month the object of his professional activities dies of some affliction of the organ presumed to be pierced.

Real to Those Who Believe It.

I had heard and read many hair-raising stories of black magic, but after weeks of investigation I began to believe that the thrilling tales were largely works of fiction produced by imaginative if not gullible volunteer press agents.

After traveling the East Indies from end to end I arrived at the conclusion that black magic was real only to those who believed in it; that only natives who had faith in the dukuns' possession of supernatural powers succumbed to the prayers, incantations, and rites.

I was told many stories of white men who died after terminating love affairs with native women when their former sweethearts sought the aid of a dukun in the quest for revenge. The untimely ends of the recreant lovers were mysterious. They slowly wasted away, and finally died in intense agony.

Years ago, any girl who came from Holland to marry a white man in Java took an extremely hazardous chance. If the marriage terminated a romance in which her husband and a native woman had participated, it was noted that the bride quickly pined away and died. Even today Dutch girls are not keen for husbands long resident in Java.

One Way to Reclaim Your Man.

A well known citizen of Batavia had a singular experience. At the end of his ten-year contract for service in Java, he called his housekeeper, a half-caste woman, and said:

"I am sailing for Holland tomorrow. I am going home to be married. I have been happy with you during the years we have been together, and I want to provide well for you. You shall have this house and I will put money in the bank for you."

The woman replied: "I do not want your house. I do not want your money. I came from the jungle. I can go back to the jungle. I want you. No other woman shall have you."

There was no compromise for the man. He sailed for Amsterdam the following day. A week out at sea he began to fail in health. He weighed 180 pounds when he embarked, but when he reached home he weighed only 120. The best doctors in Holland were called. None could help him. He continued to fail. Finally, he was told that the strange illness he was suffering from was certain to be fatal.

"No, it isn't," he said. "I know a cure, but I am not sure I want it."

"Take your cure if you want to live," the doctors told him.

He was carried to a ship, Java bound. A week at sea, and his appetite returned. His spirits improved and he gained in weight. He was back to 160 pounds and restored to health when he arrived in Java. He married the half-caste woman, and they are living contentedly today in Batavia.

Poison Added to Prayer.

Last March the wife of the representative of an American oil firm in Sumatra punished her Malay house boy for stealing groceries. Three months later she died in a hospital in Batavia. Post-mortem revealed perforated intestines and bamboo fuzz.

That is the catch in it—the Malays are generally recognized as being among the most expert poisoners in the world, and many deaths of Europeans can be attributed to having had something placed in their food.

No doubt many natives whose faith in the power of the dukuns is unbounded die from autosuggestion and fear when they learn they have been doomed to death by an enemy who has enlisted the services of a conjure man to work and pray for their extinction. In early days, it is said, some credulous Dutchmen died under the same conditions, but nowadays the death of a white man under suspicious circumstances is investigated, and dukuns have been successfully prosecuted when poison was found to have been added to prayer to bring about the effect desired.

Today, all the way from Surabaya to Batavia, from one end of Java to the other, it is agreed that forty or fifty years ago the Dutch stood in terrified awe of the black magic of the natives. The novels of that famous Dutch writer of the East Indies, Louis Couperus, are replete with references to black magic, but he is now discredited by a more enlightened generation.

Performed by Power of Suggestion.

One dear old Dutch grandmother told me about a house in Djokja in which it was impossible for Europeans to live. Stones would drop from the ceiling—morning, noon, or night there would be showers of stones. Chairs and tables would move about. Pictures would fall from the walls. But nothing like that goes on in these prosaic days.

When I was in Bandung I met Dr. Edward Jacobson, botanist, zoölogist, and ethnologist. For forty-three years he has lived in the Malay archipelago, and for months at a time has dwelt among the natives. He certainly is qualified for membership in the Adventurers' club of Chicago.

Dr. Jacobson is positive that black magic is performed only by the power of suggestion and with material aids. The dukuns resort to heathen incantations, theatrical ceremonies, cabalistic signs on their charms, and tokens, recite passages from the Koran and utter impressive prayers—and they also sell to their followers strange and fatal poisons that leave no trace of the cause of death.

One subtle cause of death is the so-called bamboo fuzz, a tiny, hairlike growth at the edges of bamboo leaves. Another is tiger whiskers. Ground glass and arsenic are also popular and effective, but are not considered so artistic.

Slipped surreptitiously into the victim's food and taken into his stomach, the bamboo fuzz or tigers' hairs cause irritation of the intestinal membranes, loss of appetite, and emaciation, followed, after a period of pain and suffering, by perforation of the bowels, and death. Some white men so dread this possible dénouement to a love affair that they completely avoid native and half-caste women.

But the dukuns deal in merchandise other than poisons and aids to murder. Throughout Malaya there is a brisk demand for love charms. A most potent love charm is "mata ajer duyung"—the tears of an animal known as the dugong. The dugong is an amphibious mammal of the Sirenia group. It is as heavy as an ox, 6 to 8 feet long, fur covered, and has the tail of a fish, the flippers of a seal, and a head resembling that of a hornless cow.

Available at 25 Cents a Hair.

When killed, a dugong weeps, and a single tear, if administered to one of the opposite sex, will cause the recipient to fall head over heels in love with the giver. Genuine "mata ajer duyung" never fails. Neither man nor woman can resist this marvelous influence. But, alas, the dukuns are not all honest. When the love charm fails, the purchaser suspects he has been a victim of fraud, for dilution and substitution are not unknown. A famous dukun in Sumatra, when only 30 years old, killed a dugong and, although he never killed another, he supplied his trade with dugong tears until he was past 60.

The natives are so keen for tigers' whiskers that tiger hunters carry bags to cover immediately the head of their kill. Otherwise, the whiskers would be appropriated by the native guides and helpers. The whiskers are cut exceedingly fine before being placed in the food of the proposed victim. They retain their sharp and penetrating ends, defying absorption in the digestive tract, until they pierce the intestinal walls and death ensues. The regular market price of tigers' whiskers is 25 cents a hair.

3 Southern Cities Plan Pilgrimages to Beauty Spots

THOUSANDS of persons will trek into the deep south next month to enjoy the charms of Natchez, the natural beauty of Mobile, and the historical associations of Vicksburg. The three cities have joined hands to give the world an opportunity to visit them when springtime comes to Dixie.

Natchez will be the scene of the fifth annual pilgrimage, sponsored by the Natchez Garden club, and featuring a tour of 27 ante-bellum mansions, March 27 to April 5, inclusive. Evening entertainments will include tableaux that turn back the pages of time and depict life in the old south.

Mobile's Azalea trail will be opened and will attract flower lovers from all over the country. Bellingrath gardens also will be opened to the public.

The first annual national assembly of the Descendants of the Blue and the Gray at Vicksburg will be held in that city March 27 and 28. The Vicksburg Garden club will present its second annual tour March 27 to April 3.

Salesmen Born, Not Made, Travel Agents Are Told

SALESMEN are born, not made, O. J. McClure told the Bons Vivants, Chicago society of steamship and travel agents, at a dinner at the Yankee grill in the Field building Monday evening.

Mr. McClure said the old belief that men not particularly gifted for salesmanship could be trained into it had been discredited in recent years. He pointed out that the profession is like all others in that respect.

"Booth Tarkington," he said, "wrote seven years before he sold a line. Zane Grey had a similar experience. Verdi was dismissed from an Italian school for incompetency—and years later the school was named in his honor. All of them had the divine instinct, and that instinct carried them to the top. It is the same with salesmanship. Without the divine spark no man can succeed."

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, November 2, 1886.

DEAR JULIA: Life goes on as usual with us. How blessed I am, with my daughter happily married, her husband prospering in his career, their children healthy and good! Sandy and Martha and the children have been here for dinner, and I wish you could have seen your namesake, little Julie, rosy and gay; and 4 year old Esmond, on the knee of his adoring grandfather for whom he is named.

The conversation at table turned on the claim of a man over in France to have invented some kind of a flying machine. My notion of heaven, when I was a child, was floating about in a blue sky, on a pink cloud. Evening clouds, touched with the sunset glow, always look so like a princess' couch, I think. So the idea of flying is fraught with interest.

Martha Junior brought out and read for us "Darius Green," J. T. Trowbridge's rhymed account of a boyish flyer. He came to grief, to be sure, but Will says Darius was right in being

. . . clearly of the opinion
That the air is also man's dominion,
And that, with paddle or fin or pinion,
We soon or late
Shall navigate
The azure, as now we sail the sea.

It brought to our minds, too, the story of a young Chicago newspaperman who died in a balloon disaster. It was eleven years ago, but it was so tragic we have never forgotten it. He was a friend of Martha's and we all went to Dearborn park to watch him get into the balloon "basket" and start off with "Professor" Donaldson, who managed the craft. Newton Grimwood, the 22 year old reporter, was a brilliant fellow, who had just received an appointment as dramatic critic on a New York newspaper, and the ascent, on this July day in 1875, was a last fling as a city reporter. He drew lots with three other men, for only one could go, and seemed delighted when the lot fell to him while the others were left behind.

Away they sailed, above Dearborn

park, and out over the lake, the crowd waving handkerchiefs and shouting farewells. We recalled later the jokes he had made, as he shook hands with us, and bade us good-by. He thought it a pity he and the professor hadn't eight companions, so they might be among the "upper ten." And he assured us that, like Horatio Alger's heroes, he was "bound to rise," adding that his ascent was not different from some of our city politicians, as it was accomplished by means of gas.

When night fell, the balloonists had not landed, so far as we could learn, but we hoped they had reached the other side of the lake. Alas! No one will ever know what happened. Nothing was ever seen of Donaldson. A month passed before the body of Newton Crimwood was discovered near Whitehall, Mich. It had been washed up by the waves, but was easily identified by the notebook in his pocket, in which were comments on the trip, material which he undoubtedly intended to elaborate. His parents lived at a little place called Bristol, near Aurora. Martha still has a picture of him, taken a short time before the illstarred expedition. Will thinks he would have had a shining career if he had been spared.

Many people blamed P. T. Barnum, whose hippodrome was the scene of the ascent, for the balloon was said not to have been in good condition. The newspaper had not sent the young reporter. He had gone of his own volition. So there was never a real investigation of the disaster. An absurd story of Donaldson's having been seen alive somewhere has been floating about, and the theory has been advanced that he pushed Grimwood out of the balloon, to lighten it, and saved himself. But this is probably false. Both men perished, martyrs to the cause of science. Will the air ever be conquered? If so, it will be at the cost of many precious lives.

I hear Will calling and must see what he wants. Lovingly.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

The fate of Donaldson and Grimwood was a fruitful topic of conversation in the Chicago of the '70s, for many would have it that Donaldson, whose body was never found, had saved himself at the expense of the young reporter's life. The ascension took place from Dearborn park, where now stands the public library.

Mrs. Ada Grimwood Barnard of Aurora, Ill., is a niece, and H. W. Grimwood and Maurice H. Grimwood of Piano, are nephews of Newton Grimwood.

Letters have come to us commending the "Chicago Silhouettes," and we have been pleased to hear from Mark H. Beaubien, a great-great-grandson of the original of one of these silhouettes.

CHICAGO SILHOUETTES

Father Marquette.

(March 30, 1675.)

The winter, long and severe, was breaking to spring, and the Frenchmen. . . .
The black-robed Jesuit priest and the voyageurs, his companions. . . .
Uncabin'd in haste and then plodded through mire and sand at the portage.

On the face of Father Marquette was the pallor of desperate illness,
Yet fully determined was he to revisit the Indian village,
Kaskaskia, home of the red men, who waited in patience his coming.

Bleakly the prairie stood, where soon would the flowers be blazing;
Wished that they, too, had wings and could speed away to their homeland.

No word said Father Marquette, but his lips, in silent petition, Moved, as he prayed for strength to fulfill his holy commission.

[Father Marquette passed this way in 1673, with Joliet. Again he was in Chicago spending the winter of 1674-'75 in a cabin at about the spot where Damen avenue crosses the south branch of the river. "Uncabined," is the word used by a French writer to describe the hasty leaving of the hut. Kaskaskia, one of the largest Indian villages in this part of the country, stood about where Utica, La Salle county, is now situated. Here Father Marquette preached to the Indians at Easter time, 1675. He died on the return journey to Mackinac, in the spring of 1675.]

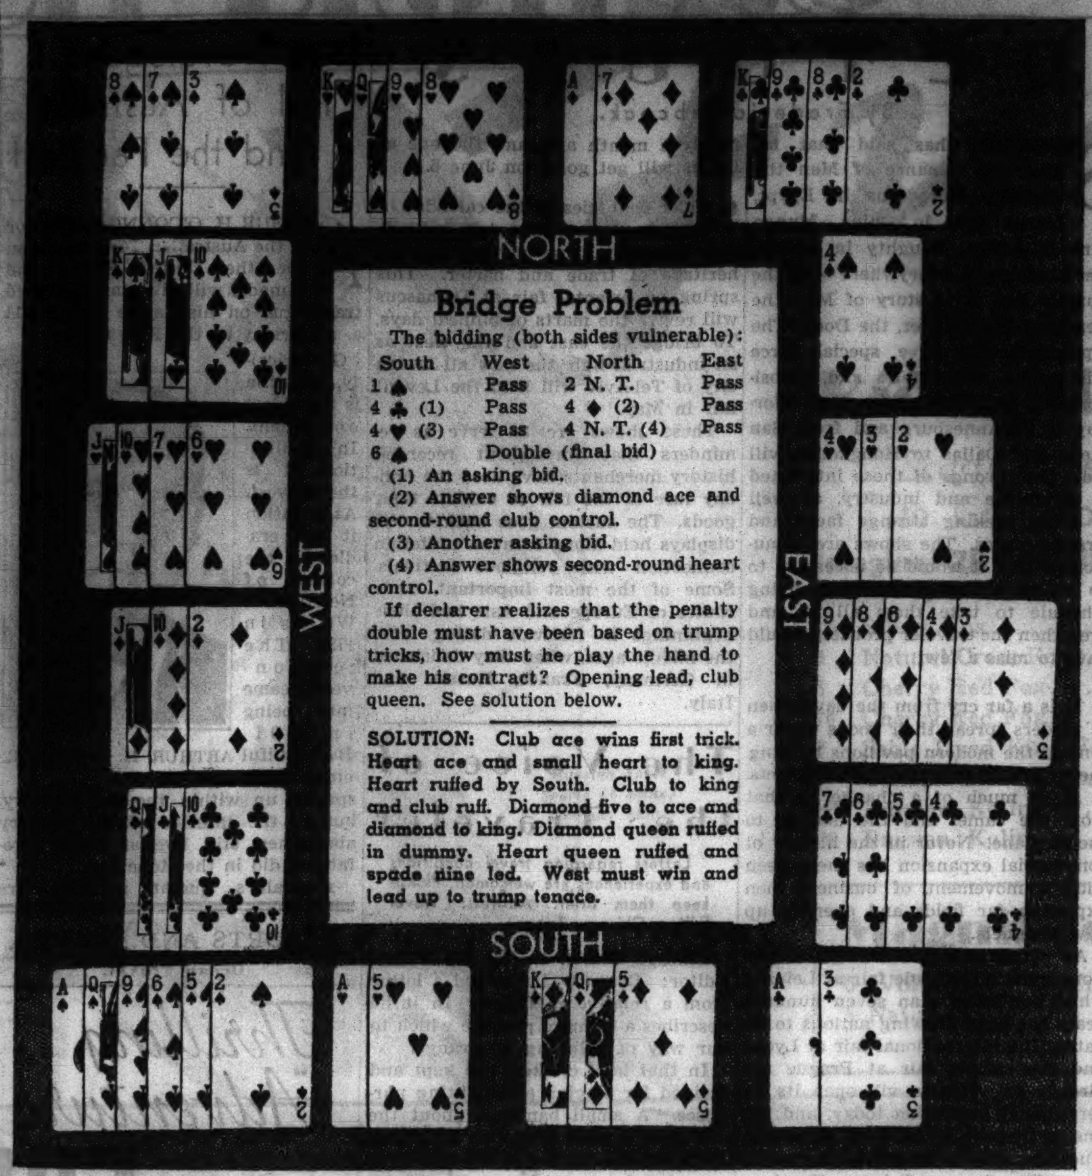
Contract According to Culbertson



By Ely Culbertson

CORRECT bidding is so completely logical in both a direct and an implicit sense that it is strange there should be general misconception of several standard situations. One of these is the so-called choice bid, where the responding hand, unable to raise or bid a suit of its own, can simply show a preference for one of two or three suits bid by the partner. A typical situation is this:

South has dealt and bid one spade. West overcalls with two clubs. North has the miserable holding of ♠ Q 9 2 ♥ 8 6 ♦ 8 7 5 3 2 ♣ J 8 6 and naturally passes. East also passes, and South now bids two hearts. West again overcalls, bidding three clubs; again North and East pass. South bids three hearts and West passes. Now, as almost all players know, North should show his preference for the first bid suit by bidding three spades—he does not raise the contract and is in effect making no bid at all. This latter fact must be clearly understood before the companion bid to the "preference bid" is discussed.

Change the North hand to four spades and a singleton heart and a very different picture presents itself. Now, in conjunction with the excellent two-suiter indicated by South's rebids, North can see that a game is highly probable. So, rather than make a completely passive preference response to the three heart bid, it is incumbent on North to show "better than a preference" by bidding not three but four spades! Remember that he has twice passed when he could have made a free bid. South can therefore not expect any particular honor strength and should recognize the jump for what it must be.

Certainly none of the foregoing is difficult to digest. It must be that those deluded and timid souls who would be afraid to give a "jump raise" with only one queen and one jack in the hand, fearing partner might leap to six, have not given the inherent logic of "better than a preference" bidding much thought.

With I. Q. and other mystic-symbol intelligence tests the order of the day, it occurs to me that my readers might enjoy a bridge questionnaire. So here it is. Place a cross after each question in the proper space, true or false, and check your answers from the list you will find at the very end of this article.

1. All preëmptive bids are foolish, shutting out the partner rather than the opponents.

TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

2. An opening two bid in a suit is forcing for only one round.

TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

3. If an opening one bid is doubled by the next hand, the partner of the doubler must take out.

TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

4. If the bidding goes:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass	Pass
Double

North wants South to take out the double.

TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

5. Most cross-ruff hands are very easy to play.

TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

6. Many grand slams can be made by an elimination and throw-in play.

TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

Preference Bid Meets Standard Situation

The general caliber of bridge has improved so greatly in the last few years that every experienced player, given half a chance, can execute the much publicized throw-in play. What is not so well known is the defense against this very type of coup.

The hand described below shows the utter simplicity of proper defensive measures. Yet imagination was a vital factor and the South player was to be congratulated for his foresight.

NORTH
♠ 4 3
♥ Q J 9 5
♦ 2
♣ Q J 6 5 4 2

WEST	EAST
♠ A K 10 9 5	♠ Q
♥ K 6 2	♥ 10 8 7 4 3
♦ 5 4	♦ K Q 10 9 6
♣ A 10 3	♣ K 7

SOUTH
♠ J 8 7 6 2
♥ A
♦ A J 8 7 3
♣ 9 8

The bidding (both sides vulnerable):

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Double
3 N. T.	Pass	Pass	Double (final bid)

On South's urgent call for a diamond lead—both of his doubles had this meaning—North, despite his singleton, thought he had better obey orders. The diamond queen was allowed to hold the first trick, and the queen of spades was laid down. Next came a small heart, South winning the ace and exiting with a club. Dummy's king won, and another heart to the king put West on lead. He played the ace, king, and another spade. South took the jack, and it was at this point that many players would have made a fatal error. Had he again exited with a club he would have cooked his own goose. Declarer was hoping for this very play. He would have won the club ace, cashed the good spades, and then led his remaining diamond. South, with nothing but diamonds left, would have been hopelessly caught. He would have taken his ace and jack but would have had to concede the last two tricks to dummy's diamonds.

All this South could and did anticipate. So he promptly abandoned the notion of winning two diamond tricks, preferring to gamble that his partner could take care of hearts and clubs. He laid down the ace of diamonds and then exited with the club!

Obviously declarer was now helpless. Dummy had no entry left, and he himself could cash only his ace of clubs and fifth spade for an eight-trick total.

Today's Questions

Question: Kindly bid the following North and South hands. Nobody vulnerable, and the opponents do not enter the bidding.

NORTH (dealer)	SOUTH
♠ K Q J 9 8 7 5	♠ 10
♥ A	♥ K 10 9 8 6 4
♦ A 7 4	♦ K Q 8 3
♣ 5 2	♣ A 4

Answer: Correct bidding is as follows:

NORTH	SOUTH
1 spade	2 hearts
3 spades	4 diamonds
4 spades	5 clubs
6 spades	Pass

It should be noted that, since no suit has been agreed on, South's five-club bid is not an asking bid, but merely an obvious slam invitation, which North accepts.

Question: I held the following hand and opened with a two-spade bid. Was I correct?

♠ A K 8 2 ♥ A K 7 4 ♦ A K 3 ♣ 6 5

Answer: No. You had no more honor tricks than you did losers—six of each. One spade was the proper opening bid.

March Banner Month in Local Art Galleries

Two Exhibits of Water Colors and One of Drawings Set a Brilliant Pace.

By Eleanor Jewett.

MARCH gives every promise of being an extremely busy month, so far as art exhibitions are concerned, with honors going to the Fifteenth International Exhibition of Water Colors, opening at the Art institute on March 12, the All-Illinois Annual Spring Water Color exhibit, which opened Wednesday at the Stevens hotel, and to the Kerr Eby showing of drawings and etchings entitled "The Tragedy of War," which were placed on view last Friday in the Ackermann galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue.

These three important exhibits are augmented by numerous other shows in other galleries. The Arts club is continuing its new exhibit of paintings by Francisco Borés and Elie Lascaux to March 14. The extravagantly modernist note struck in the Borés group of pictures is not particularly sympathetic to those on the hunt for beauty or inspiration in painting.

Lascaux's Idea of Art Has Much to Recommend It.

The paintings by Elie Lascaux are charming. They are like cheerful greeting cards; Lascaux's elaborate use of white lends an appearance of artificiality to his landscapes, but his command of formal colors and his mastery of composition must stand unquestioned. "The Sacred Heart Church Under Snow" and the "Staircase at Nevers" give him the right to dally where and when he wishes. His idea of art as a pleasant field of many flowers has much to commend it. His injection of tiny and perfect detail into the center of a large project must remind one of Dali, but the insets are so fascinating, and so beautifully done, no one would wish them away. "The Entrance to Bergues" possesses the most intriguing white horse and wagon we remember having met in years.

It comes as a welcome inspiration that possibly their use of perfectly and completely finished detail, a picture within a picture, is a manifestation of a new modern technique. Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, the Chicago modernist, made use of a similar departure when he introduced his vase of pansies in his "Self-Portrait" hung in the Chicago Artists and Vicinity exhibit, which closed Sunday in the Art institute.

Moessel Denies He Is Anti-Religious.

Julius Moessel, whose interesting exhibit of paintings is to be seen in the Findlay galleries, under the auspices of the Neoterics, to March 14, has sent an answer to the question posed him in our criticism of his show. The question raised was, could one consider him anti-religious? The painting that brought up the thought was "Exodus," an amusing but difficult composition.

Mr. Moessel says: "Regarding my picture, 'Exodus,' I tried to show the exodus of the five arts, architecture, sculpture, literature, music, and painting. And I tried to show the angry Ten Commandments, which are, according to the moderns, fossils. This picture is one of a series I am painting in the necessary fight against the many modern mannerisms. I have in no sense an anti-religious mind. What I show in the "Doubters of Evolution" is the question whether our development really made man happy.

"What I intended in 'Adam's Stronghold' is to show the naïve idea of God the ancients have held. The lonesome Adam was in the first conception a failure, which Jehova changed soon, without bettering the situation. He forbade Adam and Eve what he allowed the lowest animal. The story of the paradise, as pleasant as it is, has nothing to do with religion, except for people like Voliva, etc."

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

The exhibition of oils, water colors, and etchings by members of the Business Men's Art club will continue in the Mandel Ninth Floor gallery to March 10. It is chiefly of interest as illustrating what may be achieved by business men in following a hobby. A number of the paintings and etchings would measure well against the material hung in a professional show. Though you go to see a hobby, you stay to enjoy some excellent work. There are, for example, "Summer Camp," by F. D. Byrnes; "Morning on the Mountain," by H. B. Colby; "Loch Vale, Colorado," by G. T. Bunker; "Misty Morning," by James Eccles; "Autumn Woods," by Maurice Daly; "Winter Enchantment," by T. V. Field; "Dells Sketch," by C. H. MacDowell; "Winter Brook," by Charles Randolph, and "Brook," by E. A. Renwick, that are well worth while. And think of the fun they have painting them!

The Katherine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue, announces an exhibit during March of water colors, drawings, etchings, and lithographs by contemporary artists at a moderate price.

The Tenth Anniversary Exhibit of Paintings and Sculpture by artist members of the Polish Arts club opens today to continue through March 18 at the Polish National Alliance headquarters, 1200 North Ashland avenue.

Fifteen cash prizes totaling $4,250 and two medals will be awarded entries in the 111th annual exhibition of the National Academy of Design, New York City, which opens March 18. The president of the National academy is Jonas Lie.

CONDUCTOR IN PORTRAITURE

"When the Harps Set In," by Oskar Gross, this splendid portrait of Frederic Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, thinly veiled under its intriguing title, was one of the highlights in the Chicago Artists and Vicinity exhibit which closed last Sunday in the galleries of the Chicago Art institute.

Art Institute Official Denies Severe Cuts Made in School Staf

NORMAN RICE, associate dean of the Art institute of Chicago, writing to Potter Palmer, president of that institution, replies as follows to a recent story by Eleanor Jewett in THE TRIBUNE:

"In THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE for March 1 Miss Eleanor Jewett made the following statement: 'The number of students in the Art institute school is fewer than it might be, and many of the instructors have been cut to one-third their time [page Postmaster Farley], with naturally a two-thirds cut in salary.' The records reveal that no member of our present faculty has been reduced to as little as a third of his original salary or teaching time. Due to inevitable changes in the curriculum of the school the faculty is constantly in a state of change. The number of instructors on our teaching staf is greater than it was three years ago. In only one instance has any cut in teaching time exceeded 50 per cent.

"While it has always been true that 'the number of students in the Art institute school is fewer than it might be' since the school has expanded and will continue to expand as the need arises, it is interesting to note an increase of 5 per cent in total enrolment over last season and a 10 per cent increase in the introductory courses alone. There is a total enrolment at present of 1,758 students.

"Likewise Miss Jewett's remarks concerning Lester O. Schwartz, whose canvas 'Young Chorus Girl' won a prize in the fortieth exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity, are a little misleading. The prize in question is awarded from a fund established with the proceeds from a ball given annually by Chicago artists. Mr. Schwartz left the school after an attendance of two years and painted two years independently. This season he returned to work in advanced painting classes, where he finds himself with other established artists who have undergone thorough undergraduate training. Mr. Schwartz did not learn to paint under Francis Chapin. He is at present a pupil of Boris Anisfeld. Mr. Chapin does not teach painting in the school of the Art institute, but conducts a course in lithography.

"Incidentally, Mr. Schwartz's painting, 'Young Chorus Girl,' was purchased for the Shilliard-Smith collection of Philadelphia, which contains important examples of contemporary art and is destined ultimately as a memorial gift to that city."

Budgeting Time Before Marriage Is Important

By Helen Bartlett.

JUNE being the month of brides, it is not too early now for girls preparing for June weddings to begin formulating their plans for the big event. A budget of the bride's time is quite important. And three months, if carefully planned, will allow quite enough time to arrange all the necessary details without placing any undue pressure on the bride and her family, and without causing them any unnecessary worries.

By following a systematic order, one may accomplish everything with ease. The bride then can walk down the aile of the church with a feeling of calm and assurance, knowing that the smallest detail hasn't been forgotten, everything is going smoothly, and just as it was planned.

The budget that follows was published last year about this same time, but we consider it useful enough to prospective brides to be reprinted now.

Preliminary Plans Must Be Made Ten Weeks in Advance.

At least ten weeks or, perhaps, twelve before the wedding, the exact date, time, whether it is to take place at church or home, and whether it is to be a large or small affair should be decided. Until these matters are arranged nothing else can be accomplished. And when they are settled such duties as arranging for the church, engaging the clergyman, completing the plans for the reception, may be performed. Then may begin the enjoyment of the selection of the trousseau, including the bride's own personal wardrobe and the household linens, the wedding gown, and the going-away costume.

Home Should Be Chosen at Least Eight Weeks Before.

Eight weeks before the wedding is none too soon to begin looking for an apartment or a home, and to formulate plans for furnishing it. It is advisable to begin shopping for furniture. The problem of decorating and furnishing the new home is a big one and an important one, and it should not be done too hastily.

The various lists for invitations to the ceremony and the reception, and the announcements, lists of both the bride's and bridegroom's, should have been completed by this time [four or five weeks before]. And the order for the engraving should be placed with the stationer, because it does take quite a long time before it can be completed and delivered. The "at home" cards should be ordered at the same time, the visiting cards with the new name, and monogrammed stationery for the "thank you" notes. If any alterations on the house, cleaning, or decorating are to be done before the wedding, they should be completed two or three weeks in advance of the date of the occasion. Begin addressing the invitations and announcements.

Fifteen days before the wedding, at least, the invitations should be mailed. Soon after they are received, wedding presents will begin to arrive.

They Know How to Enjoy Life in South America

Love of Pleasure Finds Its Greatest Expression in This New Tourist Center.

By Austin Byrne.

AS the glamor and beauty which typify South America assert themselves more strongly in the minds of the American traveling public, our neighbor continent becomes increasingly important. So does the matter of steamer routes leading to it.

On the trip down the east coast from New York the first port of call is Bermuda, Britain's lovely isle of summer, where white homes dot the green hillsides and Elbow beach extends its invitation for a swim in its tropical waters.

Beyond the Power of Mere Words.

The next port, Rio de Janeiro, defies description. While there have been millions of words written about Rio, none can express its breathless splendor. Its harbor, large enough to hold all the world's navies at one time, is a spectacle unequalled anywhere else. Set in a semi-circle of mountains, it holds travelers spellbound.

The city itself is no less delightful. Wide avenues are overflowing with interest. Sidewalks are tiled with gay floral designs of contrasting colors. The National theater, built at a cost of $5,000,000, is a work of art. The gambling casino, more extensively patronized than the one in Havana, throbs with activity.

Beyond Rio lies Santos, the greatest coffee port in the world. Its amazing industry illustrates the wide scope of the coffee business.

Just a few minutes' drive from Santos is La Guaraja, the most fashionable seaside resort on the continent. It is here that the South American smart world flocks during the summer months.

Next is Montevideo, South America's center of culture and simplicity. It boasts the most healthful climate in the world, and physicians recommend it as a matchless health resort.

Buenos Aires is the pride of the Argentine. Not merely so beautiful as Rio de Janeiro, its gay life, its hustle, its wealth, and its charm make it fully as interesting.

Where Life Is Really Lived.

Buenos Aires is a mixture of New York and Paris. By day, its 3,000,000 people scamper and dash through its streets, intent on the problem of making their way in the world. By night it is transformed into a city of gaiety. Brilliant lights fill the sky with a glow, and night clubs, cabarets, and theaters go full blast.

Here love of pleasure, of life itself, far exceeds that of any other nation in the wolrd. If you get nothing more from your trip to Buenos Aires than the appreciation of the finer things that life offers, and the right way to enjoy them, you will return a richm man. Life is really lived in this magnificent city.

New Bridge on Jordan.

JERICHO, Palestine.—[Palcor]—Construction has begun of a high bridge over the Jordan, connecting Palestine with the main highway to Amman. The structure will replace the present low suspension span, named "Allenby bridge" in honor of the world war conqueror of the Holy land. The present bridge often is submerged after heavy rains.

At French Lick.

French Lick Springs, Ind., March 7.—Chicagoans stopping here this week included Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Banghart, Miss Helen G. Nicol, W. H. Byron, L. M. LaChance, Mrs. E. J. Stevens, and Mrs. Robert Clements.

ONE OF AUSTRALIA'S TOURIST ATTRACTIONS
Usually regarded as a symbol of Australia, the kangaroo is only one of that continent's many fantastic creatures, relics of the beginnings of the world's history.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

EFFECTIVE with the sailing of the Virginia next Saturday from San Francisco, the port of Acapulco, on the western coast of Mexico, will be a fortnightly eastbound call on the Panama Pacific line. This was announced yesterday by W. C. Lancsweert, district passenger manager. The change was prompted by the increased interest shown in Mexico by American tourists. It will enable passengers from Chicago to proceed directly to Acapulco by rail and thence by steamer via the Panama canal to New York.

Nearly a year in advance of the sailing date, another cruise around South America on the North German Lloyd steamer Columbus was scheduled last week by Raymond-Whitcomb, Inc. Fred V. Robinson, Chicago manager, said that on this winter's cruise the demand for accommodations was so heavy that for every person booked two others were turned away for lack of cabin space. Next year's trip, sailing Feb. 6 and lasting approximately 45 days, has been arranged to take care of some of those left behind this year.

A 57 day cruise of the Mediterranean and the Black sea has been scheduled by the Italian line to leave New York July 1 aboard the Roma. The ports of ancient lands and the gay cities of the Riviera are to be visited. The itinerary includes Madeira, Gibraltar, Ceuta, Nice, Genoa, Naples, Paormina, Beirut, Haifa, Port Said, Rhodes, Istanbul, Odessa, Malta, Phaleron, Cattaro Bay, Ragusa, Venice, Trieste, Brioni, and Cannes. The return to New York will be on Aug. 27. Two days later the Roma will start on another cruise of the Mediterranean.

For travelers wishing a closeup view of English life and the English countryside, an extensive bicycle tour of England and Scotland is projected by the Oak Leaves Travel bureau in coöperation with the French line. To provide an intimate view of British life and history, members of the party will stop at historic inns. The tour will sail June 27 on the Lafayette and return Aug. 12 on the Normandie.

Three motor tours of the English countryside have been arranged by the Church Club of Chicago in coöperation with the Cunard-White Star line. The Shakespeare country, Bath, Lynton, Torquay, Salisbury, and London are featured. The first group, under the leadership of J. D. Allen, will travel over individually and return on the maiden voyage of the Queen Mary. A second group will sail June 13 on the Georgic, with Frank W. Hughes as conductor. Dr. Herbert W. Prince, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest, will accompany the third party, which will sail June 27 on the Britannic.

A 35 day tour to the Olympic games in Berlin was announced last week by the Chicago office of the Hamburg-American Line-North German Lloyd. The passengers will leave on the Europa July 24 and travel tourist class. The tour will be under the direction of "Con" Jennings, director of athletics at Marquette university, and "Nick" Kearns, football and basketball official. The games will last from Aug. 1 to 16.

Hereafter the trafic department of the Chicago, Duluth, and Georgian Bay Steamship line will be in Chicago instead of Detroit. E. J. Goebel, formerly of this city, has returned from Detroit and will be in charge of the new office as passenger trafic manager.

Miss Martha H. Nesbitt, formerly associated with John L. Kooreman, has joined the staf of the Wolfe Way Travel service.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations, to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What is the Salzburg Mozarteum academy?—A. G. P.

An international summer school of conducting, music, dancing, and the theater. Its eighth season will be held in July and August.

Please tell me something of the Palace of Westminster.—D. S.

When the houses of parliament are not in session the correct name for the buildings where they meet is Palace of Westminster. It still ranks as a royal palace, and it is in charge of the hereditary lord great chamberlain. Sovereigns from the time of Edward the Confessor to Henry VIII. made it their chief place of residence.

On a daily basis in dollars.

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

SOMEBODY has said that behind the romance of Man the Traveler—Herodotus in Egypt, Marco Polo in China, Mungo Park in Africa, Doughty in Arabia, the Lindberghs everywhere—is the scarcely less vivid story of Man the Merchant, the Builder, the Doer. The expression will have special force this spring, when fairs and expositions all over the world—from Norway to Johannesburg and from San Diego and Dallas to Hongkong—will draw the throngs of those interested in commerce and industry, as well as those seeking strange faces and strange places. The shows are so numerous that it would be necessary to go on an almost continuous flying schedule to take them all in, and even then the traveler probably would have to miss a few.

● It is a far cry from the days when traders spread their goods under a tent to the modern pavilions housing the newest in manufactured products. It is as much of a change as that from the camel and the donkey to the airplane. Never in the history of commercial expansion has there been such a movement of business men exploring far fields and opening up new channels.

As usual, one of the main attractions is the huge trade fair at Leipzig, which for more than seven hundred years has been drawing nations to its gates. The international fair at Lyons and the sample fair at Prague are already on. Vienna will open its international exposition today, and the one at Utrecht, in Holland, will begin Tuesday. Others all set to begin this month are those at Cologne, Haarlem, and Frankfort. April will see openings at Nantes, Lille, and Basle. On May 16 the huge Paris Trade fair will open its doors.

On this side of the Atlantic the San Diego fair resumed operations nearly a month ago, and the one at Dallas will get going on June 6.

● Older countries in the calendar of time have not been left behind; they are capitalizing on their ancient heritage of trade and barter. This spring an oriental fair at Damascus will revive the marts of biblical days. To bridge the east and the west as an industrial hub, the new all-Jewish city of Tel-Aviv will hold the Levant fair in May.

These shows are to serve as reminders that throughout recorded history merchants have used the holiday lure of the fair to exhibit their goods. The custom goes back to the displays held along caravan routes in connection with religious festivals. Some of the most important trade routes of Europe and Asia had their beginnings in festivals dating from the middle ages, when they flourished in Germany, France, Russia, and Italy.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

Chicago, March 1.—To the Travel Editor: Recently I received a letter from a relative in China. In it he describes a Chinese pastime which to our way of thinking is strange.

In that land crickets are kept and trained for singing and fighting purposes. A small bandbox, about the size of a saucer, serves as an arena. It is covered with netting and in it are placed two crickets with "fighting blood." Little pokers are used to keep the insects going. And the winner is whichever one starts chewing the other first. A "crowd" of four or five view the "spectacle."

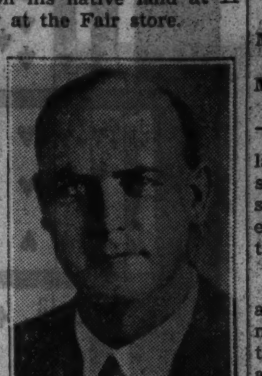
Two Travelogues Tell of Australia and the Far East

ARTHUR H. O'CONNOR, director of the Australian Tourist bureau for the United States and Canada, will give an illustrated travelogue on his native land at 11 a. m. Friday at the Fair store.



ARTHUR H. O'CONNOR.

Geologically, Australia is the oldest continent. In civilization it is the newest. As a nation it was cradled in the colony of New South Wales in 1788. The commonwealth came into being in 1901. Beautiful cities have sprung up within the last century, but in the interior of the country aborigines still live as their forefathers did in the stone age.

Australia's quaint animals are largely survivals of half-forgotten stages in the world's history. Its scenery is primeval. The country has endless opportunities for the adventurous.

Mason Warner, world traveler and author of a series of travel articles now appearing in THE TRIBUNE, will take the Ohio Society of Chicago on a motion picture tour of the far east following a dinner at the Hamilton club Thursday evening. His travelogue will include the Philippines, Bali, Java, Singapore, and Angkor. Mr. Warner gave a similar talk Thursday evening before the Chicago Association of Business and Professional Men, meeting at the Great Northern hotel.

YOUR TEETH ARE CLEAN ALL OVER WHEN CALOX REACHES AND PURIFIES "The Forgotten 60"

(HIDDEN SURFACES BETWEEN THE TEETH)

START brushing your teeth with Calox Tooth Powder and watch those bubbles of purifying oxygen foam into crevices where other dentifrices never reach.

On the 60 hidden surfaces between your teeth, food collects, germs breed, and decay starts. Calox reaches and cleans those "forgotten" areas. It hunts out germs, deodorizes food particles, sweetens the breath. It helps to keep the gums firm and healthy. It polishes the enamel safely—beautifully—to gleaming brilliance. Join the swing to Calox. Dentists advise it. Safer, more effective.

You'll like its refreshing taste—its marvelous economy. There's enough powder in the handy-size package of Calox to give you 152 brushings—three times as many as in a tube of tooth paste! The family size holds 304 brushings! Buy it at any good drug store.

The Magic of the

LINIT BEAUTY BATH

Modern life demands much of women—in business, in the home, the club—and in social duties that are a part of her daily life. To meet every occasion, with a consciousness of looking her best, the smart woman tirelessly strives to cultivate every feminine charm. Today, one of the outstanding essentials of charm is a soft, smooth skin.

For many years, fastidious women have relied on the Linit Beauty Bath to give their skin the feel of rare velvet.

To those who have not tried the Linit Beauty Bath, why not do this today: Dissolve some Linit in the tub while the water is running. Bathe as usual and, after drying, feel your skin. It will be delightfully soft and smooth. And the Linit bath does away with the damp or semi-dry feeling of the skin that usually follows an ordinary bath.

Make it a habit to use Linit in your tub water and join the thousands of America's loveliest women who daily enjoy its refreshing luxury.

The last 3 days in the Life of a CORN!

30,000,000 people approve this safest way to end corn suffering

• For 35 years the world's most popular corn remover, Blue-Jay has brought foot comfort to more than 30,000,000 people. It gives instant relief from pain—then removes corns painlessly and safely. Here is how. • First, its soft, felt pad stops agonizing shoe pressure. As soon as Blue-Jay is applied, you walk in complete comfort. Pad never slips—is not harmed by bathing—special Wet-Pruf adhesive strip makes it stay where you put it. • Second, Blue-Jay's safe medication undermines the corn itself. And does this gently, working only on the corn, not on the surrounding skin. In 3 days the complete corn lifts out. No wonder millions approve this method. • Try it. Stop in at your druggist's today. Ask for Blue-Jay, only 25c a package. Follow the simple directions that come with it—and you'll really get rid of corns!

WHY A CORN HURTS
A corn has a tack-like point that presses against tender nerves and flashes pain throughout the system. That's why a corn "hurts all over."

HOW TO STOP THE PAIN
Soft felt Blue-Jay Pad stops pain instantly. Fits snugly, firmly (without showing through shoes) . . . while mild Blue-Jay medication undermines the corn.

HOW TO REMOVE THE CORN
After 3 days, remove the Blue-Jay, soak foot in warm water, and you lift the corn right out.

If You Have ACID INDIGESTION

Alkalize Your Stomach This Way in Few Minutes

ALKALIZES disturbed stomach almost INSTANTLY

If you want really quick relief from an upset or painful stomach condition, arising from acidity following over-eating, smoking, unfortunate mixtures of food or stimulants, just try this:

Take: Two teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a full glass of water.

Or — two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets; each of which contains the exact equivalent of a teaspoonful of the liquid form.

This acts almost immediately to neutralize the excess acid in the stomach. Thus relieving the condition which fosters headaches, nausea, acid indigestion pains and upsets. You feel results at once. It's really marvelous.

Thousands of people are learning this about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Finding out that nothing else they have ever tried acts to alkalize the stomach so quickly — eases it so rapidly.

SIGNS WHICH OFTEN INDICATE "ACID STOMACH"

Pain after eating, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Frequent Headaches, Nausea, Feeling of Weakness, Sleeplessness, Mouth Acidity and Sour Stomach

Try it next stomach upset you have. AND — if you are a frequent sufferer from "acid stomach" and indigestion, use it 30 minutes after meals—either the liquid or the tablets. You'll soon forget you have a stomach.

When you buy, see that any box or bottle you accept is clearly marked "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia." A big box of the tablets, to carry with you, costs only 25¢.

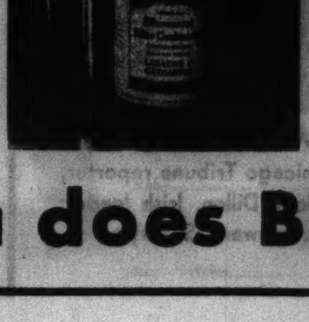
To check a Cold in a hurry

1. CLEANSE THE SYSTEM
2. COMBAT ACIDITY



THAT BUSINESS OF LETTING A COLD "RUN ITS COURSE" is out-of-date. Today, physicians advise: (1) Rid your system of wastes (2) Combat the acidity that encourages a cold. And Sal Hepatica does BOTH. First, Sal Hepatica cleanses the intestinal tract—speedily, gently, thoroughly. Second, Sal Hepatica does something that no ordinary laxative can do. It brings about a definite alkaline (anti-acid) reaction, to help your system return to its normal alkaline reserve.

SO WHENEVER A COLD THREATENS, take two teaspoons of Sal Hepatica in a glass of water. In addition, get plenty of rest and quiet (go to bed and call a physician if your cold is too severe)—watch your diet and drink plenty of liquids. That is the scientific way. Get Sal Hepatica today.

Helpless little fellow .. so easily upset! Doctors recommend these easier-to-digest Baby Foods

Mother . . . here's wonderful news! Libby has discovered a better way to prepare your baby's solid foods.

Scientific tests show Libby's special process of Homogenization makes baby's vegetables, fruits, cereal and soup far easier to digest . . . far more nourishing than the finest strained foods.

See what this Homogenization does . . .

Whole food cells like this are found in the best strained foods. They imprison valuable nourishment.

Homogenization also reduces coarse, irritating fibers into tiny particles. But all natural bulk necessary for normal elimination is retained.

Your doctor will tell you when to start feeding. Buy Libby's safer Baby Foods at your grocer's. They're priced so low you can feed them to your baby every day!

Libby's Special Homogenization makes Baby Foods smoother

Fewer Digestive Upsets
Doctors find Libby's Homogenized Foods are far easier for little babies to digest than the finest strained foods. Enthusiastic mothers write us that since feeding Libby's Homogenized foods their babies have had fewer digestive upsets!

Far More Nourishing
Scientific tests show that Libby's special process of Homogenization makes vegetables, fruits, cereal and soup so fine and smooth, they digest far more completely than the most carefully strained foods. Baby uses far less energy in digesting them . . . and gets far more nourishment!

Earlier Feeding Possible
Many doctors recommend Libby's Homogenized vegetables as early as 3 months . . . weeks earlier than strained foods . . . to give baby the minerals he needs to help protect against nutritional anemia. (Homogenized vegetables are so fine they may be mixed with baby's milk formula and fed from the bottle!)

Scientific Camera Shows Why Doctors Recommend Libby's Baby Foods
Dark areas in first two photographs are whole food cells and fibers not broken up by finest straining. Food cell walls imprison valuable nourishment. Notice how food cells and fibers in third photograph are completely broken up by Libby's special Homogenization process. All nourishment released for easy, complete digestion.

Medical Authorities recommend this "Balanced Diet"
Libby's Homogenized Foods come in combinations—three or more foods in a single tin! Makes it easier to feed a balanced diet every day. Saves money too.

6 Balanced Combinations
1. Peas, beets, asparagus tips
2. String beans, tomatoes, pumpkin
3. Carrots, spinach, peas
4. Cereal combination . . . whole milk, whole wheat, soy bean flour
5. Prunes, pineapple juice, lemon juice
6. Soup . . . vegetables, chicken livers, barley

The Knit-tex Coat $25

THIS is an actual photograph, not a glorified artist's drawing. It shows a regular Knit-tex Coat on an average man and that is the way the coat will look on you.

It is drizzle proof and due to the special construction of the cloth, it is so light in weight you will hardly know you have a coat on your shoulders; yet it is warm enough for all but the coldest days of Winter. The fabric has a fine, soft texture, yet it never wrinkles, and seldom needs pressing. The price is $25.

THERE is also the Angora Knit-tex Coat at $30. Angora is one of the softest and most luxurious of natural fibres. It is the hair of the Angora goat which is raised in mountainous regions where the days are hot and the nights very cold. The hair covering of the animal must therefore adapt itself to these two climatic extremes.

That is the reason why these soft luxurious Angora Coats are so seemingly weightless on mild days and yet so snug and warm on colder days.

WARM WHEN IT'S COLD · LIGHT WHEN IT'S WARM · SHEDS DRIZZLE AND MOISTURE · PRACTICALLY WRINKLE-PROOF
